Prohibit sale of 'harmful materials' to minors

Village attorney prepares anti-obscenity ordinance

by LYNN ASINOF

At the direction of the Wheeling Village Board, the village attorney has prepared an obscenity ordinance that would prohibit the sale of "harmful materials" to persons under 17 years of age.

The ordinance, patterned after one recently enacted in Niles, expressly defines materials harmful to minors. Such harmful materials include anything that has explicit language on nudity, sexual conduct, sexual excitement or sadomasochistic abuse.

It also includes material appealing to the prurient interests of minors, is offensive to prevailing community standards, and is utterly without redeeming social value for minors.

Trustee Albert Lang proposed the obscenity ordinance as one way to control the distribution of various "adult" magazines to village young people.

He explained the ordinance would not prohibit the sale of such magazines as Playboy, Penthouse and Gallery to adults. Lang said that the ordinance would merely prohibit their sale to minors. He said the ordinance also would make shopkeepers carrying those magazines keep them under the counter so young people could not leaf through them.

THE ORDINANCE, which has not yet been reviewed by the board, begins by citing the dangers of censorship. It states, however, that certain movies and publications "are basic factors which may impair the ethical and moral development of youth."

According to the ordinance, "such material may be a contributing cause for delinquency, sexually promiscuous behavior, and along with other factors, tend to incite criminal behavior on the part of young persons."

The ordinance would make it illegal for anyone to knowingly sell, distribute or exhibit such material to a minor. This regulation would apply specifically to pictures, photos, drawings, sculptures, films, books and records.

Two areas are specifically exempted from this control in this ordinance. One area is the distribution of such material by a library if it is to be used for educational or scientific purposes. The second exemption allows any parent to give his children such material.

Generally, anti-obscenity ordinances have been struck down by the courts as unconstitutional. However, Niles Village Pres. Nicholas Blase said no one has yet challenged his village's obscenity ordinance. He said the ordinance was enacted about two months ago.

"TO DATE, everyone has worked with us," he said. "Just one book store has indicated that they are unhappy."

Blase explained that officers from the police department's public relations office check the book and magazine counters in town once a week. He said that the village board makes the final determination on whether a specific publication is considered obscene for minors.

According to Blase, the Niles ordinance was based on a similar law enacted in New York. "We took our ordinance and copied it from New York," he said.

Blase attributed the success of the Niles ordinance to the fact the board is not trying to regulate moral codes for everyone in the village. "The key is we're not trying to dictate what is and is not good for everybody," he said.

Polls open until 6 p.m. for park district vote

The polls are open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. today for Wheeling Park District residents to vote in the park board election.

The two official candidates for two six-year terms on the board are incumbent Pres. Lorraine Lark and Comr. Al Wilson. Hugh Wilson, 417 Meadowbrook Ln. said last week he hopes to be elected as a write-in candidate.

All residents east of the Soo Line R.R. should vote at Heritage Park, 222 S. Wolf Rd. Those who live west of the Soo Line should vote at Jack London Junior High School, 1001 W. Dundee Rd.

The official results of the election should be available from the park district office by 7 p.m., according to Mrs. Lark.

5-town flooding committee comes out of hibernation

After three months of inactivity, a five-community committee formed to deal with flooding problems in the Buffalo Creek watershed is about to begin work again.

The committee, which has endorsed the voluntary adoption of flood control and drainage ordinances throughout the watershed, is expected to meet later this month. The last committee meeting was in December.

Vernon Township Supervisor Clarence Pontius said he has not called a meeting because he has been studying flooding in the area. He said his work has resulted in several recommendations which he plans to present when the representatives of the five communities meet.

The communities represented on the committee include Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Long Grove, Kildeer and Lake Zurich. Pontius said a representative of Cuba Township will also be invited to attend this month's meeting.

AT THE LAST meeting in December, members of the committee rejected the idea of forming a subdistrict of the soil and water conservation district to control flooding in the watershed. They said voluntary cooperation between the watershed communities was preferable to the creation of a new taxing body.

Although the committee was supposed to meet again in early January, this meeting was delayed. Pontius said one reason for the delay was that Vernon Township is awaiting a legal decision on the use of federal revenue sharing funds for an engineering study of flood problems in the township.

Pontius said while this federal revenue sharing money will be used only in Vernon Township, he hoped other communities would find funds to make similar studies.

According to Pontius, several owners of large tracts in upstream communities have been asked if they would allow construction of retention basins on their property.

HE EXPLAINED the owners would retain the deed to the land even though the land would be used by the government. They in turn would receive a break on property taxes. He said he is also awaiting a legal opinion on this proposal.

Buffalo Grove Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said the first responsibility of the committee would be to review the flood plain and storm water retention ordinances of each of the watershed communities. He said the committee would formulate flood control guidelines to be adopted by all the communities involved.

"We would provide uniform storm water guidelines which would be adopted in ordinance form by all the communities," Larson said. "This would take the place of a subdistrict."

Larson said the steering committee also recommended making the village staff available to other members of the watershed in an advisory capacity. Moreover, the committee will request that the Lake County board adopt a flood plain and water retention ordinance.

THE STEERING committee agreed that each of the watershed communities should receive the minutes of the meetings of the Lake County and North Cook County soil and water conservation districts. Larson explained this would provide the individual villages with a way to keep track of construction in other areas of the watershed.

Each of the communities was also asked to consider passing a sedimentation control ordinance. Larson explained that topsoil, washed away by rains, often gathers in retention basins and storm sewers, thus reducing their flood control capacity.

Larson said individual villages could pass an ordinance requiring sediment retention basins that would prevent the loss of this topsoil.

SEVERAL FLOOD control projects have also been proposed that will be particularly beneficial to downstream communities such as Buffalo Grove and Wheeling. On March 16 Larson announced that an agreement by the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) to build a 100-acre retention lake on Buffalo Creek was forthcoming.

"This is a major regional flood control project," Larson said. "It will control all the water that flows into the village from the west."

The $2.8 million project will have a capacity of 2 million gallons of water. The retention lake, to be located at the southwest corner of Arlington Heights and Checker roads, will catch and retain the water so it cannot run downstream.

This will give the sewer systems less water to handle at the time of a heavy rainstorm, Larson explained. After the storm is over, and the sewers are better equipped to handle the additional water, the water will be released from the lake under controlled conditions. The water will then run through the downstream communities without creating flooding, he added.

A much smaller retention lake is also planned in the Arlington golf course. The lake will benefit residents in the old section of Buffalo Grove. It will function much like the other retention lake.

Little effect on business reported so far

Restaurants not 'beefing' about boycott—yet

by LEA TONKIN
One lunch and dinner hour have passed in the national meat boycott, which began Sunday. And despite the continued customer demand for steaks through Monday, Northwest suburban restaurant managers are spooked by the prospects of a turnaround in eating habits by mid-week.

"No change in demand, but this is only the first full day," said a spokesman at Arthur's Steak House in Des Plaines yesterday. The establishment has not altered its menu for the week.

Specials on seafood and chicken are popular at the Black Fox dining room at the Holiday Inn, Rolling Meadows, says dining room supervisor Carol Neumann. What about a decline in the requests for steak? "No I'm sorry, there isn't a drop in demand," she said. And this in spite of a recent 5 per cent price increase to offset higher wholesale beef costs.

"There's no change in steaks yet," said John Athens, general manager of the Brass Rail Steaks 'N Stuff restaurant in Arlington Heights. By Wednesday, a clear picture of any swings in meat-eating habits should be noticeable, he predicted.

NO SPECIAL meatless dishes are offered by the Brass Rail, but customers are hitting the salad bar a little more often nowadays. The manager said more "stuff" than steaks may be sold by mid-week as the salads and seafood claim customers who are boycotting beef.

At Don Roth's steak and lobster restaurant in Wheeling, a spokesman said boycott impact could not be felt until mid-week. No change in sales was reported at a local Bonanza Sirloin Pit restaurant.

"We haven't noticed any change yet in customer buying," said a spokesman at Uncle Andy's Cow Palace in Palatine yesterday. "It's too early to say what will happen."

Second-guessing what the customer will buy is a day to day business for Mike Remley, manager of the Arby's restaurant in Palatine. Demand for the featured roast beef sandwich has not changed much from last week, he reported on Monday. He's stocking the full amount for today in beef supply. By the end of the week, Remley says, "I have a feeling we'll be just even with last week, or a little bit less."

ANOTHER eatery in the lower price range, Chicken Unlimited, could be expected to clean up on sales this week if the consumers are making a change from beef and pork to substitutes. But the manager of the Elk Grove Village outlet reports chicken sales holding steady right along with hamburgers. Chicken prices are going up, too, and the company raised their prices two weeks ago.

"We haven't felt it yet," said Wayne Kunke, general manager of the Henric's restaurant in Arlington Heights, of the meat boycott movement. But, he adds, "We could be in for a very bad week."

Hoping to cash in on any customer switchovers to meat substitutes, Kunke said he will feature two fish dishes this week to replace one beef and one pork dinner normally on the menu.

Kunke, along with other restaurant managers surveyed, said he is up against a continuing price squeeze for pork and beef prices and the only way to keep prices in line is to maintain heavy volume. Then this means a long range drop in consumer demand could hurt the business, he says.

"We're only allowed a 5 per cent increase in prices, but some of our meat costs have gone up 20 to 30 per cent in the last month and a half," Kunke said. The consumer hasn't felt this price increase yet. "The restaurant raised only one steak price a quarter this year," he said.

HOLDING ON to your clientele without losing too much money on meat costs is the balancing act the restaurant manager faces, said Kunke. He said most couples would like to eat a good steak dinner, with cocktails, for under $15.

Customers could cut the cost of eating out by ordering a smaller portion of steak, he added. Ordering a ladies steak 3 ounces less than the regular featured steak can cut the cost from $5.25 down to $4.25, he noted.

Elsewhere in the U.S., many restaurants are offering discounts to their customers joining in the boycott. One chain of eating places in New York placed an ad in the New York Times reading, "Don't eat beef: Join us to fight against those ridiculous beef prices."

Prosecutor lists potential witnesses

Jury selection begins in Jayne trial

by ANNE SLAVICEK
The process of selecting 12 jurors for the trial of the three men charged in the 1970 slaying of Inverness horseman George Jayne began yesterday in Cook County Criminal Court.

Assistant State's Atty. Nicholas Motherway and three defense attorneys, including Boston lawyer F. Lee Bailey, questioned the potential jurors, as did Judge Richard Fitzgerald.

During questioning, Motherway read a list of possible prosecution witnesses that included six Inverness residents and nine Palatine policemen.

Also slated to testify are George Jayne

F. Lee Bailey

Silas Jayne

Jr., the son of the murder victim; Patricia Jayne, his daughter; Marion Jayne, his widow, and Martha Jayne, a former wife of defendant Silas Jayne.

The three accused men — Silas Jayne, Joseph La Placa and Julius Barnes — sat in court watching the jury selection process.

MOTHERWAY'S LIST also included Melvin Adams, the conspirator turned state's witness who drove Barnes to Jayne's home the night of the murder; Adams' wife; former Assistant State's Atty. Mathew Walsh; George Jayne's daughter Linda, and Micky Wright.

Palatine policemen who might testify include Patrolman Michael McDonald, Sgt. Gordon Mosby, Det. Sgt. Walter Schoenfeld, Sgt. Eugene Bobinski, Det. Richard Sikorski, Det. Norman Beachman, Chief Robert Centner and Lt. Frank Ortiz.

Before jury questioning got underway, Judge Fitzgerald warned the jurors they might be sequestered during the trial. Yesterday morning Fitzgerald had told newsmen he would sequester the jury, and defense and prosecution attorneys both agreed to the judge's decision.

Fitzgerald also told the jurors the trial might last more than two weeks. The jurors first were called into the courtroom at 12:30 p.m. yesterday, shortly before the court recessed for lunch. Fitzgerald repeatedly cautioned potential jurors to avoid reading or listening to any publicity concerning the trial.

THE START of the trial was delayed during the day first because Fitzgerald had to assign cases for a vacationing judge, then a grand jury selection.

Bailey, who will represent Silas Jayne, declined to reveal the key to his defense.

Bailey told the Herald he never had tried a case in Cook County Circuit Court. His only other Chicago case was in Federal Court, Bailey said. He told a group of reporters outside the courtroom he will not carry the major burden of the defense for all three defendants.

"There are three lawyers in this case and I'll do one-third of the questioning," he said. Bailey's partner, Gerald Alch, will represent La Placa and George Howard, a Chicago attorney, represents Barnes.

Fitzgerald will hear the case in a dimly lighted fourth-floor courtroom in the Criminal Courts Building at 26th and California in Chicago.

BRUSHING UP the grandstand at Arlington Park Race Track in preparation for the April 14 opening is part of an over-all effort to lighten and brighten the facility for this year's season. Track officials are hoping that despite the early spring dates assigned them by the former Illinois Racing Board, 1973 will prove to be a good year at Arlington Park.

Facilities, horses, bettors ready

Race track set for photos — and in more ways than one

by KURT BAER

Arlington Park Race Track officials say they are bent on turning a bad start into a first-place finish as the April 14 opening of the giant complex draws near.

"All we need is a break from the weather, which we didn't get last year," Tom Rivera, the track's director of publicity and advertising, said yesterday.

Last year, 32 per cent of Arlington's summer racing dates were plagued by wet track conditions. This year, with an early spring opening, weather could have an even bigger impact on attendance and racing conditions.

Next Saturday's opening has posed several problems usually unknown at Arlington, including a conflict with the Easter and Passover holidays.

The track will close April 17, the first day of Passover, and remain closed through April 20, Good Friday. Racing resumes Saturday, April 21, and will continue, six days a week, through the season's close, now set for July 24.

THE SPRING dates ordered by former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie's Illinois Racing Board have forced Arlington Park into a crash program to fully enclose its new concrete barns.

Last year, the track spent $2.7 million on new, fireproof barns and dormitories, Rivera said. This year, work has concentrated on improving the grandstand appearance, flood control in the stable area and repainting of old multi-colored wooden barns.

"We're gradually getting rid of the rainbow colors. This year we've been able to do some of the work that the grandstand has needed. So far we've used over 8,000 gallons of paint," Rivera said.

A new red-and-white plastic floor has been laid in the main room of the grandstand, seats and rails have been repainted and concession stands have been remodeled.

RIVERA SAID general concession prices will be the same as last year, although he said the track will have to "make some adjustments" in its Classic Club dining room menu.

"We're going to be doing some very innovative things with chicken."

In the backstretch, some of the 1,800 horses that will fill Arlington's stables already have begun to arrive, mostly from New Orleans.

"We have 1,800 stalls and this year we received applications (from trainers and owners) for 3,000 stalls. This tells me it's going to be an absolutely great season," Rivera said.

He attributed much of the interest in Arlington Park among horsemen this year to the hiring of a new racing secretary, Jack Meyers, from Hollywood Park in California.

Hollywood Park now is controlled by Marjorie Everett, who formerly operated Arlington Park.

"For a time it looked like we might have some trouble (getting horses) but Jack has managed to bring in some of the country's top stables," Rivera said.

MEYERS HAS rewritten Arlington's stakes schedule, which now includes 30 stakes races. The season's five biggest races, in prize money and attendance, all will be held during the second half of the season.

The $100,000 Pontiac Grand Prix will be run June 16, the $100,000 American Derby July 7, the estimated $200,000 Arlington-Washington Futurity July 14, the $100,000 Arlington Handicap July 21, and the estimated $100,000 Lassie July 24.

The opening of Interstate 90, which provides a toll-free connection between the track and downtown Chicago via the Eisenhower Expressway, and the completion of road repairs along the Northwest Tollway will encourage racing fans to drive to Arlington Park, track officials are hoping.

And the restoration of gimmick betting also is seen as a needed shot of adrenaline.

Two of the most popular forms of gimmick betting are the trifecta, where the bettor must select in order the first, second and third place horses in a race, and the quinella, where he picks the first and second horse in either order.

THE ELIMINATION of gimmick betting in the middle of the racing season last year resulted in a six per cent drop in attendance and betting last year, Rivera said.

Arlington Heights Police Sgt. Jack Weber said traffic control for the daily racing crowd will be essentially the same as it was last year, with patrolmen at the race track gates and at intersections east of the track along Euclid Avenue.

"The only thing we tentatively foresee now is the possibility of lighter crowds because of the early dates, and the possibility of inclement weather," Weber said.

New traffic lights at Euclid and Dryden also should help move traffic, he said.

"But basically our highway setup still is the same as last year. We've got the same mess at Arlington Heights and Central (roads) and we're expecting about the same traffic off the tollway."

BILLING ITSELF as this year's "Super Track," Arlington Park appears to be making a concerted effort to make 1973 a good racing season.

Track officials still are hopeful that a suit by Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott will lengthen the racing schedule here, and they believe that the reinstitution of gimmick betting and the grandstand's facelift should reverse last year's declining attendance and betting figures.

Attendance at Arlington Park dropped from 1,139,184 patrons in 1971, to 979,001 last year. Total dollars bet fell from $12,439,330 in 1971, to $105,349,875.

The biggest uncertainty remains the weather. As Arlington Park Pres. John Loomer put it recently, "If you want a sure bet this year, bet that everyone here has everything crossed, just for a sunny spring."

Mrs. Edfors 'insane'; she won't stand trial

Mrs. Elaine Edfors, the accused slayer of her two daughters found beaten to death Feb. 26 in their Rolling Meadows home, yesterday was declared insane and ordered returned to the Department of Mental Health to be committed to a state hospital.

Circuit Court Judge Louis Garippo issued the judgment yesterday after reviewing results of court-ordered psychiatric tests performed on the 34-year-old woman.

The ruling means Mrs. Edfors will not stand trial for the double murders.

"It was a judgment, not a verdict, returned by the court," according to William Norris, one of two Cook County state's attorneys prosecuting the case. "We were satisfied with the judgment. In light of the evidence available, it was the only fair judgment that could be returned," he said.

During earlier pre-trial actions, Mrs. Edfors pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity in connection with the case, a spokesman for the state's attorney's office said.

MRS. EDFORS had been charged for the bludgeoning deaths of her 8 and 9-year-old daughters Pamela and Debbie, more than a month ago. The girls were found on the bloodstained floor of their home at 3600 Jay Ln. by their father Thomas.

Both girls died of head injuries apparently inflicted by blows from a hammer. Mrs. Edfors was found lying unconscious alongside the girls with apparent self-inflicted cuts on her wrists and throat.

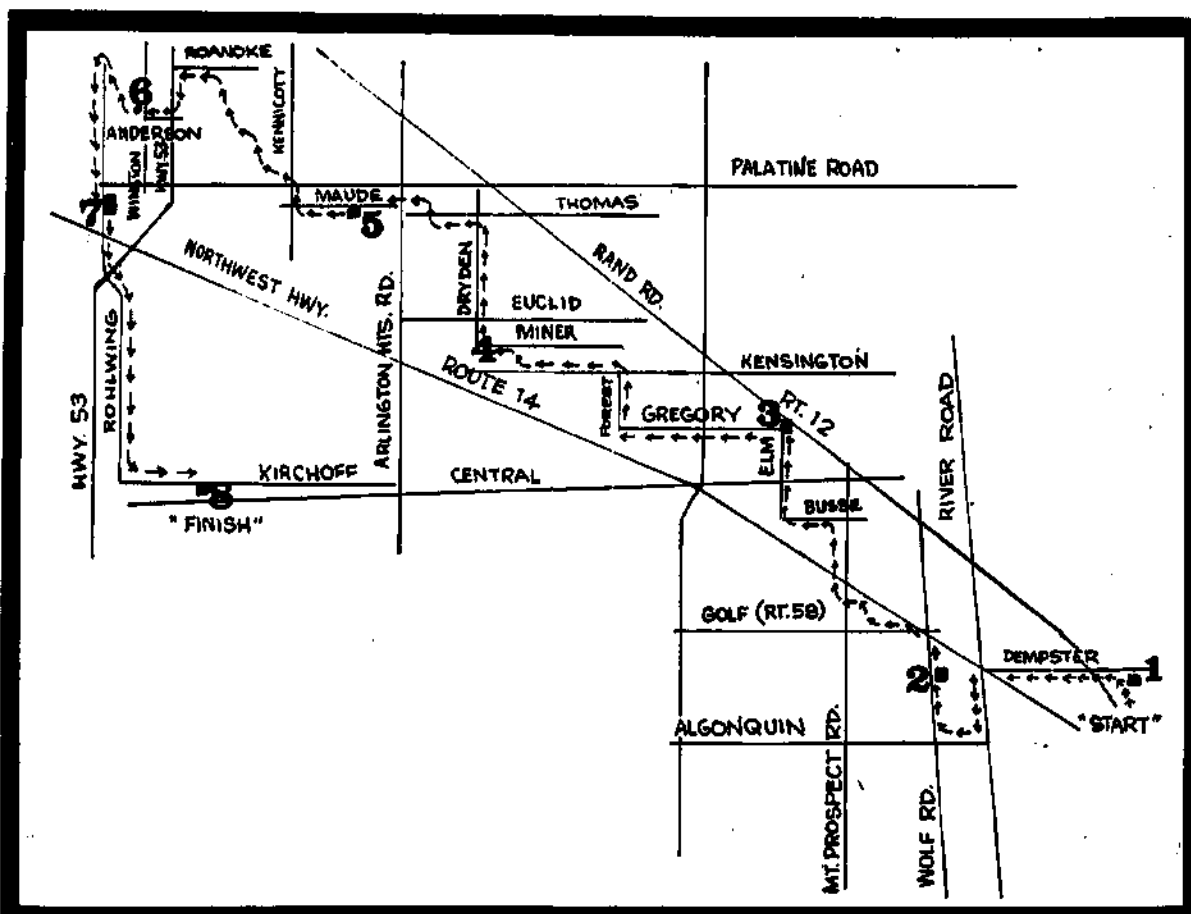

Mrs. Edfors was held without bond in Cook County Jail until the ruling yesterday. Norris said the Department of Mental Health will decide the hospital to which the woman will be taken.

RIDING INTO the 1973 thoroughbred season opener at Arlington Park, jockeys and trainers have begun to take up quarters in the race track's backstretch. The old multi-colored barns have been repainted white, and new traffic controls have been imposed in an effort to restore a more pastoral appearance to the vast stable area that will be home for 1,800 horses and nearly 1,000 jockeys, trainers and stable hands.

SUNDAY'S 20-MILE "Hike for Your Neighbor" will be broken up by eight checkpoints. After registering at 7 a.m. the hike will start at 8 a.m. at Maine East High School in Park Ridge (1); the hikers will proceed to West Park Field House in Des Plaines (2); then to Gregory School in Mount Prospect (3); Miner Junior High School in Arlington Heights (4); Hasbrook Field House in Arlington Heights (5); Maple Park in Palatine (6); Christ Lutheran Church in Palatine (7); and end at the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows (8).

Committee working out blood program details

Plans are soon to be outlined for a Buffalo Grove guaranteed blood replacement program. A citizens' committee will work out the details for the scheduled blood drive.

Joining several other Northwest suburbs, Buffalo Grove has agreed to participate in a program conducted by the North Suburban Association of Health Resources (NSAHR).

The NSAHR program provides free blood replacement anywhere in the country for all residents of the participating community, if four per cent of the residents donate at least one pint of blood each year.

Don Schindler, village health officer, said yesterday the citizens' committee will get together in the near future to discuss when and how the drive will be conducted.

THE COMMUNITY program operates on the same principle as blood replacement programs currently staged by many local fraternal, church and civic organizations. In addition to the community guaranteed blood replacement program, there is an individual guaranteed blood replacement program.

If Buffalo Grove should fall short of its four per cent goal in the community program, the groups and individuals who donated blood would continue to be eligible for free replacement even though the village at-large would not.

Although the eventual community commitment is for 4 per cent of the village, the free blood replacement program would go into effect as soon as half of one per cent of the residents had donated. The community must then donate blood at the rate of one per cent per quarter.

The Buffalo Grove Village Board voted to participate in the NSAHR program last December. Members of the citizens' committee who will organize the local drive are Dr. Harold Gianopoulos, chairman; Sylvia Bogart, Burton Chotiner, Carol Lauter and Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter.

Two candidates for Dist. 23 school board

Sallyann Okuno... 'We have to decide now what to do about boundary changes'

Sallyann Okuno believes it is hard to pass a school referendum. Just mention a rise in taxes, she says, and people automatically shake their heads no.

But that wouldn't stop Mrs. Okuno. If she were convinced Prospect Heights Dist. 23 needed a tax increase she would work to see that it was passed.

"We'd just have to push for it," she said. "We'd have to give voters all the facts."

Currently, Dist. 23 officials are studying what can be done to solve an overcrowding problem in the district. One possible solution is building a sixth school and adding to John Muir School on Drake Terrace.

"We definitely have to decide just how many new students are expected to move into the district in the next few years. We'll probably have to make boundary changes for the problem at Muir," said Mrs. Okuno, 32, currently Muir PTA president. "If all the building that is anticipated is definite and our other schools are at full capacity, then I would favor building a sixth school."

John Moss Jr. of Prospect Heights was a third candidate for the three-year term, but he announced yesterday he has withdrawn from the race for business reasons.

Today the Herald carries interviews with the two candidates for the three-year terms.

Mrs. Okuno thinks builders bringing large developments into a school district should donate "something" to offset the cost of the sudden increase in the district's enrollment. She also believes that new homes should be placed on the tax rolls as soon as they are purchased, instead of the one to two-year wait that currently exists.

THE MOTHER of three children, Mrs. Okuno has served on the Muir PTA for three years. A registered nurse, she also has served on a PTA council consisting of representatives of Dist. 23 and Wheeling Dist. 21. She lives at 2 Garden Court.

Here are her views on other school issues:

- Teacher bargaining: "I think they deserve at least a cost of living raise. I'm not familiar with the merit system in the district."

- Open School Plan: "It lets kids develop so much better and they can work at their own pace. I don't think there are bad points, although some parents say discipline is a problem. If every program was perfect, it would be stagnant because you wouldn't need to improve it."

- Unit districts (grades K through 12): "I don't feel I know enough about them. I am more in favor of keeping the district the way it is, kindergarten through eighth grade."

- Extracurricular activities for students: "I think they're fantastic. I think children are able to use their creative abilities and learn to use their free time wisely."

- Education for gifted children: "I think there should be something for them. The worst thing is to put a child in the classroom and give them no challenge."

- Special education: "I think the taxpayers have an obligation to provide it."

- Drainage problems at Muir School:

Sallyann Okuno

"I think it would be a hazard to put a retention basin on the school site. But I think it's a crime to have a playground and have to tell kids they can't play there because it's always under water."

Alan Krinsky... 'Do the best you can with what you have. That's all you can do'

"Do the best you can with what you have," is Alan Krinsky's credo for school board members.

"That's really all you can do," said the only incumbent in the Prospect Heights Dist. 23 School Board race. And this time Krinsky, of Arlington Heights, is determined to do the best he can to get elected and avoid the defeat he faced in last year's Dist. 23 election.

"I took it for granted last time that I would win. I'm campaigning harder this time," said Krinsky, 35, who served a three-year term on the board before he lost the 1972 election. Six months ago he was appointed to the board to fill a vacancy.

As a board member, Krinsky thinks it's his job to make sure the children in his district get the best education possible.

reach his full potential," said the father of two. "I would like to see more education geared to the individual. And I would like to see the schools used more — 12 months a year, 18 hours a day. They should be used by somebody — children, adults, whoever."

Krinsky is not afraid of controversy. He speaks out for what he believes. Earlier this year he urged the Dist. 23 Board to protest any efforts by Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 to form its own unit district (grades K-12).

Dist. 59 residents have been talking about forming an all Elk Grove Village unit district, which would combine Dist.

59 elementary schools with two High School Dist. 214 schools.

"The fact is that one elementary district wants to divide into a unit, taking the wealth from High School Dist. 214," Krinsky said. "This creates an unfair advantage to the children who will be attending the other schools in Dist. 214."

One issue facing Dist. 23 Board members now and in the future is overcrowding in the schools. John Muir School is near the enrollment breaking point and officials expect all schools to be overcrowded by fall, 1974.

"The immediate solution is to change boundaries in the schools and I assume

IF A NEW SCHOOL is to be built, Krinsky would recommend that the district hire a consultant to make sure building deadline and details are met by the architect and contractor. This would help avoid building problems Dist. 23 encountered during its last construction project, according to Krinsky.

A scrap iron and metal dealer, Krinsky, of 2027 Rosehill, owns his own firm. He attended the University of Illinois for three years. While on the school board he has served on the finance, planning and negotiations committee.

Here are his views on other school issues:

- Teacher contract bargaining: "I am in favor of closed meetings. Before, when we had private meetings, we have always been able to negotiate with teachers in five or six sessions. I think open bargaining hardens the positions. Last year when we bargained openly we had to settle it all in a closed session anyway. Teachers didn't get more than they would have in private."

- Merit pay for teachers: "I'm in favor of the merit system. I think it's good that if a teacher is willing to do an excellent job then he gets excellent pay. With merit, teachers have a little more incentive to produce."

- School financing: "I feel basically the closer the money comes to the school district the less money you have to pay to get it there. The money comes out of your pocket no matter how you get it. If we got the money through federal channels we would probably lose 30 cents on the dollar."

Alan Krinsky

• Extracurricular programs for students "Education is the greatest thing in the world but you can't bombard students five days a week. They have to have a break, and these extracurricular activities are a good thing."

Local officials urge probe of Centex tax assessments

by STEVE BROWN

Local officials called for examination of county tax assessment procedures yesterday in the wake of disclosures land in Schaumburg and Elk Grove industrial parks received massive tax breaks.

The disclosures, made by the Better Government Association, revealed landowners in Schaumburg and Elk Grove may be saving $300,000 in taxes each year through assessment cuts made by the Cook County Board of Appeals.

The big tax breaks have been linked to Chicago Ald. Thomas Keane and his brother George (who until last year headed the county board of appeals), and other business and political figures.

The tax cuts were given for a 171-acre parcel of land in Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park and 93 acres in the Elk Grove-Centex Industrial Park.

In both cases, the assessments were cut by more than 80 per cent, according to the BGA/Chicago Sun-Times report.

A MAJOR PORTION of the Centex-Schaumburg property is owned by Chicago attorney Jack N. Pritzker. While he could not be reached for comment, a spokesman in his office claimed the reports Pritzker used his friendship with Keane to lower taxes was untrue.

The spokesman said the appeal for reductions in tax assessments was made after County Assessor P. J. Cullerton had increased the assessments in 1969.

"There are several other parcels which we received reductions on in this area," he said. The spokesman declined to identify the parcels of land or specify how much the assessments were cut.

Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher said he has no direct knowledge of any assessment reductions and said he did not want to make any additional comments until more detailed information is available.

"I certainly hope that all developments in Schaumburg are going on the tax rolls at a fair value," he added.

While Atcher and Pritzker are the owners of a 43-acre parcel of land near Schaumburg and Meacham Roads, Atcher said the property has not received any tax breaks.

COUNTY RECORDS show the land was assessed at about $13,800 last year, an increase of several thousand dollars over the 1969 assessments.

Pritzker, whose family controls the Hyatt Corp., owns several other Schaumburg land parcels, but tax records for those could not be obtained yesterday.

Elk Grove Village President Charles Zettek said he plans to take any and all action necessary to correct the situation. "The board will do whatever is required to bring the assessed valuation up to what it should be," he said.

Officials in both the U.S. Attorney's office and the Internal Revenue Service said an investigation into the BGA's charges are now underway. No details of those probes were available.

The BGA reported that while Illinois law requires the board of appeals to specify why the assessment cuts were granted, no reasons for the board's action could be found.

Pritzker has been linked to other tax breaks given to the Hyatt Regency O'Hare hotel. The board of appeals cuts the assessment on the Pritzker owned facility by $2.7 million last year.

The land for the hotel was purchased from the late David S. Chesrow and the late William Lancaster, both men closely associated with Keane.

The Keane brothers and Chesrow are among the owners of a 78-acre parcel of land, known as the Haskins property, on Palatine Road, in Hoffman Estates.

Village clerks report April 17 registrations

More than 6,800 Wheeling residents and 7,180 Buffalo Grove residents are registered and eligible to vote in upcoming village elections April 17.

In Wheeling, this figure represents an increase of 212 registered voters since the last election in November. Figures on the increase of voters in Buffalo Grove are not available.

Clerks from both villages said most of those who have recently registered are not young people. They said the majority of voters who registered were people who were new to the village.

Buffalo Grove Village Clerk Verna Clayton said she thought almost all eligible adults in the village had registered to vote. She said there was no last-minute rush for people to register before the official deadline.

In Wheeling, however, about 50 persons showed up to register on the last night before registration closed.

Voter registration in Cook County will open after the April 17 elections. In Lake County registration will open April 5.

John Moss Jr. withdraws from school race

John Moss Jr. announced yesterday he has withdrawn as a candidate in the race for the Prospect Heights Dist. 23 School Board.

Moss, a candidate for one of two three-year terms, said he is not running because "business responsibilities are going to preclude the time necessary to serve on the school board. It's with reluctance that I resign."

Moss said he was notified yesterday of a change in his job responsibilities. He is employed by Allstate Insurance Co., Northbrook.

Since the deadline for withdrawing from the race was last Tuesday, Moss' name will still be on the ballot in the April 14 election. Should he win, Moss said he will resign immediately. The school board then must appoint someone to fill a one-year term until the next election.

Candidates for the two three-year terms are incumbent Alan Krinsky of Arlington Heights and Sallyann Okuno of Prospect Heights. Vincent Battaglia of Arlington Heights is opposed for a one-year seat on the board.

CRYSTAL BALLS JUST DON'T SEEM TO GRAB US

We read a good deal about advertising research and are frequently reminded of some mystical incantation—figures mysteriously projected, multiplied, divided, contorted to form a supposedly attractive story.

Northwest suburban integration slow but successful

Progress toward integrating the predominantly white Northwest suburbs is slow, according to officials who have been helping blacks find homes outside Chicago.

But those black families finding housing in the suburbs have done so with great success and have found community attitudes changing in their favor, they said.

According to Paul A. Epstein, executive director of Home Investments Fund, a non-profit organization that assists blacks in obtaining housing throughout the Chicago area, blacks still comprise a tiny portion of the suburban population.

"We're saying there has been a small amount of progress, much less than we anticipated, in terms of the number of black families who have actually moved to the suburbs in the past four years," Epstein said.

THE ORGANIZATION held a press conference yesterday on the fifth anniversary of passage of the Fair Housing Act. April has been designated Fair Housing Month in Illinois by Gov. Daniel Walker.

"A major point of our study," said Epstein, "is that real estate brokers, home builders and bankers do not lose the patronage of their customers," if they deal with these families.

Epstein said a study conducted by his organization in Park Ridge shows that the attitudes of persons in that community are becoming more liberal in the acceptance of blacks. He said these attitudes are probably held by a like percentage of persons living in other suburban communities.

"We have found a good attitude among residents in the communities where we have found housing for black families," said Epstein. "But we are still finding a reluctance on the part of real estate brokers. They are not cooperating as they should be," he said.

Epstein said the best way to improve this negative feeling is for people selling their homes to make sure they are listed on an equal-opportunity basis.

EPSTEIN said his organization has helped about 300 families find housing in the suburbs in the past four years but that, according to the 1970 U.S. Census, the number of blacks in suburban communities still is small.

"What we're talking about is opening up the suburbs for minorities," Epstein said. "The census shows there is only a fraction of 1 per cent blacks in the suburbs."

In the 10 communities in the immediate Northwest suburban area, he said, there was a total of 193 black persons living here in 1970. The most blacks lived in Des Plaines, 47, or .08 per cent of that city's population, and the least number of blacks lived in Buffalo Grove, 3, or .03 per cent. Only seven blacks lived in Wheeling in 1970 and anywhere from 14 to 27 blacks lived in each of the surrounding communities.

The Home Investments Fund helps blacks who either are looking for a source to buy a house in the suburbs, need help with obtaining a mortgage or financing and general advice. Volunteers living in the suburbs help those moving in to adjust.

Double-dipping: a case study

Critics of state government who are looking for blatant examples of the problems created by double-dipping among state legislators would be advised to consider the case of two suburban state legislators.

The two represent the Fifth District, which includes a portion of Des Plaines within its boundaries.

They are Howard R. Mohr, R-Forest Park, who is an assistant senate majority leader, and state representative Jack B. Williams, D-Franklin Park. Williams is a freshman legislator, while Mohr's been in the Senate for 10 years.

Nothing's wrong with that. However, Williams has been the mayor of Franklin Park since 1969, while Mohr's served as mayor of Forest Park since 1963 (Forest Park's four or five miles south of Franklin Park).

This is what's called double-dipping, when a public official holds two or more public offices at the same time. Critics point out that a man serving in one job can use the other position to help in the first position.

There's nothing inherently wrong with double dipping, but there's always the lurking threat of some special interest legislation — and, indeed, that's what happened in the case of Messrs. Williams and Mohr.

The two legislators are sponsoring legislation to construct a railroad overpass for the Indiana Harbor Beltline railroad in Franklin Park.

Oh, there's apparently good reason for the overpass. The rail line is heavily used, and Fullerton Avenue becomes a nightmare when railroad trains block traffic.

But you have to wonder why Franklin Park should benefit in particular, because a number of other communities in the Northwest suburbs suffer from similar traffic problems.

Included in the bill are provisions which would have state-wide application. But the thrust of it is directed to one community, and that's the result of two suburban mayors working for their communities' narrow interests.

Perhaps, if Des Plaines is to obtain traffic relief in its downtown, its mayor should be elected to the state legislature. Likewise, other communities probably should run their leaders for the legislature.

In fact, this is one reason why we did not endorse Roland Meyer, Rolling Meadows mayor, when he sought a legislative seat last spring. We felt such an election might create the kind of problem which Mohr and Williams have offered.

Currently there's no state law which prevents this kind of dual job-holding which creates the kind of problem which Mohr and Williams have created. Such a law is needed. Without it, legislators are going to continue to promote the narrow needs of one group of people or community (regardless of how legitimate those needs) and at the detriment of the larger, public interest. And that's not the point of being a legislator.

'National' court?

One of the basic rights of Americans, while not specifically defined in the Constitution and never exercised by the vast majority of citizens, but valued nevertheless, is the right to "take it all the way up to the Supreme Court."

A proposal to establish a new court — a "National Court of Appeals" — just below the Supreme Court but above all others would seriously curtail this right and impair the integrity of the Supreme Court as well, critics of the plan say.

The proposal was made recently by a study group of noted lawyers and law professors, appointed by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger to make recommendations for easing the growing burden of cases being appealed to the Supreme Court each year. The number has increased from about 1,400 cases to more than 4,500 annually in the past 20 years.

The National Court of Appeals would be made up of seven members drawn from the 11 federal Circuit Courts, who would serve staggered three-year terms. It would screen all cases sent up for review by the Supreme Court, forwarding only those it considered most important.

The other cases it would either decide itself, deny a review or send back to a lower court for further adjudication.

But to insure that the authority of the Supreme Court would not be undermined, the high court would still have the ultimate power of review. It could reach down and pluck up any case it wanted to hear, whether passed on by the new court or not.

And here is where the critics seem to have their most telling argument.

To exercise its supreme judicial function, the Supreme Court would have to know what was going on in the National Court of Appeals and to familiarize itself with all the cases that came before that court.

Yet that is precisely what it is doing now, as it selects some 150 cases to hear and deliver opinions upon each session out of the thousands that are appealed to it from lower courts.

If it no longer did so, if it relinquished or delegated even part of its constitutionally established duties to another court, it would no longer be the "supreme" court.

Police orders challenged

Dear Charles Zettek, Elk Grove Village president:

An incident which has occurred not to myself, but to one of my friends, ended up concerning the rest of her family. What happened was not understood by her family or other people whom I have talked to. This incident occurred about two weeks ago when she was in an accident because the brakes in the car she was driving had failed to work. In order to drive the car again the brakes had to be fixed. Her father parked the car in the driveway and decided to jack up the back end of the car and remove the back wheels. This was done so that the car would not roll down their slanted driveway. A few days later the lady across the street from them called the police and complained about the car sitting in the driveway. The police came and gave the family a warning to remove their car from the driveway within a week or the car would be towed away. My question and the question of many other people bothered by this incident is: "What right do the police have to tell these people to remove their car from their own driveway?" Is there any law which states that a car in need of repair, that is being repaired, by a family member cannot be in their own driveway? Where else are these people supposed to bring their car in order for it to be fixed by a family member? Do the police do this to only please other people if they do not like what they see in their neighbor's yard?

In conclusion, I feel that the police have no right to make these people have their car removed. They are paying taxes to live there, and therefore should be able to put anything in it which they need. If it were something that is disturbing the neighborhood, there then would be quite an excuse for the item to be removed. In the incident I have written about I do not see any reason why the car is unable to stay on their own property.

Candidates speak

The chief plank in the platform of the Republican slate for Elk Grove Township offices is that there will be no tax increase. I should hope not. Here are two of the reasons I should hope not:

— The township assessor no longer assesses real estate and personal property, yet his office is budgeted with $28,000 for this fiscal year. The only remaining function the assessor has is to forward building permits to Cook County, a job that was paid in the past at $50 a month. There is no need for a tax hike when the assessor has $27,400 extra to play with.

— The township supervisor was just approved a 57 per cent raise in salary, to $11,000. Where is respect for the 5.5 per cent wage price guideline? Why does the supervisor get paid so much more than President Zettek in Elk Grove, or President Teichert in Mount Prospect, when they work longer, with more duties, and more pressure than the supervisor? Why does the Elk Grove supervisor deserve more than all the other township supervisors in this area? With salary increases like this, I should hope they could promise no tax hike in the coming years.

The chief plank in the opponent's platform, that of independent candidates Pahl, Rettberg, Maddock and Sass, calls for the "phasing out of the township form of government." Much more than "no tax increase," this promises tax cuts. As more of the township functions are phased out, there will be less need to levy for revenue. Ultimately, phasing out will lead to abolishment, which will mean no township tax.

It seems to me that clear thinking individuals will allow that NO TAX is better than "no tax hike," provided equivalent services are still received. The independent's claim that they favor the responsible phasing out of the township government means just that: no phasing out will be done until arrangements are made for proper transfer of services.

The independents do not condone the big salaries for the assessor and supervisor of this dying government, and we urge citizens who desire economic efficiency in their government to protest these excessive salaries with us.

Backs Hoffman Estates candidate

The voting records from the last Hoffman Estates Park District election and referendum show that most of the eligible voters failed to exercise their voting privilege. Of those persons who did vote, the records reveal that organized sections in Hoffman Estates successfully managed to get their candidate in office plus defeating the indoor pool referendum by a mere 61 votes while thousands of eligible voters had other things to do than vote.

Again this year the citizens south of Golf Road have no representation on this board of commissioners for the Hoffman Estates Park District, nor do we even have a candidate in this election! Still each year I hear the same people condemning our park district because of the lack of facilities and programs compared with neighboring park districts.

Since most of our citizens never attend a park district meeting or understand the complex problems confronting our commissioners, I strongly urge the voters to support a candidate who is familiar with both the park district and community problems — not a candidate who appears at election time with wild promises.

In my judgment, George Rush is the only candidate with the proper qualifications for this seat. He has attended many park district meetings with worthy proposals and recommendations, and also is the only candidate to help me during the last referendum. In community affairs, he has unselfishly volunteered his service to many organizations and has proved to be a dedicated and capable leader as indicated by the offices he has held. He isn't just talk, he nets results and gets the job done. He believes in rep-

Praising a letter

Amen.

It was a pleasure to read a letter written by a well adjusted woman, rather than an irrational female.

Sharon Angeletti's letter conveyed the thinking, I hope, of today's modern Christian woman. Live and let live!

I wrote a letter very similar to hers last week, after reading LaVerne's nonsense and the horrible murder of the two little girls. However, I decided to keep my opinion to myself, until today. Sharon's letter was perfect, to the point and covered every subject beautifully. So I felt I had to openly pat her on the back and thank her.

As the mother of five, college educated and a "sometime" money earner, I believe life is beautiful, but not if you're unwanted.

She's lost her intuition

My woman's intuition is so bad that it's worse than none at all and I don't understand that because my mother's was so good it was spooky. Hers worked perfectly in everything from being a fine judge of people to knowing when the potatoes were done without testing them.

Not me.

When I was nine years old we moved to another state and for a new friend with nice eyes I picked the only kid in school with lice. And I tell about potatoes by their smell — when a terrible stink starts coming from the kitchen I instinctively know I've burned them again.

My intuition also causes me to get lost in big buildings and stand in the wrong line at check-out counters.

A few weeks ago I was in a big new office building for the first time and when I was ready to leave my instinct told me to turn right to get to the elevator that had brought me up from the lobby. So I turned right, got in a service elevator and ended up in the boiler room.

As far as getting into line at the supermarket is concerned, my intuition leads me to the wrong one even after I've surveyed the situation to see which checker is fastest and has a speedy bag boy in attendance. When I get there, the bag boy is called to the next aisle and the checker has to inventory her cash. And then her cash register runs out of tape.

My wonderful intuition is also why I'm in on the meat boycott this week whether I like it or not.

A few months ago I could have gotten a hind quarter of beef for 69 cents a pound but my intuition cried, "No, no, meat prices can't go any higher, why don't you wait until beef goes on sale."

That's how come I laughed until I cried last week when the President prefaced his price freeze announcement by saying that he realized most people were having a hard time trying to make both ends meet. Because of my intuition I haven't been able to make even one end meet for the past six weeks and I'm getting almighty tired of eggs. Which I hear are full of cholesterol.

When I switched to tuna fish for protein, I instinctively chose the brand recalled by the Food and Drug Administration, so then I had to switch to peanut butter. But peanuts in any form bring out the German in me and I get a terrible craving for beer. And a peanut butter sandwich and a six-pack of beer for breakfast causes the boss to tell me I'm fired if I come to work drunk any more.

About the only non-meat form of protein I haven't tried is the shampoo and hair conditioner, but I'm experimenting with a Protein 41 cream sauce right now. At least I'd have a healthy head of cholesterol.

Besides, my woman's intuition tells me it would be delicious.

'Zoom' letter-writing praised

The Herald's editorial of March 19, "Zoom's won part of battle," was gratefully received in my home. In it you suggested that perhaps "the President of the United States decides what he likes and doesn't like on TV, and uses the weight of his office to make TV conform." I agree.

I was quite disturbed when I first read that "Zoom" was to be cancelled as part of the federal budget cutback. For the children to have to be deprived of this interesting and creative program seemed to be one thing too many. Haven't we Americans sacrificed enough at the altar of presidential prerogative?

It does seem many of the national issues today are being settled or manipulated by presidential prerogative instead of by our legislators, who by virtue of our democratic republic form of government should be more subject to the people's wishes. The issues to which I refer are the FBI investigation of the Watergate affair, the death penalty, the peace treaty, amnesty, rebuilding North Vietnam, economic controls and the budget cut-backs.

It also seems to me the presidential prerogative is becoming more and more unmitigated presidential power.

The writings of John Locke, a late 17th century political philosopher, influenced many of the founding fathers of this nation and thereby affected the content of the U.S. Constitution. Locke has this to say about prerogative: "Prerogative can be nothing but the people's permitting their rulers to do several things of their own free choice where the law was silent, and sometimes, too, against the direct letter of the law, for the public good, and their acquiescing in it when so done. But if there comes to be a question between the executive power and the people about a thing claimed as a prerogative, the tendency of the exercise of such prerogative to the good or hurt of the people will easily decide that question."

From my observation, "the good or the hurt of the people" is not deciding the question between the executive and the people. The question can be resolved only by the people making known their wishes in no uncertain terms. I urge everyone to respond to the President and legislators according to his or her own interpretation of "good or hurt" and to do it as well as the children did in responding in protest to save "Zoom."

Business Today

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — "People — especially young people — no longer buy clothes because they need them — they buy to express their personality," says Francis C. Rooney, Jr., President of Melville Shoe Corp.

After observing this phenomenon, Rooney and other shrewd merchandisers, evolved a new concept of store operation — store clusters in shopping centers.

A cluster means the operation of up to six separate stores in a single shopping center by one large merchandising outfit. In Melville's case, it can mean a Thom McAn shoe store, a Miles shoe store, a Vanguard store, which sells way-out men's shoes, a Chess King exotic apparel shop for boys and its feminine counterpart Foxmoor, and a CVS health and beauty aids shop all in one shopping center but totally separated.

OTHER LARGE COMPANIES going into store clusters are Woolworth's, which also owns Kinney Shoes and Susie's Casuals, Brown Shoe Co., Gamble-Skogmo, Cook's United and Stop 'n Shop. The combinations include supermarkets, drug stores, discount department stores, do-it-yourself tool shops, apparel shops and many others.

"Today consumers are looking for ideas rather than products. When they find an idea that strikes their fancy, they want a wide choice. That's what makes the specialty store cluster work."

Others said that may not be the whole story, that the trend on the part of males to using clothes as a means of self expression is as interesting a social phenomenon as it is a merchandising trend. They suggest it's a throwback to past centuries when Polonius's dictum in "Hamlet" that "the apparel oft proclaims the man" was taken seriously. In those days, the human male wore the gilded plumage just as the male does in the kingdom of the birds.

Regardless of that, Rooney said the store cluster idea spawned by the clothes expression trend makes economic sense. It can increase a company's business in a single shopping center amazingly. This is particularly important, Rooney said, because the availability of good shopping center sites is decreasing.

"AND IT GIVES US considerable clout in dealing with shopping center operators to go to them with an offer to lease six stores instead of one or two," he added.

Rooney is shooting at a goal of $1 billion a year in sales for Melville by 1975. He plans to achieve this through new store openings and acquisitions. He bought Metro Pant Co. and Clinton drug stores last year and ended 1972 with 2,417 retail outlets.

Rooney now is ready to invade Europe. Melville expects to open its first retail shops in Europe some time this year. Rooney says American merchandising firms have only scratched the surface of the European market potential.

Layoffs, belt tightening hitting brokerages, too

by FRANK W. SLUSSER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wall Street brokerages, faced with growing public mistrust of the stock market and shrinking profits, are quietly tightening their belts in serious cost crises. There have been some layoffs.

The stock markets are losing customers and mutual fund redemptions are at an all-time high. The condition of the economy is uncertain.

The New York Stock Exchange reported recently it lost 800,000 individual customers last year, the first time in a decade the exchange has not increased business in the individual sector. The picture was the same on the American Stock Exchange.

Mutual fund redemptions in 1972 reached an all-time high of $1.7 billion, according to the Investment Company Institute. Individuals were cashing in more than buying, in apparent distrust of the stock market.

MERRILL LYNCH, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, the nation's largest brokerage, initiated a cost-cutting program last year and "we've redoubled our efforts recently," according to a spokesman.

He said "some individuals have been let go," but said this was not an "across the board action." Other Wall Street sources said there have been around 100 layoffs at Merrill Lynch.

Carl Michaels, vice president of Don Howard Personnel Inc., said "quite a few Wall Street firms have a freeze on middle and lower management spots, and in some other lower categories."

"There have been some layoffs," Michaels said. "Some have been in research departments, some in portfolio departments. But the good, qualified analyst with good contacts who can bring in the institutional dollar can still name his own price."

Ask The IRS

Q) If I designate $1 of my tax to the Presidential Election Campaign Fund, will it change any of the figures on my tax return?

A) No. If you designate $1 ($2 if married filing jointly) to the fund by completing and attaching Form 4875 to your return, it will not change any of the figures on your tax return. In other words, the tax due IRS, or, if applicable, the tax refund the IRS owes you, will not be changed.

Q) Is the cost of sending my child to kindergarten while I go to work a deductible child care expense?

A) Yes. If you itemize your deductions, expenses for nursery school or day care for pre-school dependent children may be deducted subject to certain limitations if they are paid to enable you to be gainfully employed.

Q) What about the cost of meals or education at a nursery home or kindergarten — are they included in the child care deduction?

A) Benefits incident to child care, such as food or education, are not child care expenses. However, where the manner of providing the care is such that the payment covers other incidental benefits inseparably a part of the care, the entire cost will ordinarily be considered as being for care. Benefits will not be considered as inseparable if the expense includes education in the first or higher grade level. Such expenses must be apportioned between the part that represents the cost of education, and that part that represents care of the child.

Q) What form should I use to compute my child care deduction?

A) IRS Form 2441, "Expenses for Household and Dependent Care Services," or equivalent computation detail should be submitted with your return, if you deduct child care expenses. Use the order blank on the back of your tax form package to obtain a copy.

IRS Publication 503, "Child Care and Dependent Care," describes the limitations on the deduction. It's available free by writing your Internal Revenue district office.

Q) My son is a full-time student. How much money can he earn before I can no longer claim him as a dependent?

A) Regardless of his age, if your son was a full-time student for some part of each of any five calendar months (not necessarily consecutive) of 1972, or was less than 19 years old at the end of the year, you can claim him as a dependent no matter how much money he made. You also must meet all the other dependency tests, including furnishing over one-half of your son's total support.

Q) I recently filed my tax return. When will I get my refund?

A) If your return is complete and accurate, you should have your refund within 4-6 weeks from the day you filed.

Should your refund be delayed beyond this period, wait 10 weeks from the date of filing your return before contacting the IRS about it. This will allow time for the IRS to contact you in case there are errors in your return such as errors in arithmetic or missing Social Security Numbers, W-2's or schedules.

She's got her hands full...of money

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

Betty Schlaver handles the money in her family. Assistant cashier at First National Bank of Mount Prospect in Randhurst Center, she's been in banking about 14 years.

For 16 years Betty stuck strictly to homemaking and supporting her husband, Clarence (C.O.) Schlaver, in his activities as village president. (C.O.'s now secretary for the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce, having retired as executive editor of Quill, magazine for professional journalists.)

"I believe a woman's first duty is to her family," Betty said. But she thinks it's "just fine" if a woman can successfully manage both job and family. She does, now that her three children are grown.

A bookkeeper before her marriage, Betty returned to the working world at Mount Prospect State Bank because its convenient hours helped her adjust to being employed again and enabled her to be at home when the kids needed her. She worked and trained at that bank for three years in bookkeeping, general books, savings and as a secretary, teller and note teller. She's deeply grateful for the experience gained there, she said.

WHEN FIRST National opened at Randhurst, Mrs. Schlaver went to work there as a teller. Since then she's been in installment loans and other jobs before becoming assistant cashier.

In the early days of marriage, Betty devoted most of her energies to rearing sons David and Paul and daughter Marcia. David, now a priest, is coordinator of student volunteer services at Notre Dame University. The other two children are married.

While a full-time homemaker, Betty volunteered in the teacher's aid program at St. Raymond School and in the Mother's Club at Notre Dame High School. She belonged to PTA and served as board member and secretary for Northwest Suburban Aid for the Retarded. She also helped in Camp Fire and was a Cub Scout den mother.

Those activities now behind her, Betty currently shares a membership with Clarence in the Mount Prospect Historical Society, but "he's the active one," she says. She is active in Mount Prospect Business and Professional Women's Club, which she has served as president, and speaks proudly of its programs and philanthropic activities.

FOR 20 YEARS, this golden oak secretary gathered dust in the Schlaver basement. Betty Schlaver offered it to change her mind. "Over my dead body" is Betty's her daughter, Marcia, but was turned down. Now that laughing response.

THOUGH SHE now works full-time in the business world, Betty still enjoys her home and family life. At present she's redecorating their modern ranch style house, located next to St. Raymond Church. When the Schlavers first moved to Mount Prospect from Chicago 26 years ago, they purchased a remodeled 10-room farm home in what was a town of only 4,000 residents. They relished its rural atmosphere, Betty said.

In those days the Schlavers liked to travel as a family, and they've toured the U.S. from coast to coast and from north to south, Betty recalled. Since then she and C.O. have been to Bermuda, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, Italy and Germany.

Today the light of her life is Matthew, 2-year-old son of the Schlavers' daughter, Marcia. With a grandma's predictable prejudice, she thinks he may be "the most remarkable child in the world."

To relax Betty Schlaver likes to sew, crochet and knit. Her handiwork includes ponchos, sweaters, dresses, rugs, afghans, coats, slipcovers and draperies. When there's time, she enjoys sitting with her 87-year-old mother and knitting.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I'm hoping you have an answer about what to do with my white fiberglass curtains which have turned grayish. I vaguely remember you said the manufacturers of this material say you can't dye them. —Mrs. Thomas W.

That you can't dye them is true, but there is something you can do. At least it has worked for some of our correspondents. Soak the curtains in a sodium perborate solution for a few minutes, then soak in a mild, lukewarm detergent solution for 30 minutes, swishing them around gently. Drain off the suds, and rinse thoroughly.

If they're still soiled, wash them once more in warm, sudsy water and rinse again. Take out gently and hang them over a rustproof rod or shower curtain rod. While still a little damp, put them on the windows, using your fingers to adjust the pleats, smooth the hems and sides. Remember to wash the tub thoroughly. Those little glass particles can stick to anything.

Dear Dorothy: I'm amused by the answers given to get an oversalted taste out of soup.

In my file of "Dorothy Ritz" cooking hints, I find a reader said that raw carrots boiled in oversalted soup would remove the excess salt. The use of raw carrots in boiling ham that is a bit salty follows the same procedure. What's the matter with your filing system? —Helen Farr Oops! And here I thought the filing system was working well.

Dear Dorothy: Always had trouble cleaning the tile wall in the bathroom. Finally, decided to try the windshield washer detergent which is bought by the gallon. I put some in a spray bottle and put plenty on the tile, then wiped off with a clean cloth. It was absolutely clean and shiny. Fantastic — Mrs. Addison Baron

The Lighter Side...by Dick West

Recalling Ken Maynard and Saturday matinees

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Upon learning of Ken Maynard's death a week or so ago, I began trying to compose a suitable tribute.

But each time I started, my typewriter became so drenched in nostalgia the keys stuck together.

Maynard, you see, was part of my first identity crisis. And I have been in somewhat of a quandary ever since.

Any given Saturday during the silent movie era had you chanced to pass by the Queen Theater in downtown Merkel, Tex., you would have witnessed a minor riot.

Specifically, you would have seen a group of small boys preparing to reenact the Saturday matinee.

PLAYING cowboy was always preceded by a sidewalk shoving match to determine who was Tom Mix, who was Buck Jones, who was Hoot Gibson and who was Ken Maynard.

The violence stemmed from the fact none of us could decide for more than a week at a time which of those heroic horsemen he would rather be.

The way it worked out, we always wanted to be the cowboy whose movie we had just seen.

If a Buck Jones movie was playing that Saturday, everybody wanted to be Buck Jones. This honor could only be won by shoving the other boys off the sidewalk.

Secondary disputes were then resolved by shouting "dibs on Hoot Gibson," "dibs on Tom Mix" and so on until everyone was some kind of a cowboy.

OCCASIONALLY, the Queen crossed us up by showing a Bob Steele movie on Saturday afternoon. Nobody wanted to be Bob Steele on account of he had curly hair.

So, instead of playing cowboy after the movie, we would go down to Vaughn's Meat Market and wait around for an order for spiced ham to come in so we could watch Doc Vaughn run his new electric slicing machine.

All are gone now. Maynard was the last of the big four to pass on to that Great Bunkhouse in the Sky. And I still haven't made up my mind which one was my ideal.

You can't imagine what it's been like living with this dilemma all these years... torn among divided loyalties... burdened by doubt. It's a wonder all of us original fans aren't schizoid.

What I'm leading up to here is a plea for a retrospective showing of their work — a sort of shoot-'em-up film festival at which Maynard, Mix, Gibson and Jones could be viewed side-by-side rather than a week apart.

Maybe then we could finally decide which one we would rather have been. Just in case, I'm going to practice shoving.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Is my husband sick, or just a mean, stubborn man? He was a wonderful man when I married him 25 years ago. He was wonderful to our daughters when they were children but since they became teenagers and date he doesn't talk to them or their friends.

I can't invite people or relatives over because he ignores us all. This has been going on for the past two years. For the first time in our married life I told him off in no uncertain terms six months ago. Since then he has not said one word to me. He will not go to a doctor, psychiatrist, or marriage counselor. Shall I get a divorce or shall I try a marriage counselor or psychiatrist by myself.

Dear Reader — If you're no longer able to carry on a conversation with your husband or sit in the same room with him certainly your marriage is in serious difficulty. It is possible that your husband has a problem but it would be difficult to properly evaluate the problem without knowing the total situation. This will require professional help.

It is my custom to recommend to people, as I do to you, that where a couple is having serious difficulties and one will not see a psychiatrist or marriage counselor that the other one should. By seeking professional help from a psychiatrist or other proper source at least one person can get some support through the difficult time.

Through such professional assistance it is sometimes possible to get the other person also to enter into a proper evaluation program.

I do not know how old your husband is but sometimes in both men and women as they get older their personality undergoes significant changes.

I would not advise you to get a divorce without having first sought some professional help. It could be that there are some basic psychiatric or even medical problems that deserve consideration and it's just possible that they could even be helped.

Dear Dr. Lamb — My daughter recently had her gall bladder removed. When the body has to do without the gall bladder what foods should be avoided to be more healthy? Some say they eat anything and everything. Others say certain foods hurt them. What I'd like to know is which foods should not be eaten.

Dear Reader — The gall bladder is just a storage reservoir for bile. The bile is formed by the liver. If there are no other complications, simply removing the gall bladder still permits normal drainage of bile through the bile duct into the intestine. It's just a continuous drainage rather than the intermittent drainage made possible by the gall bladder reservoir. A person who has a normal bile duct and normal liver function very likely will be able to eat most foods without any difficulties.

Individuals who continue to have some abnormal function of their bile duct or some residual abnormal liver function might have periods when insufficient amounts of bile are emptied into the small intestine. The bile serves to emulsify fats so they can be digested. Individuals who have residual problems, then after surgery often have to watch fatty and fried foods. Otherwise, they usually don't have any difficulties.

The old blind hog gets an occasional acorn and our old friend the unlucky expert sometimes stumbles into an undeserved top score.

There was nothing wrong with his early bidding. In fact, his jump to three spades was a slight underbid, but typical, since the unlucky expert always expects his partner to misplay the dummy.

North's six-heart call was some sort of obscure attempt to get to a grand slam. The unlucky expert knew this, but he also knew that he had been the first man to bid hearts while his partner would be declarer at either spades or no-trump, so he passed.

He was a little shocked when he saw the dummy, but not so shocked as to see that there was a play for an over-trick at his silly contract.

He won the club; ruffed a club with dummy's deuce of trumps; cashed the ace of trumps; came to his hand with the ace of diamonds; drew the adverse trumps while discarding three diamonds from dummy; discarded dummy's last diamond on his remaining high club and made the rest of the tricks with spades.

It was an absolute top score. A few pairs reached seven spades, down one; the rest played and made either six spades or six no-trump.

Song of the South

The magnolias are in bloom in Mississippi, and it's time to recall an 'old' land's past

by CLARE WRIGHT

The magnolias are blooming in Mississippi and the annual spring pilgrimages have begun to the stately old ante-bellum homes and plantations that are historic relics of pre-Civil War days.

"The 'old South' may be a thing of the past but each year at this traditional 'pilgrimage time' thousands of visitors flock to Mississippi to relive the era of a hundred years ago — with its spacious mansions, sweeping lawns, and leisurely way of life.

Seven Mississippi towns are opening their ante-bellum homes to visitors this spring: Natchez, now through April 8; Vicksburg, now through April 30; Jackson, now through June 20; Columbus, until April 8; Oxford, April 13-15; Hattiesburg, April 13-15; Holly Spring, April 27-28.

YOU CAN almost forget the hectic bustle of a hurried 20th Century when you take the time to tarry in the Magnolia state's sentimental remembering of a silky past.

Walk through palatial mansions where tall white columns rise almost as high as the ancient oaks that guard the lawns.

Grounds and furnishings of some of the homes are practically unchanged since they were built more than 100 years ago, and each one of the stately mansions is filled with romantic legends — and stories you won't find in history books.

If you do plan to visit Mississippi during the spring pilgrimage time, write to the Mississippi State Highway Department, P. O. Box 1850, Jackson, Miss. 39206, for an official road map of the state.

Study the map and make out an itinerary so you can visit as many of the pilgrimage towns as you can — depending on the time you have available.

OTHER interesting places to visit in Mississippi include Ackia battleground, in the northeastern part, where British troops and Chickasaw Indians defeated French troops and Choctaw Indians in 1736, and kept the French from gaining control of the entire Mississippi Valley.

Delta and Pine Land Company Plantation, one of the largest cotton plantations in the world, covers 38,000 acres near Scott.

At Biloxi you'll see Beauvoir, the last home of Jefferson Davis, which is now a museum.

Vicksburg National Military Park commemorates the siege of Vicksburg and includes a Civil War museum.

The state of Mississippi has been making a strong effort to lure tourists lately.

"TOO MANY travelers just keep 'passing through' on their way to New Orleans, Atlanta, Houston, or other points to the south," commented an official of the tourist council.

"We want them to stop and stay awhile!"

And they promise year-round recreation, history and a Gulf Coast with 26 miles of sun, sand and sea — as well as the nostalgic glimpses of a colorful, romantic past which unfolds in Mississippi's annual spring pilgrimages.

For folders on Mississippi, including "History, Heritage and Hospitality"; Mississippi Gulf Coast; Natchez Trace, and Historical Sites, write Mississippi Agricultural and Industrial Board, 1504 State Office Building, Jackson, Miss. 39206.

Lufthansa seeking stewardesses

Looking for an exciting career in travel?

Lufthansa German Airlines is in desperate need of young women between 20 and 26 to train as hostesses, according to an airline spokesman.

Starting salary is $450 a month with increases up to $720. Ground hostess jobs plus a bonus are guaranteed to stewardesses at age 30.

Girls who apply for the special training must be able to speak German and have a working knowledge in one other language.

Training of Lufthansa cabin staff members takes place in the airline's training school in Frankfurt-on-Main, and lasts seven weeks. During this time trainees are paid a salary.

At the completion of the training, cabin staff members are employed on short runs. During these first months the "fledglings" become acquainted with a large part of Europe but can also occasionally pay a flying visit to the Near East or Africa, continued the Lufthansa spokesman.

"From then on service on long-range flights starts and the world is wide open!"

Young women interested in becoming a stewardess for Lufthansa Airlines may call the Chicago office of the airline at AN 3-4888.

LONGWOOD, JUST outside Natchez, is a ghostly reminder of ante-bellum Mississippi. The octagon-shaped Moorish castle of 32 rooms is uncompleted because of the call to arms in 1861. Rusted pails of paint, brushes, and other tools remain where they were left by the workmen.

Oklahoma shrine

Relive the era of the cowboy!

by MURRAY J. BROWN

The old Wild West may have passed into history but memories of the uniquely American era are being preserved at a national shrine in Oklahoma City, officially designated as the National Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center.

The Hall of Fame, perched on a hilltop off U.S. 66 in the northeast section of the city, has been visited by around 2 million persons since it was opened in 1965.

Built with funds contributed by individuals and organizations in 17 western states, the unique non-profit memorial was designated by an Act of Congress as a National Monument honoring the pioneers who won the West, the Indians who lost it and the cowboys who became its symbol.

AS A NATIONAL treasury of art and relics of the historic era, its halls are filled with collections of saddles, spurs, handguns, rifles and other Old West gear. There is a lighted relief map that traces the old famous trails, and dioramas and other exhibits depicting Indian and pioneer life, rodeos and historic events, and paintings and sculptures by early-day and contemporary artists.

One of the most prized exhibits is the 18-foot-high original plaster model of sculptor Charles Frazier's "End of the Trail." The statue, by the designer of the Indian head-buffalo nickel, portrays an Indian warrior with a dragging spear slumped over an exhausted war pony. It has been called the most expressive of all art work depicting the final defeat of the American Indian.

The Cowboy Hall of Fame is full of noted Westerners and not all were strictly riders of the range. Theodore Roosevelt is honored as is Mormon leader Brigham Young. Sacajawea, the Shoshone Indian girl who guided the Lewis and Clark Expedition, also is included. Busts of Kit Carson, the old Indian scout; Jake McClure, a world champion roper, and Richard King, founder of the famous King Ranch in Texas, also are there among hundreds of others.

Honored also is Charles M. Russell, the wrangler-artist whose western paintings are known around the world. On display also are many paintings by Frederick Remington, also a noted artist of the Western scene, and wood sculptures by Willard Stone, a contemporary Indian artist.

FOR CHILDREN, there is a spacious "see and do" section in the basement of the modern main structure where they can pan for gold or romp in an authentic replica of an Indian camping ground.

There's a display of pioneer transportation, an appropriately-furnished sod house and a full scale turn-of-the-century Western town.

Children as well as adult visitors to the Hall of Fame and Heritage Center are encouraged to make nominations of famous Westerners for future election or suggestions for new exhibits.

For additional information on the Hall of Fame, rodeo and other attractions and special events write to Chamber of Commerce, 200 Skirvin Tower, Oklahoma City, Okla. 73102.

18th-Century beauty in Williamsburg

WILLIAMSBURG Va. — Eastertime is traditionally a period of greatest spring beauty in Williamsburg and this year the annual observance of Historic Garden Week in Williamsburg falls on April 24, just two days after Easter Sunday.

Five privately-occupied homes located within the Historic Area of Williamsburg, plus a number of private and public gardens will be opened to the public that day.

Houses to be shown include the Charlton House, Nicolson Shop, Waters-Coleman House, and the Palmer House, all on Duke of Gloucester Street, and the Benjamin Waller House on Francis Street. Hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., with evening hours by candlelight.

In addition, a walking garden tour in the Historic Area will take place between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. Groups will form at the Palmer House garden and will be escorted by guides who will discuss design and horticulture of the gardens at the Purdie House, King's Arms Tavern, the Dr. Philip Barrand House, the Lewis House and the Orlando Jones House.

The Charlton House, built sometime prior to 1774, was restored by The Colonial Williamsburg Foundation during the 1929-30 period. A handsome two-story frame dwelling, it is now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Philip A. Thorp and their children. Thorp is journeyman silversmith for Colonial Williamsburg and much of his handiwork is on display — not only in silver, but also in wood.

THE NICOLSON SHOP, a distinctive red building, is now a home, but in the 18th Century it was a typical two-story frame shop. The first floor was used for business and the second floor for living or storage space. Robert Nicolson acquired the property in 1773 and operated both a tailoring business and a store here.

Most 18th-Century housewives had little closet space, but the mistress of the Waters-Coleman House was more fortunate. At each end of the home, a marvelously roomy closet was made possible in the space between a pair of mammoth chimneys. The house was named for two of its most prominent occupants in the 18th Century — William Waters, a plantation owner who used it for his town house, and William Coleman, a post-Revolutionary mayor of Williamsburg.

The Palmer House, across the street from the colonial Capitol building, has putlog holes still showing in its 18th-Century brick exterior. The unique openings mark where the ends of the scaffolding rested when the brickmasons were completing its walls. During the Civil War, the house was occupied by both Confederate General Joseph E. Johnston and Union General George B. McClellan at different times.

THE BENJAMIN WALLER House was built and added to several times during the 1745-1770 period. Its owner, Judge Waller, was a prominent Williamsburg attorney who was law teacher to George Wythe; he also served as a Burgess, city recorder, judge of the court of admiralty, and vestryman of Bruton Parish Church.

The property was later owned and occupied by his grandson, William Waller, who married Elizabeth Tyler, daughter of President John Tyler.

Block tickets for the tour will be on sale at the Colonial Williamsburg Information Center and at the Williamsburg Lodge, as well as at the individual homes. Free parking is available at the Information Center. Ticket cost is $4; individual admissions are $1. Garden Week tickets will be honored on Historic Area buses operated by Colonial Williamsburg.

COLONIAL WILLIAMSBURG Militia form twice weekly with the militia Company marches during a regular drill on Market Square Green. The scarlet-clad fifers and drummers perform.

If "spring fever" infects you with "shopping-fits," we'd like to suggest you amble into your nearest travel agent's office and browse through some exciting adventure trips for spring or summer.

Remember — the agent's suggestions, time, and fascinating brochures won't cost you a penny. In fact, his or her advice can — in the long run — save you a whole lot of money and valuable time.

Along as you're dreaming — how about a few "way out" ideas?

Greek Line "weekend-to Nowhere" sailings are scheduled from New York on the Queen Anna Maria, April 13 and 27, June 8, July 6 and 20 and Aug. 3 and 17.

THE SHIPLINE also has Canadian cruises (nine-day and 11-days) that include Quebec, Montreal, Saguenay River, Bagotville, Gaspe, Sydney and Nova Scotia.

At Quebec there is a tour by calesche (horse and buggy) through the only walled city in North America with narrow twisting streets lined by old stone buildings.

Along the fjord area of the Saguenay River, you can view the 2,000-foot cliffs towering above the water.

At Bagotville the mayor greets passengers and local townspeople entertain with folk dancing while a huge 250-pound freshly baked blueberry pie is hoisted on board to be sampled along with a local drink called caribou.

From Gaspe there is an optional overland drive to the artist colony of Perce.

Prices begin at $374 for this Canadian cruise.

Holland America Cruises, German Atlantic Line and Pan American are jointly offering 35 cruise-and-fly tours this year, ranging from 14 days in Western Europe to 47 days around the world.

A TYPICAL late-summer odyssey is the Mediterranean trip on the Veendam, leaving New York Aug. 21 by jet, then returning — by way of all the sun-splashed Mediterranean ports plus France and England — by ship. Nice dreaming — right?

Or — how about running away to the romantic Rhine? Marriott World Travel, a division of Marriott Hotels has an intriguing package you can book at your travel agents. It's called the "Rhine Escape," an 11-day program featuring a Rhine cruise plus Amsterdam and Zurich, priced from $517.

Another 11-day program that sounds very "get-away-from-it-all" is called the Greek Escape and includes a seven-day Greek Island cruise on the Stella Solaris, plus two nights in Athens. Prices start at $685.

Jack Callaghan's "Odyssey Tour of Europe," sponsored by radio station WEFM, is one of the most attractive and exciting package trips to Europe we've run across in quite awhile. It covers five countries and six fascinating European cities in 16 days. Tour members will have extensive sightseeing and attend performances of ballet, concerts and theatre in Vienna, Rome, Athens, Oslo, Bergen and Copenhagen.

AND IF YOU think that rising costs and the devaluation of the dollar will make European travel way out of line, here's a tour that's actually been LOWERED in price. CIE Tours of New York have slashed the price of their 21-day Ireland and Britain tour $120 — making the present price $680.

Buying a prepaid package tour is the one sure way you can beat the high cost of travel today.

What a comfortable feeling when you take off on a trip to Europe, the Orient, or other parts of the world to know that everything is paid for before you go.

That's a terrific hedge against vacation inflation!

TWA OFFERS CHICAGO-PARIS NONSTOP SERVICE

Effective April 29, Trans World Airlines will begin the only non-stop daily service from Chicago to Paris.

According to Milton J. Chandler, TWA's Chicago general manager, "the new flight not only offers Chicago area travelers non-stop service to the French capital, but the flight continues on to Rome thus making it the fastest and most direct route to Italy."

The new service, TWA flight 848, departs Chicago's O'Hare Airport daily at 8:45 p.m. arriving at Orly Field, Paris at 10:45 a.m. the next morning. Following a brief stop in Paris the flight arrives Rome at 1:35 p.m. All times are local.

Return flight 849 departs daily from Rome at 11:30 a.m. and departs Paris 2:40 p.m. for the non-stop flight to Chicago arriving at 5:45 p.m. the same afternoon.

Chandler adds that the new service is a reflection of Chicago's growing popularity as an international origin, destination and connection terminal. He says TWA's Chicago-London daily 747 service "is one of the most popular non-stop flights in our route system."

Coaches, writers pick Pittsburgh in NL

Poll favors White Sox in American League

White Sox fans should hope that those voting in the Herald's annual major-league baseball poll are right. And Cub fans should hope that either the National League crystal balls are out of whack or something happens to the Pirates.

The poll, which this year included 26 voters — mostly Herald area coaches with a few writers thrown in for good (?) measure, yielded some interesting results. If it is correct, the following developments will take place in the next six and a half months:

- The Sox will edge Oakland in a close race in the American League West, then will march on to take not only their first pennant in 14 years but also the city's first world championship since 1906.

- The New York Yankees will shrug off unfavorable publicity and bench-jockeying about their family-swapping pitchers to take the American East surprisingly easy.

- The Cubs will be in their customary role of second place in the National East with Pittsburgh having no trouble repeating — and also avenging its playoff loss to Cincinnati last year.

- Cincinnati also will repeat in the National's West alignment but will be pre-sured by Houston and Los Angeles in the closest three-team race.

Individual honors don't have quite as many surprises in store if those polled know what they're talking about. Richie Allen, the reformed "bad boy" of the Sox, was tabbed to continue taking the American League by storm and repeat his titles in runs batted in, home runs and Most Valuable Player award. His teammate Wilbur Wood was chosen to easily dethrone Cleveland's Gaylord Perry as Cy Young Award winner for best pitching.

Closest individual race of all was for the American League batting crown with no clear-cut winner. Rod Carew of Minnesota and Carl Yastrzemski of Boston led, but four others were right behind — Allen, Carlos May, Bobby Murcer and Joe Rudi.

The National League had two men dominating each individual category in the voting. Again, a similarity to last year is foreseen with the Cubs' Billy Williams and Reds' Johnny Bench figured to enjoy the biggest years.

Williams edged out another Cincinnati star, Pete Rose, in the batting average voting by 11-8. Bench was picked to edge

Larry Everhart

Williams for the RBI title and is also selected to win the home run crown with Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell second.

Fergie Jenkins of the Cubs is picked to recover from his sore arm late last season to tie for Cy Young Award with last year's overwhelming winner, Steve Carlton of Philadelphia. And Cub fans will be happy to know that Williams is foreseen beating out Bench for Most Valuable Player — meaning the two best players in baseball, according to the poll, wear Chicago uniforms.

Although some may be a little prejudiced for the home-town favorites, the men who were polled should know more than the average fan about the fine points of the game. Most of the 26 reached in the poll are baseball coaches, high school and American Legion, who work with teams in this area. The others are Herald sportswriters.

Admittedly, the poll can only be taken seriously if it is assumed voters have more clairvoyance than last year. They voted Baltimore to become world champions but it didn't quite work out that way.

This writer's guess-timates and comments go this way:

American West

1. SOX — Improved enough to win a close race with Chuck Tanner's tender loving care making the difference.
2. California — A darkhorse with tough pitching.
3. Oakland — Has the most talent but can't get along with one another and flaky owner. Trading Mike Epstein was foolish.
4. Kansas City — A solid young team that could surprise.
5. Minnesota — Has steadily deteriorated.
6. Texas — Ted Williams knew what he was doing when he quit.

American East

1. New York — Ready to emerge in balanced division.
2. Baltimore — Still not much hitting, but can't all stay in shumps at once.
3. Boston — A day late and dollar short — again.
4. Detroit — Much too old.
5. Cleveland — Perry had last hurrah last year.

National East

1. Pittsburgh — Still the deepest in talent. Will hardly miss Clemente.
2. CUBS — Same tired old lineup, but division doesn't look too strong except for Pirates.
3. New York — Could be in contention. Rusty Staub will help.
4. St. Louis — Keeps going the wrong way — downhill.
5. Montreal — By default.
6. Philadelphia — One man (Carlton, of course) can't do it alone.

National West

1. Houston — Tremendous lineup; just need halfway decent pitching. (Leo will win — finally!)
2. Los Angeles — Tremendous pitching; just need halfway decent hitting.
3. Cincinnati — Bench is counted on heavily but has had terrible spring.
4. Atlanta — Strange team with some question marks.
5. San Francisco — Same as Atlanta. Could finish anywhere.
6. San Diego — Who?

Porter will be missed

by KEITH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

Champaign's gain is more than Hersey's loss.

It's a loss for Dist. 214, the Mid-Suburban League and the whole Northwest suburban area.

Tom Porter was named last week to succeed retiring coach Jack Robinson at the helm of the University of Illinois wrestling program. In signing the Hersey mentor, the Fighting Illini have created a pretty large void in the Herald area mat world.

Porter is an innovator and a go-getter. His brand of hard work and excellent rapport with youngsters will undoubtedly lift a sagging U of I grappling program tremendously. It worked wonders at Hersey in a short period of time.

Hersey athletic director Dick Kinne-man compared Porter with the magical man from Hamelin. "He seemed to attract kids like the Pied Piper. His enthusiasm and knowledge were excellent qualities to begin with but he enhanced them by making them contagious."

"He put an awful lot of hard work into wrestling all year round. I think the kids sensed this commitment and responded by striving harder themselves," Kinne-man added.

Porter himself was quick to spread the credit for Hersey's success around. "You don't build a winning athletic program without administrative cooperation," he pointed out. "I can't begin to name all the ways Dick Kinne-man and (principal) Rollie Golins have supported me over the years."

"And," continued the Indiana State grad, "that support has been evident right down through the coaching staff too. It's been a pleasure to work with all these people and leaving them is one of the toughest things about accepting a new assignment in another part of the state."

Still, as always, Porter is anxious to tackle that new obstacle. "I wouldn't have taken the job if I wasn't convinced I could make a success of it," he emphasized.

Porter sees his chief task at Illinois as corralling more of the local talent and he feels this can be accomplished to a greater degree by stimulating more interest in U of I wrestling.

"I've already started mulling over the idea of conducting challenge sessions up in the Chicago suburbs to give us more exposure here. There are too many quality athletes around for the University not to have an outstanding program and I'm going to try to reach as many of them as I possibly can."

Now that Porter is leaving the area, the first reaction of rival schools is a sigh of relief. Perhaps someone else will have a crack at local prep mat supremacy now.

In the long run, his absence should be somewhat discouraging as well however. In putting the Huskie wrestling team on the map with consecutive state titles in 1971 and 1972, the energetic Harvey native carried the whole MSL to respectability. The success that Hersey savored has rubbed off on everyone around.

To outsiders, the prowess of Porter's programs is a reflection on all of us. It allows us to take a little more pride in our work and enjoy a little more satisfaction in the results.

Tom Porter is a plus for the University of Illinois. But he'll be missed in the Herald area.

Hawk bats impressive in defeats

by PAUL LOGAN

"Basically, we went into the games to try out new pitchers and hoping to give everybody a start," said John Eliasik. But the weather didn't go along with the Harper College coach's plans.

Scheduled to play eight games in four days on a southern Illinois trip last weekend, the Hawks only got two games in on Friday. Rain and muddy fields aborted the other contests.

If that wasn't frustrating enough, the Hawks dropped a pair of one-run affairs to Lake Land, 14-13 and 6-5.

At one point in the opener, Harper was cruising along with a 12-6 lead. However, the hosts came back to take a 14-12 lead.

The Hawks rallied in the seventh with one run and had two runners on and two outs Bruce Eberle at the plate. The big veteran catcher had lofted two homers earlier in the game, but his final drive was caught to end the game.

Tony Fricano, also a letterman, went 3-for-4 with freshman Gary Pemberton going 2-for-4.

George Patten, out of Conant, was the starting and losing pitcher. Wheeling's Terry Moriarty — also a freshman hurler — relieved Patten. Luke Wolanski, another vet, came on with the bases loaded and one out. He registered another out before a grand slam — one of four homers the Lakers swatted — aided the Matton team's cause.

Bruce Eberle

Wolanski started the second game, but the Lakers knocked him out in two innings. Don Kunde, a sophomore, came on with the Hawks losing 6-1. Kunde "shut the gate on them," said Eliasik. "He was the best looking pitcher we used that day. I'm pleasantly surprised . . . He's progressed real well."

Harper battled back before bowing to a team that had already played five games, 6-5.

The Hawks attempted to play again on Saturday at Southern Illinois University against the host's jayvee team. After working all day on the diamond, the game began at 3 p.m. Southern broke out to a 5-2 lead in the third inning when the rains returned.

The bad weather washed out the doubleheaders with Southeastern College and Illinois State University.

"From the trip, I learned one thing that I'm really happy with," said Eliasik. "Compared to last year's team, we have solid hitters up and down the lineup."

Fricano came out of the action batting .500 with Eberle holding a .400 average.

Along with these four previously mentioned lettermen are five others — Bob Andreas, Ray Carlson, Dean Sheridan, Mike Honel and John Macdonald.

"We've got much more pitching depth," continued Eliasik. "It looks like a stronger pitching staff."

Joining lefties Macdonald and Moriarty is freshman Steve Perry from Barrington. The four righties are Wolanski, Kunde, Bob Frantell and Mark Wickland. Frantell is from Prospect and Wickland's from Fremd.

Don Kunde

"The biggest question mark is how strong our shortstop and second baseman will be. We were weak there last year."

Harper finished tied for second (10-4) in the Skyway Conference with Triton, one game behind champion Mayfair, 11-3. The Hawks were 15-9 overall.

Other freshmen out for the team are Bob Chen of Elk Grove, Steve Heldt of Hersey, Don Heyse of Barrington, Rich Luzinski of Notre Dame Carl Molitor of Cary-Grove and Keith Steelman of Conant.

"I think we'll be contenders," said Eliasik, who is beginning his second year at the head job. "Our conference shapes up to be a real dog fight. It could be every bit as tough as last year, even tougher. One or two more schools should have a lot to say as to who will win it."

Harper's coach figures it to be a four-team race among Lake County, Mayfair, Triton and the Hawks.

The locals will take on Aurora College's jayvees on Thursday with a doubleheader planned for Saturday at St. Francis College. Then the SC campaign begins with powerful visiting Triton on Monday.

Big attractions

ANN ARBOR, Mich. UPI — The 10 regular season college football games that have drawn the largest crowds in NCAA history all were played in Michigan Stadium. The attendance leader was Michigan's 1971 season-enders against Big Ten rival Ohio State, which attracted a crowd of 104, 018 persons.

Golf opener for Prospect

Defending Mid-Suburban League golf champion Prospect will be seeking another crown today in its scheduled season opener at Maine West beginning at 3:30.

The Knights of George Bork were untouchable in dual-meet play with an overall composite of 16 victories in as many decisions. Prospect headed the dual-meet portion of the Mid-Suburban season with an unblemished 11-0 mark.

Wheeling, however, marred Prospect's superb campaign by upsetting three Knights in the MSL meet, but Prospect's second-place finish still assured the school the overall trophy.

Prospect will remain on the road in another non-conference bout in a triangular with Stevenson and host Deerfield before debuting at home against Elk Grove, Tuesday, April 10.

Maine placed eighth in the Central Suburban League last spring and compiled a 4-8 overall record. Prospect is defending Mid-Suburban League champion.

The return of regulars Jeff Potter, Glen Dalbke and Tom Grueter could make this a brighter campaign for Maine West.

Maine's 1973 varsity schedule includes nine dual meets, three double duals and the Conant Invitational, that on Saturday, April 28, during regular season

Weather forces 3 postponements

The weather yesterday continued to play havoc (what else is new?) with the Herald area baseball schedule.

Postponed were the games between Hersey and Maine West, Elk Grove and Wheaton Central, and Forest View and Maine South.

The Hersey battle at Maine West has been rescheduled for Friday afternoon at 4:30. No dates have been set on the other two Monday games.

In play today, again weather permitting, Deerfield is scheduled to travel to Wheeling for a 4:30 contest. Wednesday's schedule matches Maine North at Rolling Meadows; Glenbrook North at Fremd; Arlington at Ridgewood; St. Viator at Glenbrook South; Maine East at York; and Maine West at Oak Park.

Rare tie in track

A rare tie was the result of the Schaumburg-West Leyden indoor track meet, each team totalling 55 points and Walther Lutheran placing third in the triangular with 27. The Saxons of coach Denny Garber managed just a pair of first places but added seven seconds.

Arnie Jackson was one of the winners with 4:40.5 in the mile run and the eight-lap relay team of Bob Cummings, Mike Lane, Efron Fontecha and Eric Porter notched the other win with 2:35.8.

Runners-up included Jackson with 2:05 in the 880-yard run, Ken Jaffke with 46.94 in the shot put, Ed Martin with 5-6 in the high jump, Festus Cloonan with 10:34.4 in the two-mile, Bob Cummings with :54.9 in the 440 and the four-lap relay team with 1:13.0.

West Leyden won the fresh-soph meet with 63½ points against Schaumburg's 44½ and Walther Lutheran's 30.

The Saxons are slated to open their outdoor season at Rolling Meadows Thursday.

Hawthorne enthusiasm high

Whatever the reason — the late spring dates or the return of Chicago sulky racing over a full one mile course — there is a marked upswing in interest and enthusiasm by local horsemen in the approaching harness meeting which opens on Tuesday, April 17, at Hawthorne.

Hawthorne, the nation's fifth oldest track dating to 1891 and best known as a thoroughbred center, will host its fourth annual harness meeting, a 34-night stand thru May 25 under banner to Suburban Downs, Inc., a Chicago pioneer sulky group founded in 1954.

Managing Director Robert F. Carey has announced a record list of 89 nominations to the season's opening stake, the $49,000 Suburban Downs Pacing Series, a continuing slate of five events to be climaxed by the $17,500 Final on May 8.

"Our racing secretary, Bob Larry, is ecstatic over the response by horsemen to our major stakes," said Carey. "Overall, we will present 26 feature events, totaling $363,000 in purse money, during the 5½-week season."

St. Viator to open tennis season today

Barring bad weather, St. Viator will open its tennis season against hosting Montini this afternoon at 4:00.

The Lions of Coach John Fleck will take on Mid-Suburban League teams the rest of the week — Hersey on Wednesday, Elk Grove on Thursday and Rolling Meadows on Saturday.

Larry made Hawthorne's four major attractions — the Pacing Series, Pacing Derby, Cleopatra and Dygert Memorial — all early-closing events, and the nominations have been pouring in!

"We checked out the nominations last week and found 89 named for the opening Series," smiled Larry. "Luckily, we've already divided the inaugural leg of the Series — the first division goes on opening night, the second on Wednesday, April 18."

Suburban Downs' spring meeting is sandwiched in between the current Sportsman's season, and Larry, a veteran Midwestern racing official, credits the shift to full-mile action at Hawthorne as greatly responsible for renewed interest by horsemen.

"Many of our better horses didn't race over the winter. Many await a full mile track which encourages truer racing — less chance for trouble and poor racing luck."

Hawthorne, incidentally, boasts a full quarter-mile home stretch — 1,320 feet — and as such is the longest home straight-

Tough competition

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wide receivers Don Hermann and Rich Houston were the only 1969 rookie draft picks remaining on the roster of the New York Giants at the start of the 1972 season.

Conant links team tees off

Conant will be seeking to amend a 5-6 record in the Mid-Suburban League golf standings last season when the Cougars challenge St. Edward of Elgin today at 4 p.m.

The Cougars, under head coach Barry Carlson, will be trying to improve upon their middle-of-the-pack status in the tough MSL as well as their 5-9 overall mark.

The St. Edward test will provide Conant with its only match-play test before the Cougars are forced to crack league competition against Wheeling Monday, April 9.

The highlight of the Cougars' campaign will be the Conant Invitational, Saturday, April 28. An expanded field from last year's competition will gather at Golden Acres for the 18-hole extravaganza — the lone area tourney of the season.

Dallas choice

DALLAS (UPI) — Don Meredith, now a television broadcaster, was the number one draft choice of the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League as well as the Dallas Texans of the old American Football League, when his collegiate career at Southern Methodist University ended. Meredith became a Cowboy.

Niles West will be the foe on Thursday with Niles North rounding out the action on Friday.

Wheeling opens the Mid-Suburban League season on Monday, April 16, at Schaumburg.

RECEPTIONIST Over the years we have been very fortunate in our receptionist. The type we have had the best luck with is as follows: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1.) A "housewife" with excellent intelligence and rusty office skills — light typing, little or no shorthand. 2.) Live reasonably close to our office. 3.) Good "sparkplug" personality. The work is varied and interesting. When the phone isn't ringing like mad (usual), you type "easy stuff" (envelopes or addressograph plates), and, of course, greet and assign all incoming applicants, both male and female. Later you will learn to run several other office machines. The hours are 8:20 a.m. to 4:40 p.m. with an hour for lunch. We can pay from $2.00 to $3.00 per hour (depending on prior experience and current skills) and we have Blue Cross-Blue Shield available. Other raises and benefits as per performance. School officials predict bigger budget in 1973-74

School Dist. 21 officials are forecasting an increase in the 1973-74 budget over last year's nearly $11 million spending.

The main causes for the increase are inflation and the added cost of staffing and equipping two new schools in the district, according to Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill.

Gill said the decision of the Illinois General Assembly on two pending bills could also affect the budget.

One measure now being considered by the legislature would freeze the amount of property tax revenue received by a school district at its present level. This would mean if the assessed valuation of the district goes up, the dollar amount collected by the school district would remain the same.

School officials also are watching a bill that proposes the state provide 50 per cent of the operating funds for schools. Action on this measure is not expected until June, Gill said.

DIST. 21 ASSISTANT Supt. John Barger and Jim Gochis, administrative assistant, are currently analyzing budget information from each of the districts schools. Gochis said they hope to have a preliminary draft of the budget ready for the board to consider sometime in April.

The school board is required by law to approve the final version of the budget by the second week in September, Gill said. However, he said the school board plans to complete budget work by the end of June, if possible, in order to prepare tax anticipation warrants.

Tax anticipation warrants are issued by taxing bodies as a means of borrowing against future taxes.

Gill pointed out the outcome of current teacher contract negotiations will have a major effect on the budget. Faculty salaries account for about 60 per cent of the spending outline, he said.

Representatives of the Dist. 21 school board and the Wheeling Faculty Council were scheduled yesterday to conduct their fifth bargaining session.

The meetings this year are closed to the public, so it is not known if the two groups are near agreement.

'Tornado' hits as drill for Civil Defense

A tornado hit Buffalo Grove Saturday, but it was not the usual type of twister dreaded in the spring by northern Illinois residents. This tornado was conjured up by the local Civil Defense unit to demonstrate how its volunteers go into action when disaster strikes.

About 18 Civil Defense volunteers, and 25 local Girl Scouts along with several Buffalo Grove Fire Department paramedics took part in the drill. The demonstration stressed the importance of providing efficient emergency care in the aftermath of disaster.

Several Girl Scouts agreed to play tornado "victims" in the drill. They were tagged by the organizers of the drill as having suffered various kinds of injuries, ranging from fractured jaws to broken backs.

Medical teams, directed by Paul Soucy, medical director of the Buffalo Grove Civil Defense unit, and Joan Kufel, R.N., administered simulated medical treatment to the "injured." The Buffalo Grove paramedics also aided in demonstrating the proper procedures for providing different kinds of first aid care.

AFTER THE "victims" were treated, they were transported to the basement of St. Mary's rectory which served as a hospital.

Gilbert Lee, director of publicity for the civil defense unit, said Buffalo Grove health officer Don Schindler was responsible for staging the mock disaster.

The demonstration, which was put on near St. Mary's Church, lasted about an hour and a half. Despite a steady rain, a group of spectators was on hand.

Lee said the Civil Defense unit plans to conduct other drills similar to this one in the future in order to train volunteer workers in emergency procedures. The drills also educate the public on the services provided by Civil Defense volunteers in time of disaster.

"If we ever do have a disaster, the people can be assured the Civil Defense unit is on the ball," Lee said.

BUFFALO GROVE Fire Department paramedics, staged by the Buffalo Grove Civil Defense unit. The drill, first of its kind in Buffalo Grove, was conducted as part of training for Civil Defense volunteers.

Organizers hope to top last year's $13,000 mark

Opportunity Center 'hike' Sunday

Nearly 2,000 persons are expected to turn out for Sunday's fifth annual "Hike for Your Neighbor" to raise funds for the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

The expected turnout is more than double the number of participants in last year's hike.

A fund-raising goal has not been set for this year's hike but the hike committee would like to top last year's $13,000 mark. The hike has taken on new importance as a fund raising activity this year with the dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity and cutoff of all federal funding. The center is now faced with the task of raising all of its $130,000 budget locally.

The center last year served approximately 1,700 families from the six township area of Palatine, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Hanover and Barrington, and parts of Maine Township.

The center's services include: food stamps, Operation Nutrition, housing assistance, legal aid, job referral, family planning assistance, dental checkups, Foster Grandparent Program and several referral programs. The center also provides clothing, emergency food, household items and financial aid to needy families.

RECRUITMENT EFFORTS for hikers are being concentrated at Harper College, Dist. 211 and 214 high schools, Sacred Heart of Mary High School, St. Viator High School, the majority of junior high schools in the area and several church youth groups.

When the participants sign up for the hike they are given a pledge card and asked to solicit pledges from individuals and businesses for each mile they walk. The pledge cards will be validated at checkpoints during the hike.

The hikers will receive a grand tour of the Northwest suburbs. Starting at 8 a.m. from Maine East High School in Park Ridge, the hikers will make a 20-mile circuit winding through Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Palatine before ending at the Northwest Opportunity Center.

Sore feet and other medical problems occurring on the hike will be handled by a registered nurse who will follow the hikers in a first aid wagon.

Ham radio operators will also accompany the hikers monitoring their progress and any problems that may occur.

The hike committee has arranged for police protection across several busy intersections.

HIKERS WILL have an opportunity to rest and build up their strength for the remainder of the hike at seven checkpoints established along the route. Several adults have volunteered to serve as hike marshals and man checkpoints.

The route for the "Hike for Your Neighbor" is as follows:

The Maine East High School parking lot north to Dempster, west on Dempster to River Road, south on River Road to Algonquin, west on Algonquin to Wolf Road, north on Wolf Road to Greenview where the West Park Field House in Des Plaines is located and will serve as the first checkpoint.

North on Wolf Road to Golf Road, west on Golf Road to Cumberland Parkway, north on Cumberland Parkway to Fletcher, west on Fletcher to Mount Prospect Road, north on Mount Prospect Road to Busse Road, west on Busse Road to Elm, north on Elm to Gregory where the Gregory School in Mount Prospect is located, the second checkpoint.

West on Gregory to Forest, north on Forest to Kensington, west on Kensington to Windsor, north on Windsor to Miner, west on Miner to Dryden to Miner Junior High School in Arlington Heights, the third checkpoint.

NORTH ON DRYDEN to Olive, west on Olive to Belmont, north on Belmont to Thomas, west on Thomas to Arlington Heights Road, north on Arlington Heights Road to Maude to Hasbrook Park in Arlington Heights, the fourth checkpoint.

West on Maude to Kennicott, north on Kennicott to Shenandoah to Alexandria, west on Alexandria to Verde, north on Verde to Roanoke, west on Roanoke to Frontage Road, south on Frontage to Anderson Road, west on Anderson to Winston to Maple Park in Palatine, the fifth checkpoint.

West on Anderson to Williams, north on Williams to Plate Road, west on Plate to Sales, north and west on Sales to Rohlfing Road, south on Rohlfing to Glencoe to the Christ Lutheran Church in Palatine, the sixth checkpoint.

South on Rohlfing Road to Kirchoff, east on Kirchoff to the Northwest Opportunity Center, the final checkpoint of the hike.

Those marching all 20 miles are expected to arrive at the Northwest Opportunity Center between 3 and 4:30 p.m.

City to hear senior-citizen complex zone request tonight

Cook County Housing authority officials will seek zoning for a proposed 120-unit senior citizens' housing project at an 8:10 p.m. hearing tonight before the Des Plaines Zoning Board of Appeals.

"We will put ourselves completely at the disposal of the city," Victor Walchirk, CCHA director said. "We'll bring all our information and answer any questions city officials have."

Walchirk, CCHA general counsel Von A. Carlisle and architects Lowenberg & Lowenberg, Chicago, will explain the CCHA request for rezoning from C-2 commercial to R-5 multi-family at Lee Street and Ashland Avenue.

CCHA HAS REQUESTED three variations from Des Plaines to construct the proposed $2.5 million senior citizens project:

- A variation in off-street parking requirements. City codes demand one space per unit. CCHA plans 45 parking spaces.

- A land-use density variation. The city requires 700 square feet of land for each one-bedroom apartment and 800 square feet for two-bedroom units.
- An apartment floor space variation. The city requires 650 square feet of floor space in all one-bedroom units.

The parking request may draw the most severe criticism. Political candidates, including mayoral hopeful David Wolf, have questioned the parking request.

Walchirk said the request is based on federal requirements. "A 1-to-3 parking ratio is justifiable," he said. "Our experience indicates — in other projects in the county including some in economic areas similar to Des Plaines — that more parking will not be needed."

"When the project could start is difficult to say," Walchirk said yesterday. "I would hope sometime this summer."

WALCHIRK TOLD the Herald in February, when CCHA filed petitions for tonight's hearing, project bidding is planned by June. Construction time for the nine-story building will be 14 to 16 months, leading to estimated completion in summer 1974.

"We still have some businesses on the site to relocate. We need final plan approval from HUD. If we get the zoning, we then need federal approval to go out for bids."

"We hope the construction market will be good when we bid the project," he said. "We hope to stay within our allocated amount."

Funds from HUD are "definitely committed," he said, and are not affected by the federal freeze on housing appropriations.

CCHA COMPLETED purchase of the 1.2 acre site in February after more than a year's bargaining over land price. The property was owned by the Mandas and Borkenhagen families.

CCHA has contracted with Des Plaines to plan, construct and manage the structure, which will be open to individuals or couples 62 or older with incomes under $5,000 for a couple or $4,500 for a single person.

The city council passed a resolution giving Des Plaines residents priority in obtaining subsidized building apartments.

THREE OTHER hearings also are scheduled:

- At 8 p.m. the board will hear a petition to rezone 1297 Redeker Rd. from single-family to M-2 general manufacturing. Des Plaines annexed the property Feb. 5. The land was zoned for restricted manufacturing by Cook County. The petitioner is Des Plaines Investment Co.

- At 8:20 p.m. the board will hear a petition for a 10-foot front-yard setback variation at 831-835-849-851 Pearson St. and at 1482 Thacker St. The property is zoned multiple-family. The city requires a 25-foot setback. The petitioner is Wesbank Corp.
- At 8:30 p.m. the board has scheduled a planned unit development hearing. The property, at 905 W. Dempster St., is zoned single family. About 198 apartments are proposed on the 890-acre site by Kenroy Inc. of Skokie. Both Des Plaines and Mount Prospect have annexed the property and are parties in a Cook County Circuit Court case to decide incorporation of the former mushroom farm.

Mayor questioned on contracts for remodeling work

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Mayor Herbert Behrel signed two contracts totaling $5,170 to remodel the former Sears building without formal city council approval, mayoral candidate David Wolf said yesterday.

"My conscience is perfectly clear. I've done nothing wrong," Behrel told the Herald.

Supporters of Wolf were expected to question the mayor at Monday's city council meeting about a $4,875 contract for remodeling with Nick Primpas of Chicago and a $295 contract with Peter Electric of Skokie for outlet installation.

Both contracts were signed by Behrel March 16.

Wolf said council minutes of February and March contain no authorization to contract the project. He claimed the work was not bid. And, although remodeling started three weeks ago, Des Plaines still has not signed a lease for the property.

SIXTEEN ALDERMEN voted Feb. 20 "to enter into a lease agreement for rental of office space to relocate the office of mayor, city clerk, health department and city comptroller with owners of the building located at the northwest corner of Miner and Pearson" streets, official council minutes state. The motion called for rent of $13,911.10 for 18 months with a six-month option to renew.

On March 5, the council referred estimated cost of office interior work to the building and grounds committee for study. Ald. Joseph Szabo (1st) did not report on the estimated costs at the March 19 council meeting. "Perhaps it was an oversight," he said yesterday.

Des Plaines will rent the former department store building, with about 2,839 square feet of space, during construction of a proposed $2.2 million city hall. City officials plan a move into the building May 1 to allow demolition of current offices at 1426 Miner St.

Behrel said the interior remodeling contract was part of the rental authorization. "No further approval was needed. Everybody knew what we were doing," he said.

Szabo added that "the committee reviewed the proposals. It's an extremely fair price. We felt the mayor was authorized to complete the contract. Any report March 19 would have been a progress report only."

THE MAYOR reported to the council on rental plans Jan. 31. In a six-page letter he outlined estimated rental of four sites in Des Plaines. The Sears building, now owned by the Mandas family, "will provide the least amount of cost as well

School board candidate seeks Democrats' help

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Dr. Thomas Kogos, first vice president of the Maine Township Democratic Organization, is soliciting assistance from Democratic party members in his race for the school board in East Maine Elementary School Dist. 63.

"I took it upon myself to be a candidate for Dist. 63," said Dr. Kogos, a chiropractor in Niles, but added he will ask party members to work for him in the April 14 election. "I feel I can call upon these individuals to support me in my candidacy," he said.

Other candidates in the Dist. 63 race question whether partisan politics should become a part of education.

One of Dr. Kogos' major campaign issues is school financing. The present method of funding schools primarily through local property tax is "definitely unfair," he said.

"I feel that I have an advantage over

SYSTEM 80, A TEACHING machine developed by the Borg-Warner Corp., is used by local schools to supplement regular classroom instruction in reading, math, phonics, spelling and French. The machine, marketed in 1970, was developed in Hubbard Woods school in Winnetka and tested in elementary schools throughout the country. Keith Hedgepeth, student at River Trails School in Des Plaines, uses the machine for a lesson in alphabet work.

Keith sits in front of the white box in the corner of the classroom. "Find the first letter in pipe," says the machine, and a picture of a man with a pipe appears on the screen. He pushes the button indicating the letter "p." The machine buzzes and advances to the next question.

The teaching machine, called System 80, was developed by Borg-Warner Corp. and marketed in 1970. National headquarters for the education research division of Borg-Warner are located in Niles, and the machines are used by several local schools including River Trails School in Des Plaines and Salt Creek School in Elk Grove Village.

The machine is designed to supplement regular classroom instruction, according to Greg Campbell, a representative of Borg-Warner. It can be used to help the student who has been absent keep up with his classmates or the new student just transferred to the school.

The machine also can provide supplemental exercises for an underachiever or can help a student who is good in one subject and poor in another, said Campbell. Teachers can use System 80 to diagnose the particular learning weaknesses of each student by giving machine scored tests.

Before a child begins a System 80 program, the test is given to determine his

Township polling places open at 6

Maine Township polling places will open at 6 a.m. today at 129 locations in Des Plaines, Glenview, Niles and Morton Grove. The voting locations close at 6 p.m.

Nine Republican candidates are running unopposed for four-year terms.

Heading the GOP list is James J. Dowd, 55, of 1503 Walnut, Des Plaines, a

Mrs. Edfors ruled insane, won't be tried

Mrs. Elaine Edfors, the accused slayer of her two daughters found beaten to death Feb. 26 in their Rolling Meadows home, yesterday was declared insane and ordered returned to the Department of Mental Health to be committed to a state hospital.

Circuit Court Judge Louis Garippo issued the judgment yesterday after reviewing results of court-ordered psychiatric tests performed on the 34-year-old woman.

The ruling means Mrs. Edfors will not stand trial for the double murders.

"It was a judgment, not a verdict, returned by the court," according to William Norris, one of two Cook County state's attorneys prosecuting the case. "We were satisfied with the judgment. In light of the evidence available, it was the only fair judgment that could be returned," he said.

During earlier pre-trial actions, Mrs. Edfors pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity in connection with the case, a spokesman for the state's attorney's office said.

MRS. EDFORS had been charged for the bludgeoning deaths of her 8 and 9-year-old daughters Pamela and Debbie, more than a month ago. The girls were found on the bloodstained floor of their home at 3600 Jay Ln. by their father Thomas.

Both girls died of head injuries apparently inflicted by blows from a hammer. Mrs. Edfors was found lying unconscious alongside the girls with apparent self-inflicted cuts on her wrists and throat.

Mrs. Edfors was held without bond in Cook County Jail until the ruling yesterday. Norris said the Department of Mental Health will decide the hospital to which the woman will be taken.

Mayor questioned about remodeling contracts as moving expenses," he stated.

"There will be a nominal additional cost for a few partitions which would be over and above the total figure shown, actual amount not known at this time," the letter stated.

"What does he call nominal?" Wolf asked.

"I said nominal. This is not a lot of money," Behrel said. "This is a low bid. We know what they're charging at other buildings. This contractor is in the building. He's got all his equipment and crew in there already."

PRIMPAS is contractor for an estimated $50,000 worth of construction to repair two other first-floor stores in the building. Des Plaines forced the work last fall when city inspectors threatened to close the structure.

Although Primpas started remodeling work three weeks ago, Des Plaines has not signed a contract with Mandas. "We wanted to get started right away," the mayor said. "There was no time to lose."

The Herald learned that the remodeling contract was approved by Szabo's committee at an unannounced morning meeting in Behrel's office May 15.

Although Wolf claimed that the project was not bid, the building and grounds committee reviewed two proposals for the work.

Primpas agreed to "furnish material and labor" for remodeling drawn by the city engineering department. The bid, returned in late February, included partition construction, door construction, painting and wall papering.

CITY COMPTROLLER Duane Blizet told the Herald that Szabo's committee then requested another bid. "I called (George) Knight (Construction Co. of Des Plaines)," he said. Knight's bid, dated March 5 was $5,225 for both construction and electrical work. Knight recommended Behrel's current office two years ago.

"I'm not an engineer," the mayor said. "I didn't negotiate the contract. Mr. Blizet sent out a copy of the engineering department's plans and turned the bids over to Mr. Szabo. He's in the construction business and his word is good enough for me."

Des Plaines ordinances are silent on awarding of construction projects. State statute requires awarding of public works contracts over $1,500 to the lowest responsible bidder. "The statutes say nothing about advertising or the amount on other things," the mayor said.

Wolf received an anonymous copy of the two contracts in his mail last week. "There was just a little note saying

The GOP slate includes five incumbents — township clerk Philip Raffae, 47, of 225 Valerie Ct., Glenview, who was first elected in 1965 to the part-time post; James A. Parks, 56, Park Ridge, four-term township assessor; highway commissioner Edward Koehler, 2073 Eastview Dr., Des Plaines; Harvey Frindt, two-term auditor from Niles; and Katherine (Kay) D. Korff, incumbent auditor, 1800 Lee St., Des Plaines, who was appointed to the board in September, 1971.

New GOP candidates include Dowd, former Des Plaines city attorney who may succeed retiring supervisor William "Bud" Ziehn; Roy H. Bergquist, 47, candidate for collector and a Niles resident; and Paul K. Halverson, of 1639 Oakwood Ave., Des Plaines, youngest slate candidate at 23; and Margaret Wirsan, candidate for auditor from Park Ridge.

The GOP platform includes plans to:

- Increase assistance to senior citizens.

- Improve mental health and counseling services.

- Work with municipalities to increase library facilities.

- Create commissions using the knowledge and talents of citizens.

The GOP plans to finance the projects from anticipated revenue sharing funds.

Mayoral candidates to speak tonight

Des Plaines' three mayoral candidates — David Wolf, Mayor Herbert Behrel and Burton Kosmen — will debate at 8 p.m. tonight at Plainfield School, 1850 Plainfield Dr.

The debate, moderated by the League of Women Voters, is sponsored by the Plainfield PTA.

The 5th Ward's three aldermanic candidates — Patrick J. O'Donnell, Irene M. Birchfield and Rafael A. Del Campo — also are scheduled to speak.

Other appearances planned this week are at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Cumberland Civic Association, Cumberland School, 700 Golf Rd., mayoral and treasurer candidates; Wednesday and Thursday, all candidates, before senior government classes at Maine West High School; and 7 to 10 p.m. Thursday, all candidates, at Casa Royale, 783 Lee St.

Herbert Behrel

David Wolf

"Dave, thought you would be interested," he said.

"WHERE DOES the mayor think he gets this authority?" Wolf said. "This is the very relationship I've been speaking out against where the mayor arbitrarily acts. This has caused the strained relationships in our government. When elected, I will only act when the council authorizes me to do so."

Wolf also criticized lease length. "Why is it so important to prepare this office immediately? With a six-month option, the lease will only run until March 1975 before Mandas raises the rent. There's no way that building (city hall) will be done in March 1975."

At a Szabo committee meeting Thursday city hall architects estimated construction as September 1975.

Wolf asked "what costs of construction include work that should not be the city's responsibility?"

"SURE THEY'RE permanent-type walls," the mayor said. "I don't know if there's a less costly way. We'll be there for two years."

Behrel pointed to walls in his current office where paneling has been removed to re-use in the Sears building. "This is a silly time. It's get Herb Behrel week. Everyone has lost sight of anything else."

"We already have three bids, without advertising, to do the moving," he said.

SHE WILL TRY to eat the whole thing! Emily Benjamin, 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Benjamin, 501-B N. 4th Ave., will be one of more than 2,500 children and adults expected to attend the Des Plaines Lions Club 14th Annual Community Pancake Day Saturday, from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Maine West High School Cafeteria, Wolf and Oakton Streets. Tickets are available from Lions Club members or at the door. Donation is $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for children under 12.

Colony development plans denied by board

Plans for The Colony development, Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road, were rejected last week by the Mount Prospect Plan Commission, despite a plea by Mayor Robert D. Teichert that the project be approved.

The commissioners voted 4-2 against the Lincoln Property Co.'s proposal for the 31.7-acre site. The developer wants to build 704 apartment units, a 45,000-square-foot retail center, a 256-room hotel, a four-story finance center and office building, and a 450-seat movie theater.

Basic objections to the development were its density, the fact the property is under two airplane flight patterns, and inadequate parking in the hotel-finance center area.

The developer, Brian Mahedy, had agreed to leave out one of the residential buildings in an effort to provide more open space, prior to the commission's vote. The number of units would not have been changed by the building deletion.

TEICHERT appeared at the meeting to answer questions the commission had on the village's viewpoint on the project. Instead, he began telling why the plan commission should consider approving the project despite the proposed extensive use of the property.

"I would not want the plan commission to overlook the ancillary benefits," Teichert said. Among these, he listed stabilization of the area, extension of water lines and potential village control of the industrial land west of the site.

Only six of the nine plan commissioners were at the meeting and five votes in favor of the development would have been required to recommend the village board rezoned the property.

The village board will hold a special meeting Thursday night at the village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect, to consider the annexation and rezoning of the property.

The Mount Prospect Board of Appeals last week recommended variations be granted for 106 less residential parking spaces than required, usage of 30 per cent of the property for commercial developments and to allow the developer five years' instead of one to complete the project.

Business council planned to aid Opportunity Center

A business advisory council is being formed in an effort to broaden the base of support of the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

Letters have been sent out by the center to 25 business firms in the six-township area served by the center asking the firm to appoint a member of its management team. The businessmen will serve as a liaison on the center's business advisory council.

Initially the liaison will meet individually with representatives of the center to become more aware of the problems facing low-income residents of the area and to discuss ways the business firm and center could be of mutual assistance to one another in dealing with the problems. By June it is hoped the business advisory council will be functioning as a group.

"We see this as a joint venture between business and the center that could be mutually beneficial," said Bruce Newton, director of the center.

IN ADDITION to financial assistance to the center, Newton feels businesses could lend technical expertise to the center and establish a pool of resources from which the center could draw.

The center in turn could help businesses by supplying them with the names of persons from the low-income sector of the community who might fit into positions they have open under affirmative action programs. The program is designed to hire minority and low-income persons.

Newton emphasized the purpose of the council is to help the resident low-income population and not to bring more low-income persons into the area.

Newton said this is a continuation of the center's efforts to try and educate the general community as to the problems the center sees facing the low-income population. With the dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity and discontinuance of all federal funding in April, the business advisory council is also an attempt to broaden the base of support for the center.

"We see this as a long range type of thing in which the firm could better communicate among themselves, the community they are located in and organizations in the area working with low-income residents," said Newton.

THE 25 BUSINESS firms are being selected because of geographical location, size and past relationships with the center. In the future the number of participants on the business advisory council could be expanded, according to Newton.

The formation of the business advisory council is the outgrowth of the recommendation made to the center in November by three members of the Faith in Action group of the United Church of Field house broken into

Burglars had apparently forced their way into the Lake Park Field House, near Lee Street and Touhy Avenue by kicking in a door there, Des Plaines police said Monday.

It was not known what time the incident occurred, but a Rosemont patrolman said he noticed evidence of the break-in Sunday. Nothing was reported stolen.

This teacher never shouts level of achievement in a given subject area. A paper tab is attached to a plastic slide containing a filmstrip. The slide is inserted in the machine by the child and the first question appears.

PHONOGRAPH RECORDS provide the sound. The child, listening through earphones, responds to the question by pushing one of five buttons underneath the screen. His answers are recorded on a paper tab.

By looking at the tab the teacher can quickly score the test and diagnose any learning weakness. The teacher records the test results on the student's System 80 record and prescribes corrective System 80 lessons.

If a child chooses an incorrect answer the machine does one of two things: it repeats the question, or switches to a remedial frame to explain the question, said Campbell. Periodic review lessons accompany each of the eight curricula offered: preschool, alphabet, phonics, reading, spelling, math, literacy and French.

The preschool curriculum teaches children beginning number concepts. A sample question asks the child which picture has fewer rabbits and shows the child two pictures, one with two rabbits and one with three.

The alphabet curriculum teaches students to recognize capital and small letters; phonics teaches the relationship between letters and sounds; reading trains a student to recognize words quickly; spelling words are chosen for their frequency of use by primary grade students; and math stresses basic addition, subtraction, division and multiplication.

THE LITERACY curriculum is designed to help improve high school students' and adults' reading comprehension, vocabulary and reasoning. French is at the elementary school level and teaches the child listening and speaking vocabulary.

Most children like working with the machine, Campbell said. The tone of voice is the same with each question, "it never shouts back or loses its temper," he said. It is also a useful tool for a shy child who is afraid to raise his hand in class because he might make a mistake.

Daniel Cumliff, principal at Melzer School in East Maine Elementary School Dist. 63, found slow students were able to surpass their classmates in achievement by using the machine. Students in the bottom fifth of their class were given lessons on System 80 while other students were given regular classroom instruction. In many instances the experimental group received higher scores when tested than the rest of the class.

RESEARCH for System 80 began in the Hubbard Woods School in Winnetka in 1964 under the direction of Peter Shreck, now general manager of the Niles office. Booths with two-way mirrors were constructed in the school basement so researchers could watch the reactions of children using the teaching machine. The test lessons proved valid when 80 per cent of the students answered 80 per cent of the questions correctly.

Other tests were made in Evanston, Chicago and Washington, D.C., on children of different racial and economic backgrounds. In the Chicago tests, children matched according to age, sex, and ability were divided into two groups, one using the machine 12 minutes a day. The group using the machine achieved a 31 per cent gain in word recognition and a 71 per cent gain in paragraph meaning over the second group, which remained in the classroom.

In January Borg-Warner introduced a less expensive marketing plan for schools. For a $30 a year maintenance fee, schools are loaned the teaching machine if they buy the accompanying lessons. System 80 materials are eligible for reimbursement through federal education programs, the National Defense Act and Model Cities.

election 73 Meet your city council candidates: 1st Ward

Thomas Koplos:

Flood elimination, 'orderly' downtown redevelopment on incumbent's platform

Ald. Thomas Koplos (1st) says he knows Des Plaines. He was born here. He's lived here most of his life.

"I've seen the good and the bad. I was born at Northwestern Hospital; now it's a hotel. My father farmed land here in 1922; now it's planned for condominiums."

Koplos, 40, first elected to the city council in 1969, has announced a four point campaign platform:

- Passage of a city ordinance requiring ownership disclosure of trusts seeking city zoning changes or variations.
- Elimination of flooding in the 1st Ward

- Support of "orderly redevelopment of downtown Des Plaines."

- Opposition to construction of a Metropolitan Sanitary District plant here.

KOPLoS' TRUST disclosure proposal was referred last month to the city council's code and judiciary committee for study. "The people demand to know who their neighbors are," he said. "A person's name is one of their most treasured possessions."

Koplos said he will propose alternate location of the MSD plant in southwest O'Hare airport near Taft Avenue and Irving Park Road. As a truck driver for Skokie Valley Asphalt Co., Koplos said he has driven the O'Hare land which "is used as a dumping ground for trees, brush and other debris. Old Irving Park Road is just literally lined with junk. It's been that way for two years. There's no reason the plant couldn't be located there."

Winds across the airport would push possible plant odors away from neighboring Bensenville. "And the same smell would be subsided when it reached Des Plaines," he said.

The city council "has really been responsive to the needs of the people," Koplos said. "I've seen instances where the council has changed course due to public pressure."

ON THE OTHER hand, the same council has fallen short of Koplos' 1969 campaign goals. As president of Bel Aire Civic Association and a member of Des Plaines Traffic Commission in 1969, Koplos won a three way race by calling "for an up-to-date comprehensive city plan... elimination of spot zonings of the past" and neighborhood - downtown redevelopment.

Non-incumbent candidates in 1973 still preach against spot zoning. A hearing on zoning for downtown redevelopment is scheduled April 10. And, the comprehensive plan has rested for more than a year in the council's municipal development committee without passage.

"I lay the blame directly on the aldermen," Koplos said. "I still think the comprehensive plan is a good one. I want to see it passed. If we had hired a city planner earlier and some aldermen had stopped nit-picking, the plan would be adopted by now."

KOPLoS SAID he will be "reasonably receptive to requests by developers of the superblock. I don't want to prejudice the case before the zoning board."

"The success of the entire project depends on ample parking," he said. "We'll have to decide what that is."

"The taxpayer deserves efficiency in government," Koplos said.

Construction of a proposed $2.2 million civic center complex would head-off increasing construction costs and would "give the city a tighter ship because all departments would be in one building. Construction costs have more than doubled since we first talked about this in 1960. They'll probably increase again when contracts expire June 30 so it's important to start this now."

Koplos, who said he "became active in government here in 1961," said "you cannot sit back and receive the benefits of the community without helping. I want to serve my neighbors."

On other issues:

Twenty-four candidates are seeking 11 positions from mayor to alderman in the Des Plaines city election April 17.

Only four races are uncontested — city clerk, 7th Ward, 8th Ward and the two-year term in the 4th Ward. The aldermanic candidates are competing in the 1st Ward; three in the 2nd Ward, two in the 3rd Ward, two for the four-year term in the 4th Ward, three in the 5th Ward, and three in the 6th Ward. There are two candidates for the city treasurer post and three men running for mayor.

Today, the Herald begins a series of interviews with all candidates. Ward maps and precinct polling places will appear with the interviews.

Election coverage will continue through next week.

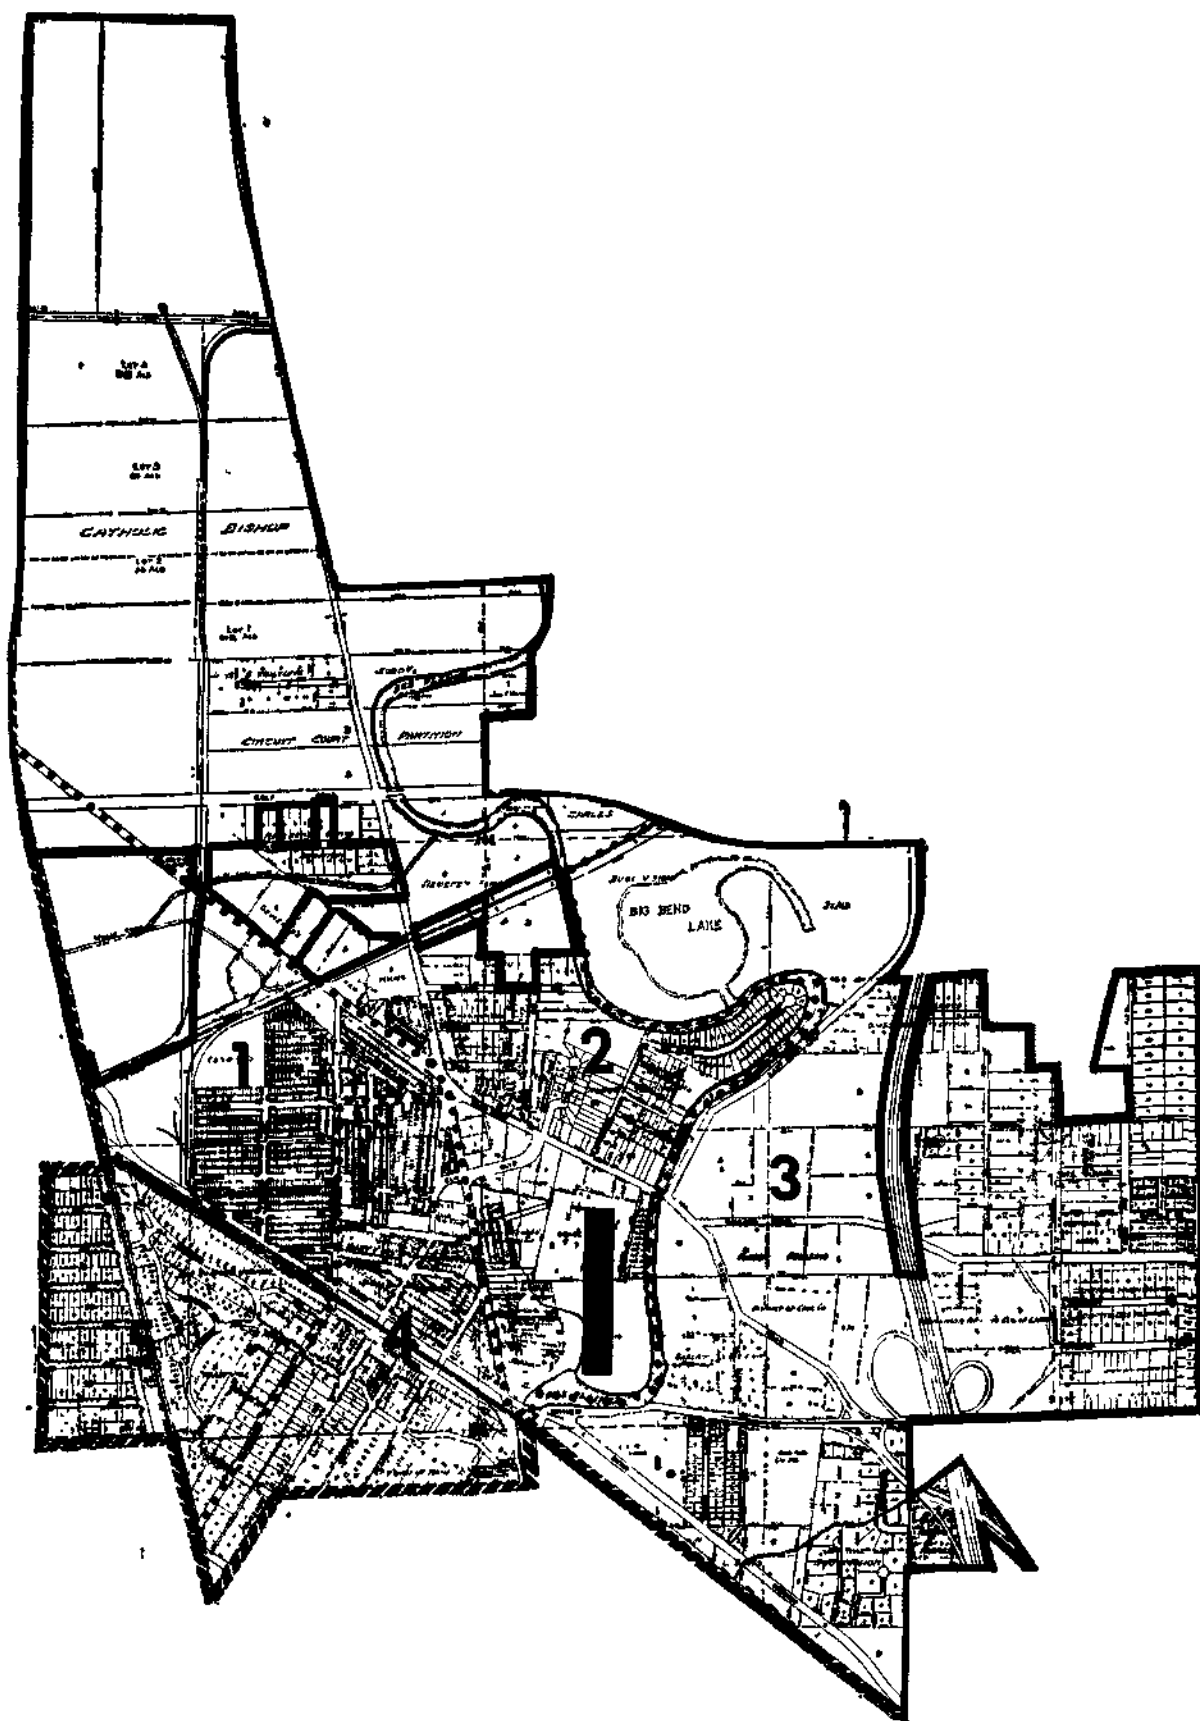

CITY GOVERNMENT: "I see no need for change in the structure of government here. I oppose a part-time mayor form of government. I can't see cutting the number of aldermen with the work we have. Three-man committees are good. Larger committees would get unwieldy and some people might be afraid to talk."

MASS TRANSPORTATION: "We must improve the local system. We need something more than just a Des Plaines system, but I'm not sure about a regional plan. I'd like to see our neighboring municipalities involved in possible motor coach purchase."

REDEVELOPMENT: "It will spur the rebirth of the downtown area. I favor orderly redevelopment of the downtown area."

ENVIRONMENT: "I'll back any environmental program within reason. We aren't doing enough. My suggestion led to hiring of the environmental control officer."

YOUTH PROBLEMS: "I prefer to see the park district develop some place where kids can go for good, clean fun. Just because I'm not married doesn't mean I'm not concerned. I wasn't a fan of the Place for People, but something has to be done."

FIRST WARD polling places include: 1st precinct — Miner St.; 4th precinct — Knights of Columbus Hall, City Hall Annex, 1428 Miner St.; 2nd precinct — North School, 1789 Rand Rd.; 3rd precinct — Rand Park, 2025 Thacker St. Polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Mary Thomas: She wants to give the 'family-oriented individual' a stronger voice

Housewife. Secretary. Homeowner. Mary Thomas is running for 1st Ward alderman because "business interests are well represented in city affairs. My vote would achieve a better balance by giving the family-oriented individual a stronger voice."

Mrs. Thomas, 820 Mason Ln., a mother of three, started her campaign by polling ward residents on questions including representation on the city council and spot zoning with a "Mary wants to know" questionnaire.

"If I am elected I will actively seek out the residents opinions on problems which they are currently faced with and try to determine the best possible solution," she said.

Mrs. Thomas, 30, is a YWCA/USO counselor and has been a member of the North School PTA since 1970. She is a legal secretary in Chicago.

As an alderman, Mrs. Thomas would be available "Saturdays, Sundays and evenings" to discuss city affairs with residents. An answering service would record calls during weekday work hours.

MRS. THOMAS plans "open general meetings to discuss issues, currently being brought up at city council meetings with residents. Those issues directly involving the 1st Ward will receive prime attention. The issues will be discussed at length and the pros and cons determined."

"I want to hear discussion before voting on them, not after," she said.

"Residents should be informed and involved. I would always question what the tax dollar is being used for," Mrs. Thomas said.

Her campaign platform includes statements that:

- "I will vote to use your tax dollar economically and effectively;

- "I am determined to preserve recreational and park district land;

- "I will utilize my vote to make Des Plaines a more beautiful city that you and I can be proud of."

CAMPAIGNING HAS been "a very interesting experience. I get views from old residents, new residents, young people. Everyone is concerned. But, they're also used to politicians promising the sky."

"I have no corporate involvements," Mrs. Thomas said.

Her campaign has been controversial. "I found when I started that people were associating me with Burton Kosmen (a mayoral candidate)."

"I am running independently. I am not associated with the Kosmen campaign,"

Stories by Al Messerschmidt

she said. "I do not have any backing from any political organization. I do not have any obligation to back or support Kosmen in his bid for the mayoral position nor do I intend to do so in the future."

Kosmen did circulate Mrs. Thomas' candidacy petitions. And, as a secretary for attorneys Mitgang, Levine and Schwartz, Mrs. Thomas filed "as a favor to Mr. Kosmen" incorporation papers for his Citizen's Action Committee.

Her candidacy "was the furthest thing from my mind" in January. "Then I started talking to people. No one should run unopposed."

On other issues:

CITY GOVERNMENT: "The people have not been represented. I am opposed to a part-time mayor, administrative assistant form of government. A city of this size warrants a full-time mayor to oversee the well being of all its residents, to be readily on hand to make immediate decisions, to be in a position to participate in committees, conferences and city business."

MASS TRANSPORTATION: "If the Des Plaines Mass Transit District purchased United Motor Coach Co., I would favor proper administration of the money, expended wisely through a special governing committee of transportation experts, appointed or elected to supervise the operation." If purchase is not possible, the city "should seek another means of providing the residents with transportation."

REDEVELOPMENT: "We certainly are faced with the problem of downtown Des Plaines. Certain buildings desperately need updating. The businessman cannot or will not make any improvements because of the threat of the proposed superblock. I would be hesitant to vote for it until more facts are known. Who owns it? Will it hurt the free enterprise system?"

"I do not favor the non-referendum funding of the proposed city hall. The issue should be placed on a referendum ballot. Our taxes will pay for this building, we are therefore entitled to have our say as to the nature and extent of spending. We need a new city hall, but bypassing the voter is not the way."

ENVIRONMENT: "I'm not opposed to plastic garbage bags. They're better than paper ones. The proposed overpass would be a big polluter in the 1st Ward. I'm not opposed to it. I just object to the current site."

YOUTH PROBLEMS: "The city has nothing for the teenager and the senior citizen. I'd want to look at the problem more in depth."

Today marks end of Rohlwing's 20-year township career

by FRED GACA

Today's Elk Grove Township election will mark the end of 20 years of service for William Rohlwing. He is retiring as township supervisor.

Rohlwing's successor will be Richard Hall, Republican candidate for supervisor, who is unopposed. Hall will officially assume the supervisor's position April 23.

Rohlwing's reason for retiring is a simple one. He said, "I'm 80 years old. I'm going to retire and just take it easy."

Elk Grove Township covers parts of Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Des Plaines. Today these municipalities together form part of the Northwest suburban area of Chicago. When Rohlwing was born on Sept. 29, 1902, there were only a few small villages surrounded by miles of farmland.

"I never expected it would grow the way it did," he said.

ROHLWING HIMSELF was a farmer. He inherited his father's land when his father died in 1906. He kept the land, located near Ill. Rts. 83 and 94, until 1938, when the property was sold. Part of it went to a private developer and part went to the Cook County Forest Preserve District. The portion sold to a developer

Stolen Maryville bus recovered by police

A bus belonging to Maryville Academy, 1150 N. River Road, Des Plaines was stolen late Wednesday. The bus was recovered about two hours later by Mount Prospect police near 412 Rand Road, police said.

Witnesses told police they saw about 15 youths getting out of the bus along Rand Road shortly before 2:30 a.m. Thursday.

is now called Woodfield Shopping Mall.

Rohlwing also followed his father's footsteps in serving as township supervisor. Rohlwing Road was named after John Rohlwing.

Supervisor is the second township office Rohlwing has held. He was tax collector during the 1930s.

Albert Wille, who served as township supervisor for 28 years, asked Rohlwing to first run in 1953. Rohlwing accepted the bid and ran unopposed in the first of the five elections in which he would campaign.

The first town office was a small frame building with a potbelied stove in the center. Rohlwing remembers the building because in the winters "it was miserably cold."

ROHLWING SAID one of his greatest achievements as supervisor was the building of a new town office at 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights. It is the only town office in the 30 Cook County townships, to have all administrative offices and the highway department under one roof.

As supervisor, Rohlwing is responsible for the administration of township government, disbursement of welfare funds and treasurer of the sewer fund. When he first took office, his salary was $400 a year. For the past four years he has earned $7,000 annually.

When Rohlwing retires, he plans to make a complete break with township government.

"I don't see where I could be of much use," he said. "Everything has become a lot more complicated. Let some of the younger fellows take over."

He has even refused to endorse any of the candidates for today's election.

While he is retired Rohlwing will have plenty of time to spend with his family. And he has plenty of family to spend the time with. A widower twice, Rohlwing has seven sons, one daughter, 21 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren. And they all live within driving distance.

Local officials urge probe of Centex assessing

by STEVE BROWN

Local officials called for examination of county tax assessment procedures yesterday in the wake of disclosures land in Schaumburg and Elk Grove industrial parks received massive tax breaks.

The disclosures, made by the Better Government Association, revealed landowners in Schaumburg and Elk Grove may be saving $300,000 in taxes each year through assessment cuts made by the Cook County Board of Appeals.

The big tax breaks have been linked to Chicago Ald. Thomas Keane and his brother George (who until last year headed the county board of appeals), and other business and political figures.

The tax cuts were given for a 171 acre parcel of land in Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park and 93 acres in the Elk Grove-Centex Industrial Park.

In both cases, the assessments were cut by more than 80 per cent, according to the BGA/Chicago Sun-Times report.

A MAJOR PORTION of the Centex-Schaumburg property is owned by Chicago attorney Jack N. Pritzker. While he could not be reached for comment, a spokesman in his office claimed the reports Pritzker used his friendship with Keane to lower taxes was untrue.

The spokesman said the appeal for reductions in tax assessments was made after County Assessor P. J. Culleton had increased the assessments in 1969.

"There are several other parcels which we received reductions on in this area," he said. The spokesman declined to identify the parcels of land or specify how much the assessments were cut.

Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher said he has no direct knowledge of any assessment reductions and said he did not want to make any additional comments until more detailed information is available.

"I certainly hope that all developments in Schaumburg are going on the tax rolls at a fair value," he added.

While Atcher and Pritzker are the owners of a 43-acre parcel of land near Schaumburg and Meacham Roads, Atcher said the property has not received any tax breaks.

COUNTY RECORDS show the land was assessed at about $13,800 last year, an increase of several thousand dollars over the 1969 assessments.

Pritzker, whose family controls the Hyatt Corp., owns several other Schaumburg land parcels, but tax records for those could not be obtained yesterday.

Elk Grove Village President Charles Zettek said he plans to take any and all action necessary to correct the situation.

"The board will do whatever is required to bring the assessed valuation up to what it should be," he said.

Officials in both the U.S. Attorney's office and the Internal Revenue Service said an investigation into the BGA's charges are now underway. No details of those probes were available.

The BGA reported that while Illinois law requires the board of appeals to specify why the assessment cuts were granted, no reasons for the board's action could be found.

Pritzker has been linked to other tax breaks given to the Hyatt Regency O'Hare hotel. The board of appeals cuts the assessment on the Pritzker owned facility by $2.7 million last year.

The land for the hotel was purchased from the late David S. Chesrow and the late William Lancaster, both men closely associated with Keane.

The Keane brothers and Chesrow are among the owners of a 78 acre parcel of land, known as the Haskins property, on Palatine Road, in Hoffman Estates.

Mrs. Mary Krause, formerly Mrs. Bargmann, now a resident of Marengo, Ill., noted the principals at Fairview School, Hoffman Estates, were very encouraging in the development of her language arts program.

"Dear Diary," a method to improving children's language skills, involves writing an entry in a diary each day. Mrs. Krause describes the diaries as the basis of a completely rounded language arts program that individualizes growth in self-expression, and teaches grammar, spelling and writing in an exciting way.

AFTER 20 YEARS of service, Elk Grove Township supervisor William Rohlwing soon will be walking out of the door to the town office for the last time. After winning five consecutive terms, he decided to retire and did not run in today's election. His successor will take office April 23.

Trustees may hire housing consultants

Two firms may be hired tonight as consultants on the Devon-53 housing project. The Elk Grove Village Board of Trustees will consider the proposal at their 8 p.m. meeting.

The village plan commission is asking the trustees to approve an expenditure of up to $4,000 to hire Allen L. Kracover & Associates Inc., of Evanston, to make a soil impact study of the proposed 267-acre project near Devon Avenue and Ill. Rte. 53.

The commission also wants approval to hire Barton-Aschman Associates Inc., of Chicago, to provide traffic planning services at a cost not to exceed $2,500.

A combination of single-family homes and apartments planned in the Devon-53 project is expected to attract about 13,000 people. A hearing on the developers' request to annex and rezone the land is expected to be conducted this month by the plan commission.

The project has been criticized by some residents who oppose high-density housing developments in the village.

Mrs. Edfors 'insane'; she won't stand trial

Mrs. Elaine Edfors, the accused slayer of her two daughters found beaten to death Feb. 26 in their Rolling Meadows home, yesterday was declared insane and ordered returned to the Department of Mental Health to be committed to a state hospital.

Circuit Court Judge Louis Garippo issued the judgment yesterday after reviewing results of court-ordered psychiatric tests performed on the 34-year-old woman.

The ruling means Mrs. Edfors will not stand trial for the double murders.

"It was a judgment, not a verdict, returned by the court," according to William Norris, one of two Cook County state's attorneys prosecuting the case.

"We were satisfied with the judgment. In light of the evidence available, it was the only fair judgment that could be returned," he said.

During earlier pre-trial actions, Mrs. Edfors pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity in connection with the case, a spokesman for the state's attorney's office said.

MRS. EDFORS had been charged for the bludgeoning deaths of her 8 and 9-year-old daughters Pamela and Debbie, more than a month ago. The girls were found on the bloodstained floor of their home at 3600 Jay Ln. by their father Thomas.

Both girls died of head injuries apparently inflicted by blows from a hammer. Mrs. Edfors was found lying unconscious alongside the girls with apparent self-inflicted cuts on her wrists and throat.

Mrs. Edfors was held without bond in Cook County Jail until the ruling yesterday. Norris said the Department of Mental Health will decide the hospital to which the woman will be taken.

Facilities, horses, bettors ready

Race track set for photos— and in more ways than one

by KURT BAER

Arlington Park Race Track officials say they are bent on turning a bad start into a first-place finish as the April 14 opening of the giant complex draws near.

"All we need is a break from the weather, which we didn't get last year," Tom Rivera, the track's director of publicity and advertising, said yesterday.

Last year, 32 per cent of Arlington's summer racing dates were plagued by wet track conditions. This year, with an early spring opening, weather could have an even bigger impact on attendance and racing conditions.

Next Saturday's opening has posed several problems usually unknown at Arlington, including a conflict with the Easter and Passover holidays.

The track will close April 17, the first day of Passover, and remain closed through April 20, Good Friday. Racing resumes Saturday, April 21, and will continue, six days a week, through the season's close, now set for July 24.

THE SPRING dates ordered by former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie's Illinois Racing Board have forced Arlington Park into a crash program to fully enclose its new concrete barns.

Last year, the track spent $2.7 million on new, fireproof barns and dormitories, Rivera said. This year, work has concentrated on improving the grandstand appearance, flood control in the stable area and repainting of old multi-colored wooden barns.

"We're gradually getting rid of the rainbow colors. This year we've been able to do some of the work that the grandstand has needed. So far we've used over 8,000 gallons of paint," Rivera said.

A new red-and-white plastic floor has been laid in the main room of the grandstand, seats and rails have been repainted and concession stands have been remodeled.

RIVERA SAID general concession prices will be the same as last year, although he said the track will have to "make some adjustments" in its Classic Club dining room menu.

"We're going to be doing some very innovative things with chicken."

In the backstretch, some of the 1,800 horses that will fill Arlington's stables already have begun to arrive, mostly from New Orleans.

"We have 1,800 stalls and this year we received applications (from trainers and owners) for 3,000 stalls. This tells me it's going to be an absolutely great season," Rivera said.

He attributed much of the interest in Arlington Park among horsemen this year to the hiring of a new racing secretary, Jack Meyers, from Hollywood Park in California.

Hollywood Park now is controlled by Marje Everett, who formerly operated Arlington Park.

"For a time it looked like we might have some trouble (getting horses) but Jack has managed to bring in some of the country's top stables," Rivera said.

MEYERS HAS rewritten Arlington's stakes schedule, which now includes 30 stakes races. The season's five biggest races, in prize money and attendance, all will be held during the second half of the season.

The $100,000 Pontiac Grand Prix will be run June 16, the $100,000 American Derby July 7, the estimated $200,000 Arlington-Washington Futurity July 14, the $100,000 Arlington Handicap July 21, and the estimated $100,000 Lassie July 24.

The opening of Interstate 90, which provides a toll-free connection between the track and downtown Chicago via the Eisenhower Expressway, and the completion of road repairs along the Northwest Tollway will encourage racing fans to drive to Arlington Park, track officials are hoping.

And the restoration of gimmick betting also is seen as a needed shot of adrenaline.

Two of the most popular forms of gimmick betting are the trifecta, where the bettor must select in order the first, second and third place horses in a race, and the quinella, where he picks the first and second horse in either order.

THE ELIMINATION of gimmick betting in the middle of the racing season last year resulted in a six per cent drop in attendance and betting last year, Rivera said.

Arlington Heights Police Sgt. Jack Weber said traffic control for the daily racing crowd will be essentially the same as it was last year, with patrolmen at the race track gates and at intersections east of the track along Euclid Avenue.

"The only thing we tentatively foresee now is the possibility of lighter crowds because of the early dates, and the possibility of inclement weather," Weber said.

New traffic lights at Euclid and Dryden also should help move traffic, he said.

"But basically our highway setup still is the same as last year. We've got the same mess at Arlington Heights and Central (roads) and we're expecting about the same traffic off the tollway."

BILLING ITSELF as this year's "Super Track," Arlington Park appears to be making a concerted effort to make 1973 a good racing season.

Track officials still are hopeful that a suit by Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott will lengthen the racing schedule here, and they believe that the reinstitution of gimmick betting and the grandstand's facelift should reverse last year's declining attendance and betting figures.

Attendance at Arlington Park dropped from 1,139,184 patrons in 1971, to 979,001 last year. Total dollars bet fell from $112,439,330 in 1971, to $105,349,875.

The biggest uncertainty remains the weather. As Arlington Park Pres. John Loomer put it recently, "If you want a sure bet this year, bet that everyone here has everything crossed, just for a sunny spring."

BRUSHING UP the grandstand at Arlington Park Race Track in preparation for the April 14 opening is part of an over-all effort to lighten and brighten the facility for this year's season. Track officials are hoping that despite the early spring dates assigned them by the former Illinois Racing Board, 1973 will prove to be a good year at Arlington Park.

Welfare cases up 10 per cent

Welfare cases in Elk Grove Township increased by 10 per cent in 1972 compared to 1971, according to township officials.

A total of 428 cases, involving 1,186 persons, were handled by the township office in 1972. In 1971, the township had 387 welfare cases.

Although the number of cases increased, the total amount of aid dropped 7.7 per cent, down to $39,578 in 1972 from $42,864 in 1971. Margaret Blaschke, assistant social worker, said the aid decreased because the amount of aid varies for each case.

Township policy on welfare cases is to supply immediate relief and continue assistance until the case can be transferred to the county welfare rolls.

Man, 23, charged in adding machine theft

George R. Gramont, 23, of Bensenville, was arrested Saturday by Elk Grove Village police and charged with the theft of an adding machine from Field Container Corp.

Gramont was stopped by police when he was seen carrying the office equipment along a street in the Centex Industrial Park. He is an employee of Field Container Corp.

A May 9 court date in Elk Grove Village has been set for Gramont.

Birch Society starts 'Nix on OSHA' group

The local chapter of the John Birch Society has organized the Northwest "Nix on OSHA" committee. The group offers assistance to business firms they contend are being deprived of constitutional rights by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

Phil Dowd, a member of the local Birch chapter, said, "Under the guise of promoting employee health and safety, the federal government has started a new program that could destroy all private business in this country."

Persons interested in the "Nix on OSHA" committee can contact Dowd at 467 Cedar Ln., Elk Grove Village.

This teacher never shouts back

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Keith sits in front of the white box in the corner of the classroom. "Find the first letter in pipe," says the machine, and a picture of a man with a pipe appears on the screen. He pushes the button indicating the letter "p," the machine buzzes and advances to the next question.

The teaching machine, called System 80, was developed by Borg-Warner Corp. and marketed in 1970. National headquarters for the education research division of Borg-Warner are located in Niles, and the machines are used by several local schools including River Trails School in Des Plaines and Salt Creek School in Elk Grove Village.

The machine is designed to supplement regular classroom instruction, according to Greg Campbell, a representative of Borg-Warner. It can be used to help the student who has been absent keep up with his classmates or the new student just transferred to the school.

The machine also can provide supplemental exercises for an underachiever or can help a student who is good in one subject and poor in another, said Campbell. Teachers can use System 80 to diagnose the particular learning weaknesses of each student by giving machine scored tests.

Before a child begins a System 80 program, the test is given to determine his level of achievement in a given subject area. A paper tab is attached to a plastic slide containing a filmstrip. The slide is inserted in the machine by the child and the first question appears.

PHONOGRAPH RECORDS provide the sound. The child, listening through earphones, responds to the question by pushing one of five buttons underneath the screen. His answers are recorded on a paper tab.

By looking at the tab the teacher can quickly score the test and diagnose any learning weakness. The teacher records the test results on the student's System 80 record and prescribes corrective System 80 lessons.

If a child chooses an incorrect answer the machine does one of two things: it repeats the question, or switches to a remedial frame to explain the question, said Campbell. Periodic review lessons accompany each of the eight curricula offered: preschool, alphabet, phonics, reading, spelling, math, literacy and French.

The preschool curriculum teaches children beginning number concepts. A sample question asks the child which picture has fewer rabbits and shows the child two pictures, one with two rabbits and one with three.

The alphabet curriculum teaches students to recognize capital and small letters; phonics teaches the relationship between letters and sounds; reading trains a student to recognize words quickly; spelling words are chosen for their frequency of use by primary grade students; and math stresses basic addition, subtraction, division and multiplication.

THE LITERACY curriculum is designed to help improve high school students' and adults' reading comprehension, vocabulary and reasoning. French is at the elementary school level and teaches the child listening and speaking vocabulary.

Most children like working with the machine, Campbell said. The tone of voice is the same with each question, "it never shouts back or loses its temper," he said. It is also a useful tool for a shy child who is afraid to raise his hand in class because he might make a mistake.

Daniel Cuniff, principal at Melzer School in East Maine Elementary School Dist. 63, found slow students were able to surpass their classmates in achievement by using the machine. Students in the bottom fifth of their class were given lessons on System 80 while other students were given regular classroom instruction. In many instances the experimental group received higher scores when tested than the rest of the class.

RESEARCH for System 80 began in the Hubbard Woods School in Winnetka in 1964 under the direction of Peter Shreck, now general manager of the Niles office. Booths with two-way mirrors were constructed in the school basement so researchers could watch the reactions of children using the teaching machine. The test lessons proved valid when 80 per cent of the students answered 80 per cent of the questions correctly.

Other tests were made in Evanston, Chicago and Washington, D.C., on children of different racial and economic backgrounds. In the Chicago tests, children matched according to age, sex, and ability were divided into two groups, one using the machine 12 minutes a day. The group using the machine achieved a 31 per cent gain in word recognition and a 71 per cent gain in paragraph meaning over the second group, which remained in the classroom.

In January Borg-Warner introduced a less expensive marketing plan for schools. For a $30 a year maintenance fee, schools are loaned the teaching machine if they buy the accompanying lessons. System 80 materials are eligible for reimbursement through federal education programs, the National Defense Act and Model Cities.

Man charged with striking his wife

Donald Mueller, of 189 Basswood, Elk Grove Village, was charged with battery Saturday after an alleged incident in which Mueller struck his wife, Marilyn, while they were riding in a car in Elk Grove Village.

Mueller was released on $1,000 bond, is scheduled to appear in Elk Grove Village branch of Cook County Circuit Court April 25.

SYSTEM 80, A TEACHING machine developed by the Borg-Warner Corp., is used by local schools to supplement regular classroom instruction in reading, math, phonics, spelling and French. The machine, marketed in 1970, was developed in Hubbard Woods school in Winnetka and tested in elementary schools throughout the country. Keith Hedgpath, student at River Trails School in Des Plaines, uses the machine for a lesson in alphabet work.

For reelection:

Donnie Rudd

A responsibility to use each tax dollar efficiently and to provide the best possible education are the chief functions Donnie Rudd cites for any school board.

Rudd, 1973 A Kenilworth Cr., Hoffman Estates, is seeking reelection to the Schaumburg Township Elementary School Dist. 54 board of education. He sees many challenges ahead for education.

"Big things will be happening in the next three years in both the U.S. Supreme Court and General Assembly," Rudd said.

The 31-year-old patent attorney for the Quaker Oats Co. believes school officials should take the lead in such areas as equalized education and new forms of school financing.

RUDD HAS been on the school board since 1970 serving as board president part of the time. He also has been a member of the Hoffman Estates Plan Commission.

He believes the latter position has helped the school district obtain both land and financial donations from developers.

"With more of the district developed, it will be tougher to get contributions, but we must continue to be aggressive," he said.

The school district should be represented in all villages so that school officials can meet developers while their plans are being studied by a municipality, Rudd said.

In the area of educational programs, Rudd said the district's recently expanded reading and social science programs have given pupils a well-rounded program.

He said the district has attempted to improve communication with parents and teachers by increasing conferences and revising the report card to give a more thorough student evaluation.

COMMUNICATION between the school board and teachers also has improved since last year when contract negotiations broke down and teachers threatened to strike.

This year, the board has hired a professional negotiator to iron out a contract, and Rudd said this will remove some of the personality problems that might have affected the talks.

"I do not think there will be a strike threat this year because of bills before the General Assembly that will benefit teachers, they will not take the chance of alienating people now," Rudd explained. On the topic of the unit school district study initiated by the Village of Schaumburg, Rudd said it should have been directed by the school district.

"I have learned that I was elected to make the educational decisions, therefore I feel that any study should be undertaken by the school district," he said.

RUDD LED a district unit study last year that concluded that formation of a unit district would not be advantageous. The committee was reactivated recently and Rudd pledged cooperation with the Schaumburg Township study.

"I think the committee will have to show educational gains from a unit district, before I could agree to it," Rudd said.

A graduate of Texas A and M and Chicago-Kent College of Law, Rudd also is an engineer. He has been a member of the Schaumburg Township Committee on Youth and the township Young Republicans.

For reelection:

Mary B. Hannon

Maintaining a balance between what the community wants and what educators advise is how Mary (Bonnie) Hannon sees her role as Dist. 54 school board member.

Now a candidate for reelection to the board, Mrs. Hannon says she has changed her concept of board responsibility since she last ran in 1969. "At that time I thought a board member should try to make a forward moving, shining, innovative school district. But it is not really the aim of a board member to propose innovative programs."

Mrs. Hannon is the mother of four children and a part-time teacher at St. Collette School in Rolling Meadows. She lives at 1407 Hampton Ln., Schaumburg.

HER GOAL IN running for the board is to provide children with the best possible education, not necessarily to reduce taxes, she said. The individually guided education program is one she finds particularly beneficial.

IGE is presently established in only two schools. When the community is fully "sold" on IGE and when money allows, it will become a district-wide program, Mrs. Hannon said.

Her attitude towards forming a unit school district in Schaumburg emphasized cooperation with the community. "I'm open-minded as to whether a unit district should be formed. I think Dist. 54 should cooperate with the citizens' study, but the best role might be an advisory one." She is a non-voting advisor to the committee.

It is worthwhile, she said, to have a professional study done, even though Dist. 54 conducted its own study previously. "It might hurt the study to have the district sponsor it," she said.

AGGRESSIVE IS THE key word in Mrs. Hannon's approach to building donations to the schools. "As other community needs become pressing, it is going to be more difficult for the school board to make an impressive case for the schools," she said.

The school board should be involved in planning for new developments, she said, even if it means going to the zoning hearings to plead the schools' case. "I hope we can work out guidelines so we don't have to attend all the meetings, but if necessary, we should just go."

Teacher negotiations for the 1973-74 contracts are now beginning, she said, and fortunately teacher-board relations have improved considerably since last September.

The board should have a representative at every negotiating session, even if there is a professional negotiator present, she said. Otherwise the board is falling down on its job, she added. "It's also easier to sell the board on the settlement if there's a board member there."

COSTS ARE IMPORTANT, and Mrs. Hannon said the school board has done a good job in getting low-cost buildings that are functional and attractive. Preventive maintenance has saved money, she added.

The data processing service for which the district has contracted through the Northwest Educational Cooperative program is one financial worry she will investigate. While membership in NEC has been valuable, she said the data processing could have been done cheaper by private firms.

With more and more working mothers, Mrs. Hannon also sees the community urging the district to operate a lunch program in each school. However, in the event of a tax bind, the lunch program would go before academic offerings such as French, she said.

Mrs. Hannon believes programs are as important a concern of the school board as money matters. "Accountability and community involvement, as the new state education guidelines insist on, are very important. Rising costs and wage requests keep the school board wrapped up in money problems. It's good to have someone urging programs."

Newcomer:

John Hayes

"Joe Average" is how school board candidate John Hayes of Schaumburg describes himself. "I'll bring a sincere desire to serve and my experiences and opinions as a parent and taxpayer to the board, if I'm elected," he said.

"I may not bring a wealth of educational or professional background to the school board, but I believe a concern to provide the best education for children is a prime requirement for the job," he said.

"I've got that concern, and want to make sure this school district continues to do an above average job educating children," he said.

Hayes is not sure if he favors a unit school district instead of the present dual district with separate high school and elementary boards and administrations.

"Frankly, I'm worried that the elementary schools will suffer if this area goes to unit district. I don't think one board of education will be able to adequately take care of so large a district or be aware of its needs," he said.

HAYES WOULD, however, favor a unit district "if an unbiased study shows it to bring educational and financial benefits and it's what the people want."

The candidate favors professional salary contract negotiations between teachers and board. With both parties now using professional negotiators, there should be less teacher-board friction this contract year. Hayes does not believe teachers have a right to dictate things like classroom size to a board of education, but says they should be asked to help evaluate curriculum and programs.

He would leave curriculum decisions to the administrators and consultants, said Hayes. He sees his job as a board member as a policy maker, and thinks the present administrators and consultants do a good job of selecting, putting into practice and testing new methods of teaching.

Hayes said his candidacy is not based on dissatisfaction.

"I think this board is doing a good job now, and I want to be in on the decision making to see that this district keeps forging ahead, and doesn't decide it's reached a plateau," he said.

COMMUNITY involvement is something for which Hayes would work, if elected. "I'd like to get the public involved and informed about what's going on in the district," said Hayes. "They should be concerned how their money is being spent, yet you see so few people at board meetings."

Hayes would like the board to send out advance meeting agendas "so people would know what's going to be discussed at a meeting beforehand, instead of finding out what happens after it's been acted upon."

John Hayes

The district has done a good job of seeking cash and school sites from builders and should continue its aggressive actions, said Hayes.

"Keeping ahead of the demand for schools, so children will never face double shifting," is Hayes' goal if elected.

Donations from builders can provide schools, but if this falls the voters should be willing to tax themselves, said Hayes.

THE DISTRICT should not be stingy when it comes to providing a good education, but should be careful not to overspend.

"A district-administered lunch program might be nice because so many mothers work, but if it costs a lot of money, I'm against it," Hayes said.

Hayes, his wife Margaret and three children live at 604 Brewster Ln., Schaumburg. He is employed as a grocery manager for Jewel Food Stores, is a member of the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township and the North Suburban Managers' Association.

Newcomer:

Margaret Pageler

An open-minded approach to education is the most important quality Mrs. Margaret Pageler hopes to contribute to the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 board of education.

A former teacher, Mrs. Pageler said her work experience proved to her the effectiveness of any curriculum is limited only by the abilities of the teacher and students. Because she believes this, she is not prejudiced against either traditional or innovative teaching methods, but is concerned that the individual teacher feel comfortable with the approach used, she said.

She has set criteria for deciding how to vote on any item brought to the school board. She would ask "does it work, is it feasible to the staff and is it the place priorities should go as far as financing?" The prime question, she said, is "does it help kids learn?"

TEACHING EXPERIENCE will be an asset in other ways, said Mrs. Pageler. The district employs many, she said, "feel a kinship with someone who has taught. I can understand the kind of situations they face."

But Mrs. Pageler also is a parent — she has four children at home at 269 Ida Rd., Hoffman Estates. And she believes parent involvement in district decisions should be encouraged more. One way to do that would be to give more credence to recommendations from committees. She has been told in her campaign committee recommendations are sometimes vetoed by the board, without adequate reason. While she added, "I don't know if it's true," she favors a strong committee system capable of "carrying a great deal of work." She also would favor parental participation in establishing school boundaries.

While unit school districts have become an issue, Mrs. Pageler has not yet formed a hard opinion on them. Such a district for all of Schaumburg Township would be unwieldy, she believes, noting that Dist. 54 already is the largest elementary system in the state.

"By the time we get to saturation, we may be just way beyond the community school," she said.

BUT MRS. PAGELER does believe a unit system would have some advantages — better coordination of programming between junior and senior high schools and parity in salaries for elementary school teachers, who now are paid less than high school teachers. She favors cooperation between the Dist. 54 committee studying unit districts and a citizen group in the Village of Schaumburg, "as long as they're not duplicating work done already."

Dist. 54 has "set good standards," said Mrs. Pageler, and the goal of future board members should be "to maintain standards in view of growth." These standards are in "parent involvement and pride in the work of young people and the school."

Also, she said, the district's levels are high for teacher qualifications, salaries and working conditions. She would prefer lower class size in kindergarten sessions, but noted there may be restrictions due to the amount of available classroom space.

TEACHER-BOARD relationships are "not very good," said Mrs. Pageler, but there will always be barriers between the two groups, she believes. One way to minimize that feeling, and to improve the effectiveness of administrators, is for principals and board members to "try to get into classrooms as much as possible." She suggests more principals should substitute for absent teachers than do now.

The move this year in contract negotiations by both the board and teachers to use professional negotiators is logical, said Mrs. Pageler. Because teachers are a labor group, both sides "need to use the kind of negotiating tools labor has worked out."

Mrs. Pageler was born in China, the daughter of missionaries, and attended British schools except for part of fifth grade and college.

Newcomer:

Brenda Pulla

Improving communications between the community and the school board and increasing citizen participation in district affairs are goals candidate Brenda Pulla seeks.

The mother of two Dist. 54 school children, Mrs. Pulla would invite citizens to sit on district committees and encourage them to care about the education their children receive.

"Individuals just don't care how the board spends their money. Suburbanites tend to lead very sterile lives, concerned that the floor is waxed and the kitchen table shiny clean. We don't see things beyond our inside world."

Mrs. Pulla lives at 1185 Windsor Ln., Hanover Park, with her husband Dennis.

SHE IS A MEMBER of the Dist. 54 board of education legislation committee, chairman of the Schaumburg Area Council of PTAs legislation committee, president of Anne Fox School PTA, and a member of the advisory committee on education for the 3rd Legislative District.

"My primary concern is with elementary school children," she said, prefacing her remarks on the unit school district controversy. "I haven't given a lot of thought to high school students."

Consequently, she "would have to see Dist. 54 top-heavy with preoccupation with high school programs." The citizen study on the feasibility of the unit district may show a need for reorganization, but "I can't see forming a unit district simply for monetary benefit," she said.

She also pointed out that the disparity between state funding for unit and dual districts has been lessened, although unit districts do receive slightly more money.

The board of education has to make itself available to the unit district committee, she added, and should keep the lines of communication open.

AS TEACHERS AND the school board begin negotiations for 1973-74 contracts, Mrs. Pulla said she hopes talks will be more effective than those conducted last year. "The two parties were not talking to each other, but were talking at each other," she said.

Teachers as a group are more concerned now and more vocal, she said, adding that this is a good thing. "Teachers are in the school all the time. Their opinions should be listened to and weighed. I think the teachers are very interested in the children's education — they aren't trying to take over the schools."

A professional negotiator will aid salary talks, because he will be more knowledgeable about contracts and the negotiating process. "It might avoid some of this talking at each other," she added.

Time and evaluation are key words in Mrs. Pulla's opinion on innovative teaching programs such as individually guided education, now established in two district schools. "So far IGE has not been proven to be advantageous or disadvantageous. If it creates a better learning atmosphere and the kids can better function in the outside world, it's a success and should be extended district-wide," she said.

MRS. PULLA DESCRIBES herself as having backbone and the guts to stand up and take the knocks as well as the praise.

This firmness becomes evident as she discusses developers' donations to the schools. "Dist. 54 should be aggressive, keep continued pressure on the villages, attend meetings and make its views known."

She favors state legislation that would require developers to give land or money to school districts if their building increases the schools' burden.

She is equally opposed to the state controlling local education, something she thinks recent state guidelines requiring the district to describe its educational goals attempts to do. "The guidelines have been interpreted as trying to tell the districts what to teach and how to teach it."

When districts get state money, they get state control, she contends. "But there's too much power based in the state now. I'd like to see some of it revert back to the people."

By running for the school board, Mrs. Pulla said she is getting involved on the local level in the decision-making process. "I want to move inside, where the action is," she said.

Newcomer:

Wayne Silva

School Dist. 54 should think of itself as a political government agency and aggressively seek additional revenue through legislative measures, said Wayne Silva.

Silva, a Schaumburg resident and former teacher, presently works as assistant village attorney for Arlington Heights. He thinks schools have been relying on builders for unpredictable generosity and real estate taxes for financing too long.

In a fast-growing district, the school board should not have to depend on voluntary contributions. It should have the security of knowing legislative teeth will help get it the money to build and maintain schools, he said.

SILVA said he would support legislation that would make builder contributions mandatory.

He fears that if Dist. 54 does not continue to look aggressively for money, class size will increase and the district's present scheduling of three shifts of kindergarten in some schools will continue.

Until such legislation is in effect, Silva would, if elected, "maintain a talking relationship with municipalities, especially people like the chairmen of planning and zoning committees."

Silva said he does not know much about curriculum or differing educational programs, but would, if elected, value teachers' and consultants' opinions. Silva, his wife Jeannette and 10-month-old son live at 1333 Flintshire Dr.

"I don't have a school-age child but I have the personal reaction that this district is rated highly," said Silva. "I want to have something to do with how this district grows now, before my son's in school and while I have the time to devote," said Silva.

SILVA wants to research unit school districts. He will wait for the Schaumburg Unit School District Feasibility Study results to take a stand on the issue.

"If it's an unbiased report and shows educational advantages for a unit district I'd be for it," he said.

A school district-administered lunch program should be established, said Silva.

"I pay taxes too and I don't want to see a tax runaway, but realistically speaking, a lunch program makes sense.

Wayne Silva

We just have to figure how to do it so it doesn't cost too much," said Silva.

WHEN IT comes to teacher-board relations, Silva believes teachers should be treated as professionals. He approves the use of professional negotiators in teacher-board salary negotiations this year.

If the board and teachers have respect for each others' opinions, there should be no breakdown of communication, said Silva. He would encourage exchanges of information.

Silva would like to put his experience as an attorney to work for the board and believes his expertise in municipal government will benefit the district.

"I see a seat on this school board as more important than a post as village trustee," said Silva. "Not just because it's big, but because it deals with something precious — children."

Township, park districts holding elections today

Voters in the Palatine area will elect the leaders for Palatine Township, Palatine Park District and the Salt Creek Rural Park District today.

A hot campaign centering on a movement to abolish township government has marked the Palatine Township race, with incumbent Howard I. Olsen leading the Republican slate on a platform to retain and expand township government.

Opposing Democrats have promised a referendum that could abolish township government, a cause supported by Jack Scollay, Olsen's opponent. Candidates in today's election are:

REPUBLICANS — Olsen, supervisor; Ruth Ellen Blowney, clerk; Robert Bergman, highway commissioner; Albert F. DePue, collector; Bernard Pedersen, assessor; and auditors Donald G. Belm, Liston F. Pennington, Gary L. Price and Charles M. Zimmerman.

DEMOCRATS — Scollay, supervisor; Mary Sue Butler, clerk; Peter J. Gerling, highway commissioner; SaRy K. Kehe, collector; Edward J. Sullivan, Jr., assessor; and auditors Paul McWilliams, Stanley Martin, David Mergenthaler, and George Stewart.

Polling places in 46 precincts will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. today for the township race.

Seeking the two available seats on the Salt Creek Park board are incumbents Henry Deihl, Walter Peppler, and challenger Pat Miramonti. Two of the three will be elected to six-year terms.

Voters in the district may cast ballots from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the following places: Precinct 1, at 146 Bell Dr.; Precinct 2, at Rose Park, 530 S. Williams; and Precinct 3, at 2007 Theda St.

Bennett joins park board race

Jim Bennett, Palatine director of public works, said yesterday he will seek a write-in victory for one of two park commissioner positions up for election today.

Incumbents whose names appear on the ballot are Paul Jensen, 115 S. Benton St., and James Jones, 615 N. Benton St.

Only one polling place is open for the Palatine park district election, at the park administration building, 262 E. Palatine Rd. Polls remain open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., and registered voters living in the park district are eligible to vote.

THE TWO park board commissioners elected today will have six-year terms. The full board has five members.

Jensen is current board president and has served on the park board 12 years.

"I'm very concerned now about carrying out this referendum," Jensen said of the recently-approved $1.4 million park improvement referendum. He said water recreation areas, for fishing, boating, swimming, and a better ice skating facility are long-range goals he sees for the park district.

Serving as an appointed board member for the past 5½ years, Jones is seeking his first elected term as park commissioner. The park board's job is to "provide the services and facilities of a growing population. Trying to administer what we already have is a big task," Jones said. And like Jensen, Jones puts the referendum plans and their completion as the park board's first order of business.

BENNETT, 45, of 715 W. Kenilworth, has been Palatine's public works director for the past eight years. Before deciding to run for the park position, Bennett said he checked with Berton Braun, village manager, to clear up any possible problems with holding both the village and park positions.

Bennett said yesterday he decided to run the write-in campaign after the October referendum. He was against that referendum, but since it has passed, he believes his background in the building trades could be helpful.

"I thought I could be some help to them (the park board) in getting the best deal on the pool and other things in the referendum," Bennett said.

Recent bids returned from building the Birchwood Park swimming pool and gymnasium came in some 25 per cent higher than park commissioners anticipated. The park district's architect has been trying since then to lower costs of the project to bring it within the original budget.

IF THE budget cuts for the pool and gymnasium become too severe, park commissioners may decide to act as their own general contractor instead of giving the project to the contractor making the lowest bid. While attending recent meetings of the park board, Bennett told current commissioners substantial savings might be possible through the self-contractor route.

Park commissioners are trying to strike a balance between plans they proposed to voters in the referendum and the unexpectedly high cost of those plans.

Cost estimates of the pool and gymnasium were not revised by the architect to reflect several additions to the plans made by park commissioners before the project went out for bids in March.

WRESTLING HAS ITS ups and downs, as young Kevin Wilson of Arlington Heights is finding out. He's getting caught from behind here by John Jesko, a Carol Stream youth, in the Palatine Park District wrestling tournament last weekend. Participants came from eight towns in the Northwest suburbs to join the action at Palatine High School. All wrestlers were eighth graders or younger.

At 3 key intersections

Palatine Road widening study OK'd

A study was authorized last night for the widening of Palatine Road at three key intersections, to relieve traffic congestion in downtown Palatine.

The Palatine Village Board directed the village's consulting engineer to draw plans to widen Palatine Road at Plum Grove Road, Brockway Street, and Smith Street.

Trustees appropriated up to $3,500 for the design plans, to be made by Walter Hodel, of Consoer, Townsend Associates. The study was recommended by Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun, who told trustees the improvement of Palatine Road west of Hicks Road, planned by the state highway department, will not be made for at least 10 years.

He indicated the village would be "well advised" to proceed with intersections now, rather than wait for the state's improvements.

Braun did not estimate the cost of the project, but said it could be paid for by motor fuel taxes, and may be eligible for state or county funding.

The Palatine Road project being considered by the state at the recommendation of the village calls for Palatine Road to be rerouted along what is now Johnson Street, one block south of the present Palatine Road, to bypass the central business district.

Meanwhile, further east, the state highway department indicated yesterday that bids for the improvement of Palatine Road near Winston Drive, would be let June 8.

That project involves the widening of Palatine Road at Winston and Williams drives to allow for turn lanes.

Siren test today

The regular monthly testing of the Palatine civil defense siren will take place today. The test will begin at 10:30 a.m. and last several minutes.

Feminine trip slated

Neil Simon's play, "The Last of the Red Hot Lovers," is the April 25 outing for the Palatine Park District Feminine trip. Registration is under way this morning.

The play starring Pat Paulsen is currently at the Pheasant Run theater. On April 25, a bus will leave from the park district office at noon and will return at 5:30 p.m. Cost of the trip is $10.50, including bus, lunch, tax, gratuity and theater ticket. Four menu selections are available for lunch.

Reservations can be mailed or phoned in to the park district office, 262 E. Palatine Rd., at 359-0533. Phone reservations must be paid within one week. A maximum of 39 people may register.

Mrs. Edfors 'insane'; won't be tried

Mrs. Elaine Edfors, the accused slayer of her two daughters found beaten to death Feb. 26 in their Rolling Meadows home, yesterday was declared insane and ordered returned to the Department of Mental Health to be committed to a state hospital.

Circuit Court Judge Louis Garippo issued the judgment yesterday after reviewing results of court-ordered psychiatric tests performed on the 34-year-old woman.

The ruling means Mrs. Edfors will not stand trial for the double murders. "It was a judgment, not a verdict, returned by the court," according to William Norris, one of two Cook County state's attorneys prosecuting the case. "We were satisfied with the judgment. In light of the evidence available, it was the only fair judgment that could be returned," he said.

During earlier pre-trial actions, Mrs. Edfors pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity in connection with the case, a spokesman for the state's attorney's office said.

MRS. EDFORS had been charged for the bludgeoning deaths of her 8 and 9-year-old daughters Pamela and Debbie, more than a month ago. The girls were found on the bloodstained floor of their home at 3600 Jay Ln. by their father Thomas.

Both girls died of head injuries apparently inflicted by blows from a hammer. Mrs. Edfors was found lying unconscious alongside the girls with apparent self-inflicted cuts on her wrists and throat.

Mrs. Edfors was held without bond in Cook County Jail until the ruling yesterday. Norris said the Department of Mental Health will decide the hospital to which the woman will be taken.

Northwest Center 'hike' Sunday

Nearly 2,000 persons are expected to turn out for Sunday's fifth annual "Hike for Your Neighbor" to raise funds for the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

The expected turnout is more than double the number of participants in last year's hike.

A fund-raising goal has not been set for this year's hike but the hike committee would like to top last year's $13,000 mark. The hike has taken on new importance as a fund raising activity this year with the dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity and cutoff of all federal funding. The center is now faced with the task of raising all of its $130,000 budget locally.

The center last year served approximately 1,700 families from the six township area of Palatine, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Hanover and Barrington, and parts of Maine Township.

The center's services include food stamps, Operation Nutrition, housing assistance, legal aid, job referral, family planning assistance, dental checkups, Foster Grandparent Program and several referral programs. The center also provides clothing, emergency food, household items and financial aid to needy families.

RECRUITMENT EFFORTS for hikers are being concentrated at Harper College, Dist 211 and 214 high schools, Sacred Heart of Mary High School, St. Victor High School, the majority of junior high schools in the area and several church youth groups.

When the participants sign up for the hike they are given a pledge card and asked to solicit pledges from individuals and businesses for each mile they walk. The pledge cards will be validated at checkpoints during the hike.

The hikers will receive a grand tour of the Northwest suburbs. Starting at 8 a.m. from Maine East High School in Park Ridge, the hikers will make a 20-mile circuit winding through Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Palatine before ending at the Northwest Opportunity Center.

Sore feet and other medical problems occurring on the hike will be handled by a registered nurse who will follow the hikers in a first aid wagon.

Ham radio operators will also accompany the hikers monitoring their progress and any problems that may occur.

The hike committee has arranged for police protection across several busy intersections.

HIKERS WILL have an opportunity to rest and build up their strength for the remainder of the hike at seven checkpoints established along the route. Several adults have volunteered to serve as hike marshals and man checkpoints.

The route for the "Hike for Your Neighbor" is as follows:

Correction

An article in yesterday's Herald stated that the Orchard Hills Homeowners Association, along with two other Palatine homeowners groups, is encouraging its members to write to Washington for financial support of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Plan.

Stephen Haas, president of the Orchard Hills group, said yesterday individuals may be writing to their congressmen, but that the homeowners association has not taken a stand.

"We're waiting to see what happens before we decide what course to take," he said.

SUNDAY'S 20-MILE "Hike for Your Neighbor" will be broken up by eight checkpoints. After registering at 7 a.m. the hike will start at 8 a.m. at Maine East High School in Park Ridge (1); the hikers will proceed to West Park Field House in Des Plaines (2); then to Gregory School in Mount Prospect (3); Miner Junior High School in Arlington Heights (4); Hasbrook Field House in Arlington Heights (5); Maple Park in Palatine (6); Christ Lutheran Church in Palatine (7), and end at the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows (8).

Parks bids lower than expected

Palatine Park District commissioners got some good news yesterday when bids for referendum park improvements came in approximately 20 to 25 per cent lower than the $250,000 expected.

Specific bid totals were not available yesterday but will be reviewed tonight by park commissioners at an adjourned meeting at Community Park, 7:30 p.m.

The low bids were particularly good news for the park board, because only three weeks ago, bids for the single biggest project came in 25 per cent higher than estimated. That setback resulted in a $220,000 deficit that commissioners will have to make up by changing the plans or through other approaches to constructing the project.

Projects in the most recent bids include construction of the Palatine Trail from Anderson Drive to Smith Street, Doug Lindberg Park, Sycamore Park, five Hunting Ridge parks (Peregrine, Partridge, Whippoorwill, Sparrow and Mallard parks), and Cherrywood Park in Reseda West subdivision. Certain improvements in Community Park were also in the bids, except lighting and pool renovation.

The first bids, for a swimming pool and gymnasium in Birchwood Park, Illinois and Bennett avenues, were estimated to be $840,000, but the actual bids totalled nearly $1,060,000.

RIDING INTO the 1973 thoroughbred season opener at Arlington Park, jockeys and trainers have begun to take up quarters in the race track's backstretch. The old multi-colored barns have been repainted white, and new traffic controls have been imposed in an effort to restore a more pastoral appearance to the vast stable area that will be home for 1,800 horses and nearly 1,000 jockeys, trainers and stable hands.

Palatine-Quentin upgrading OK'd by County Board

The Cook County Board yesterday agreed to improve the intersection of Palatine and Quentin roads in Palatine Township, but the improvements probably won't be made until next year.

The board adopted a resolution calling for a slight widening of the intersection and the installation of traffic signals.

The $330,000 cost of the improvements, however, was not appropriated. Francine B. Stuart, a spokesman for the county highway department, said the project probably won't be undertaken until spring of 1974, when the money is expected to be available. The funds are to come from the county's motor fuel taxes, she said.

The intersection of Palatine and Quentin roads has been regulated by four-way stop signs for about a year. Previously, only Quentin Road traffic stopped.

Arlington Park set for photos—in more ways than one

by KURT BAER

Arlington Park Race Track officials say they are bent on turning a bad start into a first-place finish as the April 14 opening of the giant complex draws near. "All we need is a break from the weather, which we didn't get last year," Tom Rivera, the track's director of publicity and advertising, said yesterday.

Last year, 32 per cent of Arlington's summer racing dates were plagued by wet track conditions. This year, with an early spring opening, weather could have an even bigger impact on attendance and racing conditions.

Next Saturday's opening has posed several problems usually unknown at Arlington, including a conflict with the Easter and Passover holidays.

The track will close April 17, the first day of Passover, and remain closed through April 20, Good Friday. Racing resumes Saturday, April 21, and will continue, six days a week, through the season's close, now set for July 24.

THE SPRING dates ordered by former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie's Illinois Racing Board have forced Arlington Park into a crash program to fully enclose its new concrete barns.

Last year, the track spent $2.7 million on new, fireproof barns and dormitories, Rivera said. This year, work has concentrated on improving the grandstand appearance, flood control in the stable area and repainting of old multi-colored wooden barns.

"We're gradually getting rid of the rainbow colors. This year we've been able to do some of the work that the grandstand has needed. So far we've used over 8,000 gallons of paint," Rivera said.

A new red-and-white plastic floor has been laid in the main room of the grandstand, seats and rails have been repainted and concession stands have been remodeled.

RIVERA SAID general concession prices will be the same as last year, although he said the track will have to "make some adjustments" in its Classic Club dining room menu.

"We're going to be doing some very innovative things with chicken." In the backstretch, some of the 1,800 horses that will fill Arlington's stables already have begun to arrive, mostly from New Orleans.

"We have 1,800 stalls and this year we received applications (from trainers and owners) for 3,000 stalls. This tells me it's going to be an absolutely great season," Rivera said.

He attributed much of the interest in Arlington Park among horsemen this year to the hiring of a new racing secretary, Jack Meyers, from Hollywood Park in California.

Hollywood Park now is controlled by Marje Everett, who formerly operated Arlington Park.

"For a time it looked like we might have some trouble (getting horses) but Jack has managed to bring in some of the country's top stables," Rivera said.

MEYERS HAS rewritten Arlington's stakes schedule, which now includes 30 stakes races. The season's five biggest races, in prize money and attendance, all will be held during the second half of the season.

The $100,000 Pontiac Grand Prix will be run June 16, the $100,000 American Derby July 7, the estimated $200,000 Arlington-Washington Futurity July 14, the $100,000 Arlington Handicap July 21, and the estimated $100,000 Lassie July 24.

The opening of Interstate 90, which provides a toll-free connection between the track and downtown Chicago via the Eisenhower Expressway, and the completion of road repairs along the Northwest Tollway will encourage racing fans to drive to Arlington Park, track officials are hoping.

And the restoration of gimmick betting also is seen as a needed shot of adrenaline.

Two of the most popular forms of gimmick betting are the trifecta, where the bettor must select in order the first, second and third place horses in a race, and the quinella, where he picks the first and second horse in either order.

THE ELIMINATION of gimmick betting in the middle of the racing season last year resulted in a six per cent drop in attendance and betting last year, Rivera said.

Arlington Heights Police Sgt. Jack Weber said traffic control for the daily racing crowd will be essentially the same as it was last year, with patrolmen at the race track gates and at intersections east of the track along Euclid Avenue.

"The only thing we tentatively foresee now is the possibility of lighter crowds because of the early dates, and the possibility of inclement weather," Weber said.

New traffic lights at Euclid and Dryden also should help move traffic, he said.

"But basically our highway setup still is the same as last year. We've got the same mess at Arlington Heights and Central (roads) and we're expecting about the same traffic off the tollway."

BILLING ITSELF as this year's "Super Track," Arlington Park appears to be making a concerted effort to make 1973 a good racing season.

Track officials still are hopeful that a suit by Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott will lengthen the racing schedule here, and they believe that the reinstatement of gimmick betting and the grandstand's facelift should reverse last year's declining attendance and betting figures.

Attendance at Arlington Park dropped from 1,139,184 patrons in 1971, to 979,001 last year. Total dollars bet fell from $112,439,330 in 1971, to $105,349,875.

The biggest uncertainty remains the weather. As Arlington Park Pres John Loomer put it recently, "If you want a sure bet this year, bet that everyone here has everything crossed, just for a sunny spring."

Funeral home plan rejected

Plans for a funeral home and residence near Inverness were rejected by the Cook County Board of Commissioners yesterday.

Louis A. Kolssak had requested the zoning change in December for a four-acre site at the northeast corner of Palatine and Elia Roads. Kolssak told Cook County Zoning Board members he wanted to build a funeral home on approximately half an acre of the site, with living accommodations for his family above it.

Inverness residents testifying at the hearing objected to the project, claiming the change from a single family to business zoning was inconsistent with the surrounding area. And they charged the business zoning for all four acres amounted to speculative zoning.

Inverness officials also objected to the rezoning. The Cook County action came on a recommendation by the county zoning board to deny the request.

BRUSHING UP the grandstand at Arlington Park Race Track in preparation for the April 14 opening is part of an over-all effort to lighten and brighten the facility for this year's season. Track officials are hoping that despite the early spring dates assigned them by the former Illinois Racing Board, 1973 will prove to be a good year at Arlington Park.

Local officials urge probe of Centex tax assessments

by STEVE BROWN

Local officials called for examination of county tax assessment procedures yesterday in the wake of disclosures land in Schaumburg and Elk Grove industrial parks received massive tax breaks.

The disclosures, made by the Better Government Association, revealed landowners in Schaumburg and Elk Grove may be saving $300,000 in taxes each year through assessment cuts made by the Cook County Board of Appeals.

The big tax breaks have been linked to Chicago Ald. Thomas Keane and his brother George (who until last year headed the county board of appeals), and other business and political figures.

The tax cuts were given for a 171-acre parcel of land in Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park and 93 acres in the Elk Grove-Centex Industrial Park.

In both cases, the assessments were cut by more than 80 per cent, according to the BGA/Chicago Sun-Times report.

A MAJOR PORTION of the Centex-Schaumburg property is owned by Chicago attorney Jack N. Pritzker. While he could not be reached for comment, a spokesman in his office claimed the reports Pritzker used his friendship with Keane to lower taxes was untrue.

The spokesman said the appeal for reductions in tax assessments was made after County Assessor P. J. Cullerton had increased the assessments in 1969.

"There are several other parcels which we received reductions on in this area," he said. The spokesman declined to identify the parcels of land or specify how much the assessments were cut.

Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher said he has no direct knowledge of any assessment reductions and said he did not want to make any additional comments until more detailed information is available.

"I certainly hope that all developments in Schaumburg are going on the tax rolls at a fair value," he added.

While Atcher and Pritzker are the owners of a 43-acre parcel of land near Schaumburg and Meacham Roads, Atcher said the property has not received any tax breaks.

COUNTY RECORDS show the land was assessed at about $13,800 last year, an increase of several thousand dollars over the 1969 assessments.

Pritzker, whose family controls the Hyatt Corp., owns several other Schaumburg land parcels, but tax records for those could not be obtained yesterday.

Elk Grove Village President Charles Zettler said he plans to take any and all action necessary to correct the situation.

"The board will do whatever is required to bring the assessed valuation up to what it should be," he said.

Officials in both the U.S. Attorney's office and the Internal Revenue Service said an investigation into the BGA's charges are now underway. No details of those probes were available.

The BGA reported that while Illinois law requires the board of appeals to specify why the assessment cuts were granted, no reasons for the board's action could be found.

Pritzker has been linked to other tax breaks given to the Hyatt Regency O'Hare hotel. The board of appeals cuts the assessment on the Pritzker owned facility by $2.7 million last year.

The land for the hotel was purchased from the late David S. Chesrow and the late William Lancaster, both men closely associated with Keane.

The Keane brothers and Chesrow are among the owners of a 78-acre parcel of land, known as the Haskins property, on Palatine Road, in Hoffman Estates.

Township, parks positions up for election today

Rolling Meadows voters will elect leaders for Palatine Township, Elk Grove Township and the Rolling Meadows Park District today.

The central issue in both township races is a movement to abolish the township level of government. Incumbent Palatine Township supervisor Howard I. Olsen is leading the Republican slate on a platform to retain and expand township government.

Opposing Democrats have promised a referendum that could abolish township government, a cause supported by Jack Scollay, Olsen's opponent. Candidates in today's election are:

Republicans — Olsen, supervisor; Ruth Ellen Blowney, clerk; Robert Bergman, highway commissioner; Albert F. DePue, collector; Bernard Pedersen, assessor; and auditors Donald G. Bellm, Liston P. Pennington, Gary L. Price and Charles M. Zimmerman.

Democrats — Scollay, supervisor; Mary Sue Butler, clerk; Peter J. Gerling, highway commissioner; Sally K. Kehe, collector; Edward J. Sullivan, Jr., assessor; and auditors Paul McWilliams, Stanley Martin, David Mergenthaler, and George Stewart.

Polling Places in 46 precincts will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. today for the township race.

ONLY TWO RACES in the Elk Grove Township election will be contested. They are for the posts of auditors and highway commissioner. Running on the Republican slate for these offices are Benard Lee, Wayne Hult, Walter Bartley, and Larry Hintze for auditors and Aldred Steil for highway commissioner.

All are incumbents. Opposing them will be independents Paul Rettburg, Julie Sass, and Steve Maddock for auditors and Larry Pahl for highway commissioner.

Running unopposed for other offices are Republicans Richard Hall for supervisor, George Busse for clerk, Charles Hodlmair for assessor and Arnold Scharinghausen for collector.

Positions for all candidates are for four-year terms.

AS IN THE PALATINE Township race, Republicans in Elk Grove Township seek to retain township government while the independent challengers have said they will work to phase out township government and have its services taken over by other governmental units.

Polls in 52 precincts (those used in the November presidential election) in the township will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. today.

In the Rolling Meadows Park District annual park board election the names of three candidates vying for two seats will appear on the ballot. Seeking election to a six-year park board term are Jeannine Placek and Thomas Dunlavy. Incumbent Robert Campbell is seeking election to a two-year term. He is being opposed by Walter Sergot who has mounted a write-in campaign.

The polls in the park district election will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Park District residents north of Kirchoff Road can vote at the Rolling Meadows Park District Administration Building, 1 Park Meadow Pl. Residents south of Kirchoff Road should vote at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex, 3900 Owl Dr.

Little City benefit donations sought

An appeal has been made for candy donations for a Little City Easter benefit.

The Howard Johnson Motor Lodge in Palatine plans to sponsor the benefit April 15. Sixty residents of Little City, a not-for-profit residential community for the mentally handicapped, will attend.

Donations of Easter candy, baskets and homemade gifts will be accepted by Howard Johnson's until Monday. The contributions should be addressed to Jan Velehr.

School principal to discuss theft

Rolling Meadows High School Principal Robert Hoes will appear tonight before members of the license, police, and health committee to discuss a series of thefts reported at the school.

Ald. William Ahrens (2nd) said the meeting with Hoes was requested to determine how bad a problem theft is at the school. "I don't know how bad the problem is, but I would say any theft is excessive," Ahrens said.

Both Police Chief Lewis Case and high school officer Michael Condroski say theft at the high school is not a real problem. "We haven't had too much theft lately," Case said. "It's a problem but a lot of it is just kids' mischief."

Case said most articles reported stolen at the school are found and that the police department is "getting as much co-operation as it could get" from the high school in dealing with the problem. A majority of the problem results because "60 per cent of the lockers have no locks," Case added.

Condroski said the theft rate at the school is lower than at other high schools in the area. Condroski said figures on the incidents of theft were not immediately available, but he described the problem to be minimal during the year he has been assigned to the school.

Hoes could not be reached for comment yesterday.

Tonight's meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the city hall, 3600 Kirchoff Rd.

WALKING A HORSE after a morning workout is part of the daily ritual being resumed in the backstretch of Arlington Park Race Track as the April 14 opening of the track draws near. Horses already have begun arriving from New Orleans and will ultimately fill Arlington's 1,800 stalls. More than 3,000 applications were received for stalls at the race track this season, which Arlington officials hope will reverse last year's decline in attendance and total dollars bet.

In daughters' murders

Mrs. Edfors 'insane'; won't be tried

Mrs. Elaine Edfors, the accused slayer of her two daughters found beaten to death Feb. 25 in their Rolling Meadows home, yesterday was declared insane and ordered returned to the Department of Mental Health to be committed to a state hospital.

Circuit Court Judge Louis Garippo issued the judgment yesterday after reviewing results of court-ordered psychiatric tests performed on the 34-year-old woman.

The ruling means Mrs. Edfors will not stand trial for the double murders.

"It was a judgment, not a verdict, returned by the court," according to William Norris, one of two Cook County state's attorneys prosecuting the case. "We were satisfied with the judgment. In light of the evidence available, it was the only fair judgment that could be returned," he said.

During earlier pre-trial actions, Mrs. Edfors pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity in connection with the case, a spokesman for the state's attorney's office said.

MRS. EDFORS had been charged for the bludgeoning deaths of her 8 and 9-year-old daughters Pamela and Debbie, more than a month ago. The girls were found on the bloodstained floor of their home at 3800 Jay Ln. by their father Thomas.

Both girls died of head injuries apparently inflicted by blows from a hammer.

Mrs. Edfors was found lying unconscious alongside the girls with apparent self-inflicted cuts on her wrists and throat.

Mrs. Edfors was held without bond in Cook County Jail until the ruling yesterday. Norris said the Department of Mental Health will decide the hospital to which the woman will be taken.

Opportunity Center 'hike' to be Sunday

Nearly 2,000 persons are expected to turn out for Sunday's fifth annual "Hike for Your Neighbor" to raise funds for the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

The expected turnout is more than double the number of participants in last year's hike.

A fund-raising goal has not been set for this year's hike but the hike committee would like to top last year's $13,000 mark. The hike has taken on new importance as a fund raising activity this year with the dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity and cutoff of all federal funding. The center is now faced with the task of raising all of its $130,000 budget locally.

The center last year served approximately 1,700 families from the six township area of Palatine, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Hanover and Barrington, and parts of Maine Township.

The center's services include: food stamps, Operation Nutrition, housing assistance, legal aid, job referral, family planning assistance, dental checkups, Foster Grandparent Program and several other referral programs. The center also provides clothing, emergency food, household items and financial aid to needy families.

RECRUITMENT EFFORTS for hikers are being concentrated at Harper College, Dist. 211 and 214 high schools, Sacred Heart of Mary High School, St. Viator High School, the majority of junior high schools in the area and several church youth groups.

When the participants sign up for the hike they are given a pledge card and asked to solicit pledges from individuals and businesses for each mile they walk. The pledge cards will be validated at checkpoints during the hike.

The hikers will receive a grand tour of the Northwest suburbs. Starting at 8 a.m. from Maine East High School in Park Ridge, the hikers will make a 20-mile circuit winding through Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Palatine before ending at the Northwest Opportunity Center.

Sore feet and other medical problems occurring on the hike will be handled by a registered nurse who will follow the hikers in a first aid wagon.

Ham radio operators will also accompany the hikers monitoring their progress and any problems that may occur.

The hike committee has arranged for Township supervisor

Rohling's 20-yr. career ends today

by FRED GACA

Today's Elk Grove Township election will mark the end of 20 years of service for William Rohling. He is retiring as township supervisor.

Rohling's successor will be Richard Hall, Republican candidate for supervisor, who is unopposed. Hall will officially assume the supervisor's position April 23.

Rohling's reason for retiring is a simple one. He said, "I'm 80 years old. I'm going to retire and just take it easy."

Elk Grove Township covers parts of Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Des Plaines. Today these municipalities together form part of the Northwest suburban area of Chicago. When Rohling was born on Sept. 20, 1892, there were only a few small villages surrounded by miles of farmland.

"I never expected it would grow the way it did," he said.

ROHLING HIMSELF was a farmer. He inherited his father's land when his father died in 1908. He kept the land, located near Ill. Rts. 53 and 58, until 1959, when the property was sold. Part of it went to a private developer and part went to the Cook County Forest Preserve District. The portion sold to a developer is now called Woodfield Shopping Mall.

Rohling also followed his father's footsteps in serving as township supervisor. Rohling Road was named after John Rohling.

Supervisor is the second township office Rohling has held. He was tax collector during the 1930s.

Albert Wille, who served as township supervisor for 28 years, asked Rohling to first run in 1953. Rohling accepted the bid and ran unopposed in the first of the five elections in which he would campaign.

The first town office was a small frame building with a potbelled stove in the center. Rohling remembers the building because in the winters "it was miserably cold."

ROHLING SAID one of his greatest achievements as supervisor was the building of a new town office at 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights. It is the only town office in the 30 Cook County townships, to have all administrative offices and the highway department under one roof.

As supervisor, Rohling is responsible for the administration of township government, disbursement of welfare funds and treasurer of the sewer fund. When he first took office, his salary was $400 a year. For the past four years he has earned $7,000 annually.

When Rohling retires, he plans to make a complete break with township government.

He has even refused to endorse any of the candidates for today's election.

While he is retired Rohling will have plenty of time to spend with his family. And he has plenty of family to spend the time with. A widower twice, Rohling has seven sons, one daughter, 21 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren. And they all live within driving distance.

Local officials urge probe of Centex tax assessments

by STEVE BROWN
Local officials called for examination of county tax assessment procedures yesterday in the wake of disclosures land in Schaumburg and Elk Grove industrial parks received massive tax breaks.

The disclosures, made by the Better Government Association, revealed landowners in Schaumburg and Elk Grove may be saving $300,000 in taxes each year through assessment cuts made by the Cook County Board of Appeals.

The big tax breaks have been linked to Chicago Ald. Thomas Keane and his brother George (who until last year headed the county board of appeals), and other business and political figures.

2 villages to review environment cooperation

Environmental cooperation between Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates will be revitalized for a second consecutive year through Project Help '73.

An abbreviated version of the joint environmental program begun last year will take place June 2 when residents of both villages join forces to clear roadways of a 12-month collection of debris.

The combined endeavor will require a total of 200 volunteers from the two communities. It is being sponsored by Schaumburg's Clean Environment Committee and Hoffman Estates Environmental Concerns Committee.

Honey Bear Farm trip on tap for seniors

An April 12 trip to Honey Bear Farm in Powers Lake, Wis., is planned by the S and H Golden Group.

The organization, which is a social club for persons more than 55-years-old in Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Hanover Park, is sponsored by the Schaumburg Park District.

The trip will include lunch and a tour of the lakefront shops. The cost will be $5 and includes transportation and lunch. Reservations for the trip must be made with Mrs. Suzanne Sartorius at 894-4794 before Thursday.

Methodist Church presents oratorio

The chancel choir of Our Saviour's United Methodist Church, 611 E. Golf Rd., Hoffman Estates, accompanied by a 23-piece orchestra, will sing the oratorio "The Seven Last Words of Christ from the Cross" on Sunday.

The composition by Josef Haydn will be performed at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services. Shirley N. Morgan, Jr. will conduct. Soloists will be: Ethel Bird, Jan Cook, soprano; Joyce Rodgers, alto; Lewis Fullerton, tenor, and Robert Crane, bass.

In 1794 while traveling to England, Haydn happened to hear, in the German town of Passau, an oratorio based on the Seven Last Words. He decided to make his own vocal adaptation of the work and asked Baron van Swieten to help with the libretto.

The composer thought very highly of this oratorio, and it was the last work he conducted in public before his death. He also wrote two additional versions of this composition, one for string quartet and the other for two pianos.

BASIC FIRST AID and fire safety were among the topics discussed by Mike Loveisky, Deputy Fire Chief Ed Kalasa and Linda Hay during the recent Babysitters Clinic sponsored by the Hoffman Estates Jaycees Wives for area teen-agers.

County Board won't rehire fire trustee

The Cook County Board of Commissioners yesterday refused to reappoint Charles E. Knapp to the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District Board of Trustees.

In taking the action, County Board Pres. George Dunne called Knapp the "source of the problems between firefighters and district officials."

Knapp's seat will be filled by Thomas P. Cussen, of 127 Gentry Ln., Hoffman Estates, Dunne said.

Dunne told the Herald district firefighters did not want Knapp reappointed. He had served on the fire district board since 1969.

"It appeared to be a bad situation there and I wanted to remove the source of the problem," Dunne explained.

Cussen's appointment was confirmed by the county board yesterday.

Cussen, 43, is an attorney and has been active in Democratic party activities in recent years. "I'll try to do the best I can to serve the community," he said.

FIREFIGHTER Richard Cordova, president of local 2661 of the International Association of Firefighters, AFL-CIO, called Cussen's appointment "tremendous."

"We feel that Mr. Knapp did not understand the firefighters and that we never did meet eye to eye on many matters," Cordova said.

The district's board has repeatedly refused to recognize the formation of the union.

The union has protested the board's refusal and last month picketed the fire station to increase public awareness of the union's position.

Knapp said he hopes Cussen will be an asset to the district.

"I am sure the county board was acting in the best interest of the community," he said, adding that a great deal of pressure was applied to replace him. He declined to elaborate.

Area integration slow but sure

Residents seeking swimming pool law here

The present ordinance governing swimming pools in Hoffman Estates may result in tragedy, according to village resident Nancy Rothacker, 187 Jamison Ln.

Mrs. Rothacker and her husband Steve, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Schwartz, 196 Lafayette Ln., have begun a campaign for a stricter ordinance, one that would keep small children from stumbling into open pools and drowning.

Within the month, Mrs. Rothacker hopes to have a new ordinance written requiring all home pools to be fenced in and gated. "There is nothing worse than seeing a small child dead from drowning. It is expensive to fence in areas, but if people can afford the luxury of a pool they should accept the responsibility that goes with it," she said.

The present ordinance, according to Building Comr. Dan Murphy, does not insist on fences around swimming pools. A restrictive cover, or a fence, is required, he said. The cover must be a type that can be clipped down at the sides and able to support 200 pounds.

AS MRS. ROTHACKER pointed out, careless residents can simply leave the cover off or forget to lock it in place. "A mother with two or more small children simply can't watch them all of the time. A child can easily wander off and slip into a neighboring pool," Mrs. Rothacker said.

In the immediate area of her house, there will be four pools this summer that her four-year-old daughter will have easy access to, Mrs. Rothacker added.

The Rothackers and the Schwartzs have asked concerned residents who would support an ordinance change to call 529-9643 (Rothacker) or 529-5211 (Schwartz).

The two couples plan to canvass the area for support and signatures on a petition, and persons willing to help in that effort would be welcome.

The present ordinance was written in 1965, Mrs. Rothacker said, and is much more lenient than ones in neighboring villages. Hanover Park, Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Rolling Meadows and Palatine require a fenced in yard with swimming pools.

Arlington Heights also requires self-closing and locking gates. Some of the ordinances require the ladder into the pool be locked out of the pool when not in use, and that a heavy tarpaulin be locked in place over the pool during the day, she said.

THE TWO COUPLES plan to duplicate copies of neighboring communities' ordinances and meet with Murphy and Village Atty. Edward Hofer to draw up a new ordinance. Murphy said the ordinance can only be changed by the village board, but residents can initiate action on a new ordinance with the attorney.

Murphy plans to review the current ordinance as the complaints he has received about negligent neighbors "have some valid points. After speaking with Mrs. Rothacker, I think it would be appropriate to make some changes," he added.

Beginning of the end?

Elk Grove Township voters to select officials today

Voters go to the polls today to elect the Elk Grove Township supervisor, four auditors, clerk, assessor, collector and highway commissioner.

The outcome of the balloting could mean the end of the township, since certain candidates have pledged to abolish it.

Polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the 62 precinct polling places.

The supervisor and auditors make up the governing board of the township. Only the auditor and highway commissioner posts are contested. All offices are for a four year term.

The regular Republican organization of Elk Grove Township has filed a full slate of candidates. Unopposed are Richard Hall for supervisor, George Busse for clerk, Charles Hodlmair for assessor and Arnold Scharringhausen for collector.

THE REPUBLICANS have filed incumbent Bernard Lee, Wayne Huk, Walter Bartley and Larry Hintze for the auditor posts and incumbent Alfred Steil for township highway commissioner.

Four independent candidates have also filed for office. Paul Rettburg, Julie Sass and Steve Maddock are seeking auditor posts. Larry Pahl is running for highway commissioner.

The auditor seats will go to the four top vote-getters out of the seven candidates.

The township is responsible for road and bridge maintenance in unincorporated areas, disbursements of welfare funds for all residents, motor vehicle registration, voter registration and the operation of a youth committee.

The critical issue in the election is whether or not township government should continue to exist. The independents have agreed on a platform calling for the abolishment of the township government.

THE INDEPENDENTS consider the township an outmoded, uneconomical agency whose services could be taken over by other governments. If elected, they said they will work to have present township services taken over by other agencies while phasing out the government.

The Republicans contend that the township is a needed agency, one whose functions cannot be taken over by any other government.

The Republican platform calls for a strengthening and improvement of township services without any tax increases for the next four years.

Hall has charged the independents are "fronts" for the Democratic party who want to abolish the township so the Cook County Democratic organization can expand into the suburbs.

The charge that township government causes high property taxes was also disputed by Hall. He said the township tax levy is only 1.3 per cent of the total tax bill.

The independents have repeatedly stated that they are not "fronts" for the Democratic party.

During the campaign, the Republicans have refuted independents' charges of nepotism, unethical business transactions and underassessment of property owned by township officials.

Park polling places listed

Polling places for today's park district elections have been designated for the two districts serving the Mount Prospect area.

For the Mount Prospect Park District, polling places have been set up at Fairview School, 300 N. Fairview Ave., for residents living north of Northwest Hwy. The Lions Park Recreation Center, 411 S. Maple St., has been designated as the polling place for residents living between Northwest Hwy. and Golf Road. For persons living south of Golf Road, voting booths will be set up in the High Ridge Knolls School, 588 S. Dara James Rd., Des Plaines.

Polling places will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.

There are four candidates seeking two posts on the Mount Prospect Park Board. They include incumbent Roland Becker, Elmer Blasco, George Gattas and Robert Young.

For the River Trails Park District, there will be only one polling place this year at the park district office, 1313 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect. Polls there will also be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The election in River Trails is uncontested with two incumbents seeking two seats on the board. The two are George Meier, who was appointed to the park board in 1970, and Bernadine Rechner, appointed in January to fill out the term of Patrick Link. Link resigned to become a member of the Mount Prospect Village Board.

In 1971, only 73 residents cast votes in the River Trails Park District election, which was also uncontested. This is out of "probably 4,000 to 5,000 registered voters," said Marvin Weiss, park director. "We're trying to encourage voters to come out this year even though there is no contest," he said.

Homeowners to host mayoral candidates

The Mount Shire Homeowners Association will host two of the three Mount Prospect mayoral candidates at a meeting tomorrow night.

A spokeswoman for the group said Michael Minton and Albert J. Motsch will address the group beginning at 8:30 p.m. at the John Jay School, 1835 W. Pheasant Tr. Incumbent Mayor Robert D. Teichert will be unable to attend because of a prior commitment, he said.

The meeting will be open. In particular, Mount Shire Homeowners who may not belong to the association are invited to attend. A short business meeting at 7:30 p.m. will precede the candidates.

According to Minton, the Mount Shire group was one of the first to urge him to seek election as mayor.

John Moss Jr. withdraws from school race

John Moss Jr. announced yesterday he has withdrawn as a candidate in the race for the Prospect Heights Dist. 23 School Board.

Moss, a candidate for one of two three-year terms, said he is not running because "business responsibilities are going to preclude the time necessary to serve on the school board. It's with reluctance that I resign."

Moss said he was notified yesterday of a change in his job responsibilities. He is employed by Allstate Insurance Co., Northbrook.

Since the deadline for withdrawing from the race was last Tuesday, Moss's name will still be on the ballot in the April 14 election. Should he win, Moss said he will resign immediately. The school board then must appoint someone to fill a one-year term until the next election.

Candidates for the two three-year terms are incumbent Alan Krinsky of Arlington Heights and Sallyann Okuno of Prospect Heights. Vincent Battaglia of Arlington Heights is unopposed for a one-year seat on the board.

GOP slate unopposed in Wheeling Twp.

The Republican slate is unopposed in today's Wheeling Township election.

Four incumbents and five newcomers are on the slate for four-year terms. The apparent winners are:

Ethel Kolerus, 48, supervisor. An incumbent, Mrs. Kolerus will be finishing her first term as supervisor. A resident of Mount Prospect for 18 years, she was previously Wheeling Township auditor. She also has been director of the American Cancer Society for nine years and was assistant to Sen. Charles Percy for two years. She is vice president of the Cook County Supervisors' Association and chairman of its legislative committee.

Marshall P. Theroux, 53, assessor. Incumbent Theroux was first elected assessor in 1969 and has been associated with the Wheeling Township Republican Organization for six years. An Arlington Heights resident, Theroux is active in the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce, Veteran of Foreign Wars and the American Legion. He owns a manufacturer's sales agency, Marshall Theroux (Continued on page 3)

TRY A PIECE OF moose jerky? Chris Halka, 11, did last week at the Pioneer Day feast at Eisenhower School in Prospect Heights. Moose meat-balls, pumpkin cake and beef stew and dumplings also were on the menu for fifth graders, who prepared the meal as part of a social studies unit.

Pact may be imminent for police, village

Apparent settlement has been reached in wage negotiations between the Village of Mount Prospect and the local chapter of the Combined Counties Police Association (CCPA).

No details of the agreement have been released yet because both sides have to ratify the settlement this week. A general membership meeting of the CCPA has been set for Wednesday night and the village board will meet in executive session before Thursday's special village board meeting.

A joint press release is to be issued, possibly on Friday, outlining the agreement. Neither side will comment prior to that release.

The policemen are seeking their first written contract, a wage hike of about 7 per cent, four personal days off a year, a better vacation package, longevity pay increases, time-and-a-half for overtime and establishment of formalized grievance procedures.

REPORTEDLY, the village's wage offers have been within the 5½ per cent federal wage guidelines.

Despite the lack of details on the settlement, it is reported that the village negotiators are not unhappy over the agreement. One informed source said the ratification by the two bodies would probably be "perfunctory."

The sixth meeting between the two sides was Friday night. It lasted two hours and the final form of the written contract was apparently worked out. They first met Jan. 31 and at least one policeman has said much of the time since then was consumed in trying to write out the contract correctly.

The village board is supposed to meet with the firemen's wage committee on April 10, at their third budget hearing. The firemen reportedly have one basic request, believed to be wage parity between police and firemen.

Preschool screening still available

Parents of preschool children who missed registration for the free preschool screening service at Mount Prospect Dist. 57 may still bring their children in for testing during the next two weeks.

"Parents of eligible children are still welcome to bring their children, even if they missed the registration," Asst. Supt. Dwight Hall said. "They should go to one of the testing sites on a day when the program is operated. If there is an opening at the time, the child will be tested on the spot. If there is not, an appointment will be given and the child may be brought back for testing at another time."

The only qualifications for the program are that the child reside in Dist. 57 and be at least three years old but not reach his fifth birthday before Dec. 1, 1973.

Testing will be conducted from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. on weekdays from now until April 13 at Busse, Lions Park and Sunset Park schools.

"Where is our lamplighter these dark nights? One of our citizens was lost the other night, owing to the lamps not being lighted."

No, I'm not getting fuzzy in the head. This is a quote from the March 21, 1873 edition of the "Cook County Herald." A souvenir copy of this paper was one of the things a group of fifth and sixth graders from Fairview School received Saturday after touring the Paddock Publications plant in Arlington Heights. More about this later.

Back in 1873, you'd have had to flag down the train to climb aboard. Mount Prospect was two large farms. It wasn't until 1889 railroad officials saw fit to schedule regular stops here — to pick up fresh milk daily for delivery to Chicago.

ONE OF THE few things from those days that is still around is the Herald. Local columns such as this were an important part of those newspapers, too. Here are a few other newsy items from the 1873 local columns:

"Geo. Francis Train has been declared insane."

"H. B. Burlingame has a hen that lays eggs six by seven and a half inches in size. She has laid three and is doing well."

"Mr. Ch. Vermilyea has returned from Chicago."

"Those young men that a few evenings ago adjourned to a forsaken and dilapidated school house in the outskirts for the express purpose of kicking their heels against the mop-boards should not presume too much on the esteem in which they are held by the fair ones, and if they wish them to attend and enjoy their festive parties, should by all means select a more desirable location."

"Several croquet sets have been planted this last week for summer use."

"Mr. Dan Johnson has some good straw for filling beds. He lives on Palm Grove Avenue."

"There were between 59 and 60 loafers out in front of the Excelsior Blocks on Sunday."

AN ITEM OF wider interest stated, "The Chicago Times of the 15th, in its highly sensational report of the hanging of Driver, presents an elaborate diagram of the County Jail, showing the various offices, cells and corridors, among the latter of which it has one of sixteen cells, called 'Aldermen's Corridor.' We suppose aldermen do sometimes trespass upon the law, as well as the rest of frail humanity, but it has a bad look for the official morality of Chicago to set apart sixteen cells for their special use."

Perhaps people haven't changed much in the past 100 years, after all.

The Herald has, though. "While touring its modern plant, children see how display advertising is prepared, how UPI news comes in over the teletype machine, and how the news is set in type and made into pages. Typesetting is mostly automatic now."

In the pressroom Saturday, the Fairview youngsters watched copies of Sunday's Suburbanite roll off the presses. They saw what their favorite comic strip characters will be doing in the days to come. And at the tour's end, they received Junior Press Club cards.

Reservations for these Saturday morning tours can be made with Anne Chalikis at 394-2300. Call in plenty of time, since these popular tours are booked up well in advance.

Mrs. Edfors 'insane'; she won't stand trial

Mrs. Elaine Edfors, the accused slayer of her two daughters found beaten to death Feb. 28 in their Rolling Meadows home, yesterday was declared insane and ordered returned to the Department of Mental Health to be committed to a state hospital.

Circuit Court Judge Louis Garippo issued the judgment yesterday after reviewing results of court-ordered psychiatric tests performed on the 34-year-old woman.

The ruling means Mrs. Edfors will not stand trial for the double murders.

"It was a judgment, not a verdict, returned by the court," according to William Norris, one of two Cook County state's attorneys prosecuting the case. "We were satisfied with the judgment. In light of the evidence available, it was the only fair judgment that could be returned," he said.

During earlier pre-trial actions, Mrs. Edfors pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity in connection with the case, a spokesman for the state's attorney's office said.

MRS. EDFORS had been charged for the bludgeoning deaths of her 8 and 9-year-old daughters Pamela and Debbie, more than a month ago. The girls were found on the bloodstained floor of their home at 3800 Jay Ln. by their father Thomas.

Both girls died of head injuries apparently inflicted by blows from a hammer. Mrs. Edfors was found lying unconscious alongside the girls with apparent self-inflicted cuts on her wrists and throat.

Mrs. Edfors was held without bond in Cook County Jail until the ruling yesterday. Norris said the Department of Mental Health will decide the hospital to which the woman will be taken.

Park district sets new rates for swimming

New swim fees have been established by the Mount Prospect Park District Board of Commissioners for the season beginning June 1, 1973 and ending May 31, 1974.

Separate summer and winter passes have been eliminated. All passes will now be valid for the entire year.

In changing from season passes to yearly passes, the board cut the over-all cost of a pass by about $11. "In effect, this action decreased the cost of the yearly pass and will make four-season swimming available to all residents of the park district at a cost comparable to that which many surrounding park districts are charging for summer only," said Paul Caldwell, assistant park director.

The new fees for the season pass are as follows:

- If purchased before June 1: $25 for a family with two children, $15 for an adult and $10 for a child.
 - If purchased after June 1: $30 for a family, $20 for an adult and $15 for a child.
 - If purchased after Oct. 1: $30 for a family, $15 for an adult and $10 for a child.
 - If purchased after Jan. 1: $15 for a family, $10 for an adult and $7.50 for a child.
- With a family pass, a charge of $5 will be made for each additional child after two, with a maximum charge of $40 for a family.

Free school shuttle gets approval

Students living in five areas of High School Dist. 214 will have free shuttle bus service provided next year because the school board has agreed they have no safe route to walk to school.

In action Monday, the board agreed to continue shuttle service to Forest View High School from the corner of Golf and Arlington Heights roads and from the Lake Briarwood subdivision in Mount Prospect. It also agreed to continue shuttle service for students attending Wheeling High School from the area east of Elmhurst Road and north of Palatine Road.

The board also agreed to add shuttle service for students living east of Buffalo Grove High School who would otherwise have to walk along Dundee Road to the school and for students living south of the school who would have to walk along Arlington Heights Road.

The board also provided that shuttle service will be discontinued to the areas once safe walkways are constructed to the schools.

Shuttle service is provided by using buses that have already run regular routes to the school. Students are picked up at a single stop and the service does not cost the district extra money, according to district administrators.

IN OTHER ACTION the board formalized a policy allowing students who live less than 1½ miles from their school who do not live in areas given shuttle service to pay for bus service.

Cost for the pay bus for next year will be $50.55 or 28 cents a day, according to the policy. In order to insure bus service, students must make a deposit of $25 by June 15 and later reservations for pay bus will be made if space is available.

Students living more than 1½ miles from the school must, by law, receive free bus transportation.

The board also agreed Monday to set aside money due three of the contractors building Buffalo Grove High School in case it should want to assess damages against them for not finishing their work on time.

The board agreed to withhold $9,800 from Ockerlund Construction Co., the foundation contractor; $10,000 for Miller-Davis Co., the general contractor and $5,200 for Vierling Steel Works, the structural steel contractor. The three have failed to meet deadlines for certain

AFTER 20 YEARS of service, Elk Grove Township supervisor William Rohlwing soon will be walking out of the door to the town office for the last time. After winning five consecutive terms, he decided to retire and did not run in today's election. His successor will take office April 23.

Rohlwing's career ending today

by FRED GACA

Today's Elk Grove Township election will mark the end of 20 years of service for William Rohlwing. He is retiring as township supervisor.

Rohlwing's successor will be Richard Hall, Republican candidate for supervisor, who is unopposed. Hall will officially assume the supervisor's position April 23.

Rohlwing's reason for retiring is a simple one. He said, "I'm 80 years old. I'm going to retire and just take it easy."

Elk Grove Township covers parts of Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Des Plaines. Today these municipalities together form part of the Northwest suburban area of Chicago. When Rohlwing was born on Sept. 20, 1892, there were only a few small villages surrounded by miles of farmland.

"I never expected it would grow the way it did," he said.

ROHLWING HIMSELF was a farmer. He inherited his father's land when his father died in 1908. He kept the land, located near Ill. Rts. 53 and 58, until 1958, when the property was sold. Part of it went to a private developer and part went to the Cook County Forest Preserve District. The portion sold to a developer is now called Woodfield Shopping Mall.

Rohlwing also followed his father's footsteps in serving as township supervisor. Rohlwing Road was named after John Rohlwing.

Supervisor is the second township office Rohlwing has held. He was tax collector during the 1930s.

Albert Willie, who served as township supervisor for 28 years, asked Rohlwing to first run in 1953. Rohlwing accepted the bid and ran unopposed in the first of the five elections in which he would campaign.

The first town office was a small frame building with a potbelled stove in the center. Rohlwing remembers the building because in the winters "it was miserably cold."

ROHLWING SAID one of his greatest achievements as supervisor was the building of a new town office at 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights. It is the only town office in the 30 Cook County townships, to have all administrative offices and the highway department under one roof.

As supervisor, Rohlwing is responsible for the administration of township government, disbursement of welfare funds and treasurer of the sewer fund. When he first took office, his salary was $400 a year. For the past four years he has earned $7,000 annually.

When Rohlwing retires, he plans to make a complete break with township government.

He has even refused to endorse any of the candidates for today's election.

& Company, Arlington Heights, and is a certified Illinois assessing officer.

Dorothy Helm Hauff, 59, clerk. Mrs. Hauff, 308 N. Haddon, Arlington Heights, has been township clerk for 23 years. She is a board member of the Arlington Heights Woman's Club and was a former president of the Wheeling Township Republican Women's Club and the Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club.

Helmuth Meyer, 56, collector. A newcomer on the slate, Meyer was formerly affiliated with Meyer Candy Co., Chicago. Meyer has 28 years business experience in supervision and management. A resident of Arlington Heights, Meyer, 216 S. Donald, is a precinct captain and has been active in Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Arlington Heights Little League Baseball.

Arthur E. Olsen, 47, highway commissioner. Olsen is currently supervisor in a division of the supervising architect of the state of Illinois. He lives at 1008 Sherwood, Prospect Heights and is active with Boy Scouts and the Prospect Heights Improvement Association.

The following four candidates are on the slate as auditors:

Merle Willis, 73, 60 N. Wolf Rd., Wheeling, is an incumbent. He has been active in the Wheeling Chamber of Commerce for 16 years and the village board for eight years. A retired electrical contractor, Willis is completing eight years as township auditor.

Ray De Maertelaere, 33, is a special assistant to Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott. After moving to Arlington Heights five years ago, he has been active in Hasbrook Civic Organization, De Maertelaere, 1015 E. Thomas, has served as trustee and president of Wheeling Township School Board.

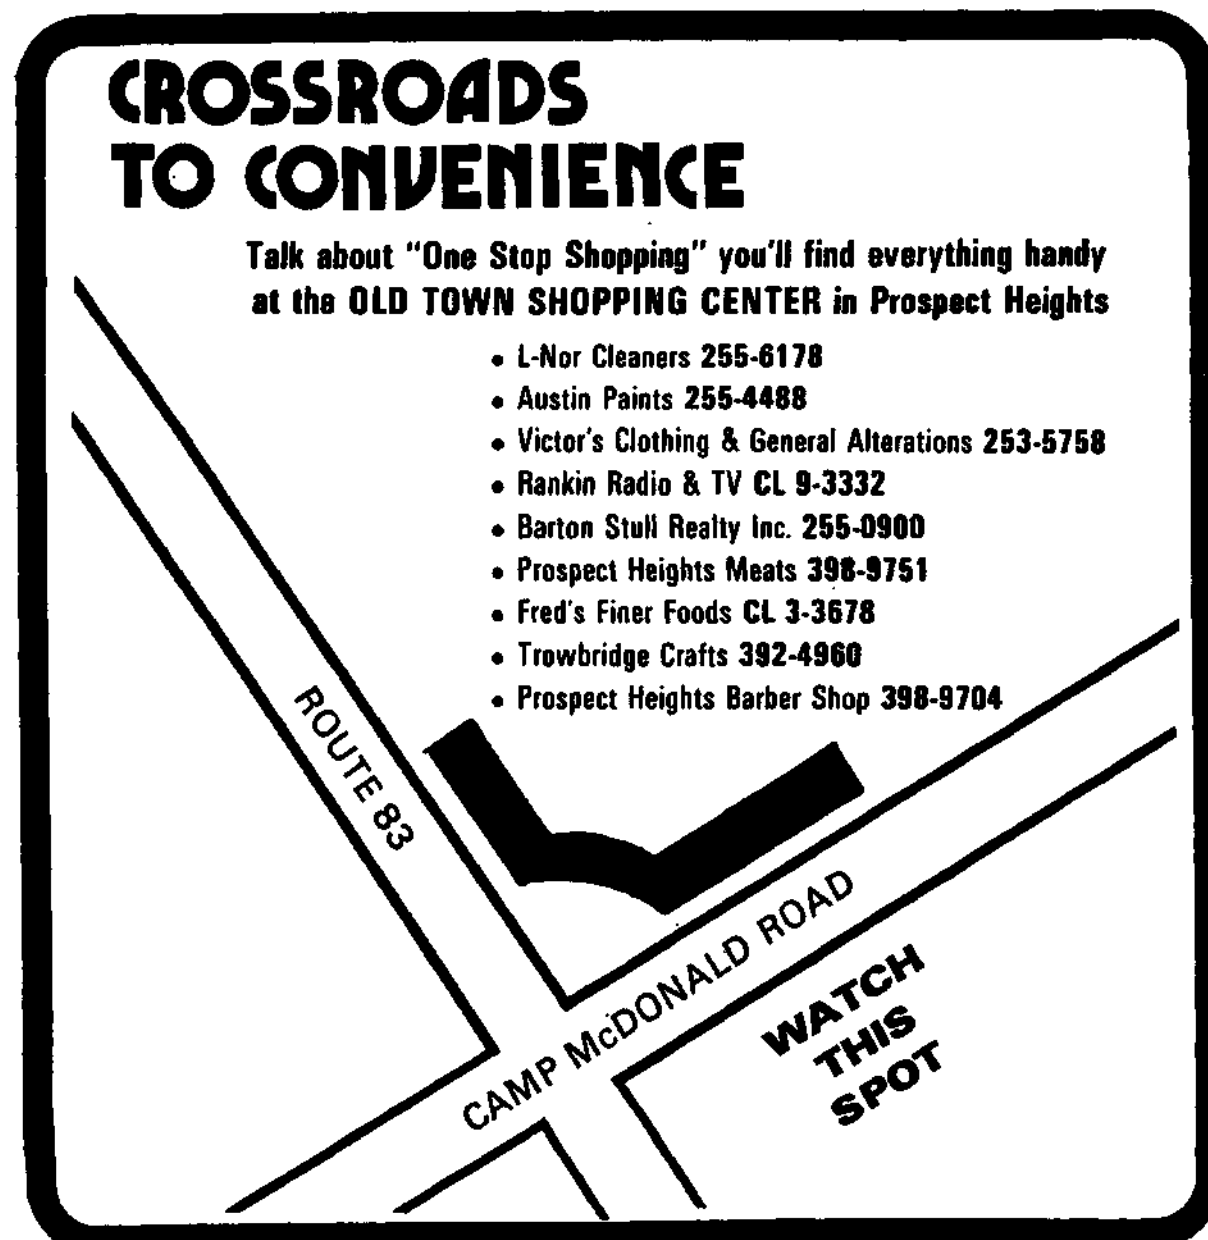

John Gilligan, 42, lives at 36 Lynnbrook, Prospect Heights. He is president of Prospect Heights Improvement Association and has served on Des Plaines River Basin steering committee and the Congress of Cook County Homeowners Association.

William Reid, 40, is coordinator of research, testing and data processing for Township High School District 214. Reid, 378 Rosewood, Buffalo Grove, is a precinct captain and director of the Northwest Community Concert Association. He has been active in scouting for 10 years.

Two candidates for Dist. 23 school board

Sallyann Okuno... 'We have to decide now what to do about boundary changes'

Sallyann Okuno believes it is hard to pass a school referendum. Just mention a rise in taxes, she says, and people automatically shake their heads no.

But that wouldn't stop Mrs. Okuno. If she were convinced Prospect Heights Dist. 23 needed a tax increase she would work to see that it was passed.

"We'd just have to push for it," she said. "We'd have to give voters all the facts."

Currently, Dist. 23 officials are studying what can be done to solve an overcrowding problem in the district. One possible solution is building a sixth school and adding to John Muir School on Drake Terrace.

"We definitely have to decide just how many new students are expected to move into the district in the next few years. We'll probably have to make boundary

On April 14, voters will elect three school board members in Prospect Heights Dist. 23. There are two persons running for two three-year terms. They are incumbent Alan Krinsky of Arlington Heights and Sallyann Okuno of Prospect Heights. Vincent Battaglia of Arlington Heights is running for a one-year seat on the board.

John Moss Jr. of Prospect Heights was a third candidate for the three-year term, but he announced yesterday he has withdrawn from the race for business reasons.

Today the Herald carries interviews with the two candidates for the three-year terms.

changes for the problem at Muir," said Mrs. Okuno, 32, currently Muir PTA president. "If all the building that is anticipated is definite and our other schools are at full capacity, then I would favor building a sixth school."

Mrs. Okuno thinks builders bringing large developments into a school district should donate "something" to offset the cost of the sudden increase in the district's enrollment. She also believes that new homes should be placed on the tax rolls as soon as they are purchased, instead of the one to two-year wait that currently exists.

THE MOTHER of three children, Mrs. Okuno has served on the Muir PTA for three years. A registered nurse, she also has served on a PTA council consisting of representatives of Dist. 23 and Wheeling Dist. 21. She lives at 2 Garden Court.

Here are her views on other school issues:

• Teacher bargaining: "I think they deserve at least a cost of living raise. I'm not familiar with the merit system in the district."

• Open School Plan: "It lets kids develop so much better and they can work at their own pace. I don't think there are bad points, although some parents say discipline is a problem. If every program was perfect, it would be stagnant because you wouldn't need to improve it."

• Unit districts (grades K through 12): "I don't feel I know enough about them. I am more in favor of keeping the district the way it is, kindergarten through eighth grade."

• Extracurricular activities for students: "I think they're fantastic. I think children are able to use their creative abilities and learn to use their free time wisely."

• Education for gifted children: "I think there should be something for them. The worst thing is to put a child in the classroom and give them no challenge."

• Special education: "I think the taxpayers have an obligation to provide it."

• Drainage problems at Muir School:

Sallyann Okuno

"I think it would be a hazard to put a retention basin on the school site. But I think it's a crime to have a playground and have to tell kids they can't play there because it's always under water."

Alan Krinsky... 'Do the best you can with what you have. That's all you can do'

"Do the best you can with what you have," is Alan Krinsky's credo for school board members.

"That's really all you can do," said the only incumbent in the Prospect Heights Dist. 23 School Board race. And this time Krinsky, of Arlington Heights, is determined to do the best he can to get elected and avoid the defeat he faced in last year's Dist. 23 election.

"I took it for granted last time that I would win. I'm campaigning harder this time," said Krinsky, 35, who served a three-year term on the board before he lost the 1972 election. Six months ago he was appointed to the board to fill a vacancy.

As a board member, Krinsky thinks it's his job to make sure the children in his district get the best education possible.

"EVERY CHILD should be helped to reach his full potential," said the father of two. "I would like to see more education geared to the individual. And I would like to see the schools used more — 12 months a year, 18 hours a day. They should be used by somebody — children, adults, whoever."

Krinsky is not afraid of controversy. He speaks out for what he believes. Earlier this year he urged the Dist. 23 Board to protest any efforts by Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 to form its own unit district (grades K-12).

Dist. 59 residents have been talking about forming an all Elk Grove Village unit district, which would combine Dist.

59 elementary schools with two High School Dist. 214 schools.

"The fact is that one elementary district wants to divide into a unit, taking the wealth from High School Dist. 214," Krinsky said. "This creates an unfair advantage to the children who will be attending the other schools in Dist. 214."

One issue facing Dist. 23 Board members now and in the future is overcrowding in the schools. John Muir School is near the enrollment breaking point and officials expect all schools to be overcrowded by fall, 1974.

"The immediate solution is to change boundaries in the schools and I assume

IF A NEW SCHOOL is to be built, Krinsky would recommend that the district hire a consultant to make sure building deadline and details are met by the architect and contractor. This would help avoid building problems Dist. 23 encountered during its last construction project, according to Krinsky.

A scrap iron and metal dealer, Krinsky, of 2077 Rosehill, owns his own firm. He attended the University of Illinois for three years. While on the school board he has served on the finance, planning and negotiations committee.

Here are his views on other school issues:

• Teacher contract bargaining: "I am in favor of closed meetings. Before, when we had private meetings, we have always been able to negotiate with teachers in five or six sessions. I think open bargaining hardens the positions. Last year when we bargained openly we had to settle it all in a closed session anyway. Teachers didn't get more than they would have in private."

• School financing: "I feel basically the closer the money comes to the school district the less money you have to pay to get it there. The money comes out of your pocket no matter how you get it. If we got the money through federal channels we would probably lose 30 cents on the dollar."

Alan Krinsky

• Extracurricular programs for students: "Education is the greatest thing in the world but you can't bombard students five days a week. They have to have a break, and these extracurricular activities are a good thing."

Open or closed bargaining still issue in school talks

The issue of open or closed bargaining for a 1973-74 teacher contract is still being debated in Prospect Heights Dist. 23.

Representatives of board and teacher negotiation teams met for the second time Thursday night but reached no agreement on the question. Board members want the meetings closed to the public while the Prospect Heights Education Association (PHEA) wants to keep them open.

"It is still our opinion the best way to dispose of negotiations is in a private and not a public meeting," said Henry Valley, spokesman for the board.

Last year was the first time Dist. 23 had open negotiations. A contract agreement was reached after a four-hour closed mediation session and 13 open bargaining meetings. Board members say closing the meetings would speed up bargaining.

"We're not against closing the meetings for next year but we now feel open meetings are the best way of getting our information to the public as clearly and quickly as possible," said Ken Bates, PHEA spokesman.

THE PROVISION for open meetings is part of the 1972-73 teacher contract which does not expire until July 31. The board's team wants to amend the contract and delete the provision so this year's meeting would be private, but the PHEA representatives refused.

"We're not at all against taking the provision out of the contract for next year and making the style of negotiations a ground rule and not part of the contract," Bates said. He emphasized, however, that this would not mean the PHEA would agree to closed meetings.

Bates also said the PHEA could not accept the board's proposals for a three-year contract with a provision that money items would be re-negotiated each year. The teacher's team also rejected board proposals to include a no-strike and a no-picket clause in the contract.

Skil probing MSD suit threat

Officials of the Skil Corp. plant in Wheeling are trying to get more information about a Metropolitan Sanitary District threat last week to file a pollution suit against the firm.

Company spokesmen have denied sanitary district charges that Skil is dumping alkaline wastes into the MSD sewer system.

The sanitary district board voted last Thursday evening to approve committee action which set an April 15 deadline for the firm to stop polluting MSD sewers. The board said if this deadline was not met, the district's attorney would seek an injunction against Skil and the MSD would impose heavy fines.

Skil officials maintain, however, that automatic equipment has already been installed to handle the discharge problem at the plant at 1444 S. Wolf Rd. They said this equipment would be operational by April 15.

One firm official said Skil cannot take any action until it receives some notification from the MSD. He said that the board's vote was the first indication that Skil is not in compliance with MSD standards.

Political stickers may be illegal

Candidates be warned. Political stickers on utility poles and stop signs in Mount Prospect are illegal and could end up costing you money.

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said the village policy is to pull down all such signs "I don't think it does much good," he said of the signs. "It's defacing public property."

Eppley said he would definitely try to recover from the candidates some of the costs for removing the stickers, should an excessive number of stickers be posted over the next two weeks.

2 homes burglarized

Two weekend burglaries in which a number of smaller items were taken, were reported to Mount Prospect police.

A stereo receiver and four speakers were taken from 1105 Ironwood Dr., the home of Cinda F. Stover, after burglars apparently forced open a rear sliding door. The family was away for the weekend.

Items valued at $348 were taken from the Clarence Ruud home, 1408 Barbary Ln., while they were away Saturday. Police said the burglars forced a rear basement door open and took $15 in pennies, a pair of binoculars, a tape deck, earphones and three watches.

Adult Sunday school slated

What does prison reform mean to an average citizen?

South Church-Community Baptist is sponsoring an adult Sunday school class on that subject through June 17. Topics will include prisons, prison reform and the ways in which volunteers can help prisoners and ex-offenders.

A visit to the Cook County Jail is planned, and speakers from the Chicago Corrections Department, PACE, Operation DARE and Volunteers in Parole have been invited.

The textbook will be "Struggle for Justice," published by the American Friends Service Committee. Other subjects will also be taken up by other classes.

Most village business license applications sent

Almost all 1973-74 Mount Prospect business license applications have been sent out. These are the first under a new, tougher ordinance permitting the village

Board may vote on teacher contract

The River Trails Dist. 26 board is expected to vote on the 1973-74 proposed teacher contract at its meeting tonight. The meeting begins at 8 p.m. at the River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd.

The teachers met to ratify the proposed contract Monday. Though both sides have refused to reveal any details of the agreement until it is ratified, Board Pres. Lloyd Demel indicated that the proposal includes a revision in the current salary schedule as well as the schedule for extra duty pay.

Other items on tonight's agenda include a report on vandalism in the district and a proposed pilot program for teaching of stringed instruments.

Independent mayoral candidate says:

'Residents want bigger voice'

Mount Prospect residents want a bigger voice in village government, according to Michael Minton, independent candidate for mayor.

Minton, almost at the half-way point of his march through the village, summarized in a press release what he felt were the concerns of the majority of residents he has talked to so far.

"There is a definite concern on the part of the homeowner about what has been happening in our village," he said. "They feel left out, and they definitely want to be counted in."

Specific concerns Minton mentioned were high-rise, multiple-dwelling buildings, the proposed $6.6-million 1973-74 village budget and lack of transportation on the local level.

THE 26-YEAR-OLD candidate called for a "clamp down on building permits and (a restoration of) authority to the zoning commission."

He said residents are concerned about the budget. "We must begin practicing progress with economy, and shave the fat from the budget."

Residents, he said, "are concerned about the present mayor's (Robert D. Teichert) lack of effort to bring Mount Prospect into a transit system or even attempt beginning viable discussions on the subject . . . Our present mayor seems oblivious to our own needs."

In May and June of 1972, and at Christmas, 1971, however, the village helped fund experimental bus programs in the village, the so-called "shoppers' specials." Teichert also was involved in discussions with United Motor Coach as to the possibility of service on local village streets.

On March 21, 1972, the village board passed a resolution supporting the formation of a six-county mass transportation agency, excluding Chicago. Earlier, Teichert had said Chicago must be included in any such plan.

MINTON SAID homeowners are concerned that "village funds are expended for programs that could be financed with federal funds."

"They are concerned about fiscal irresponsibility when they know that programs such as ICE, for example, could be handled by the Cook County Sheriff's Office at no cost to the taxpayer," he said.

The village, however, tried to get an Illinois Law Enforcement Commission grant prior to the setting up of the ICE House counseling center and the Pump House Hotline, a telephone crisis intervention center. The effort was unsuccessful.

Minton concluded, "Most of all, the people are concerned about what is happening to their diminishing confidence in our village government. They cannot understand why the present mayor refuses to disclose his source of income and financial assets, as corroborated by his federal income tax form. They wonder why the secret?"

"They do not understand his refusal to sign a fair campaign pledge calling

Clarification

Mount Prospect Dist. 57 School Board candidate David Kluxdal said Monday in response to a story published in the Herald last week that "I have not indicated I was unhappy with the schools or the present school board."

Kluxdal said the only problem he is concerned about is related to board credibility. "I think the present board has done a great job to improve school board communications, but there are instances where I wonder whether we're getting all the facts or not," he said. "I think the credibility has contributed to problems we've had in the past. I think its resolution depends on the willingness of the school board to achieve credibility."

Police promotion list changed

A change has been made in the promotion list for Mount Prospect police sergeants.

The new list, released yesterday, places Patrick L. Hallihan first. He was third on the original list. Formerly first and second, but now second and third, are Edward D. Nastek and Warren A. Fischer.

Included in the tentative 1973-74 village budget are funds to cover the promotion of two patrolmen to the rank of sergeant.

According to Police Chief Bert Giddens, Hallihan asked that his military points (credit for military service) be applied to his test score. State law permits the application of the points only once toward a promotional exam.

The other three men on the list are, in order, Richard E. Yost, Roland B. Lischak and Dennis R. Leonard. The list is valid for three years and the tests were conducted over a several month period by the village's fire and police commissioner.

Village, township posts at stake in election today

New governing boards for the village, the library and the park district will be chosen by Arlington Heights residents today.

Township officials also will be elected in both Elk Grove and Wheeling townships.

Candidates endorsed by the Open Caucus Party of Arlington Heights will run unopposed for village president and trustee seats. The candidates include: Jack Walsh, village president; and trustees Frank Palmatier, Alice Harms, Richard Durava, Graeme George and David Griffin.

Incumbents in the race include Palmatier and Mrs. Harms. Durava is currently on the village plan commission, and Walsh was village president from 1969 to 1972. George and Griffin will take the two new board seats created in a December referendum which increased the 5-man board to a 7-man board.

IN THE ARLINGTON Heights Park District election, three of the five board seats will be filled by unopposed candidates. Incumbent Lloyd Meyer is running for an unopposed four-year term, and Bruce Everly and Katy Graham are running unopposed for six-year terms.

Charles Cronin, Jack Edwards and Kay Muller, all incumbents, will vie for two two-year terms on the park board.

All three seats up for election on the library board will feature competition. Running for two six-year terms are incumbent Roland Ley, John Patrick O'Brien and Philip Jones. Running for four-year term are Lois Davidheiser, Audrey Rieder and James Foster.

TOWNSHIP OFFICIALS running in unopposed races in Elk Grove Township include: Richard Hall, superintendent; Charles Hodlmair, assessor and Arnold Scharringhausen, collector.

In a heated race for four Elk Grove Township auditor seats, four Republicans are running against three independents. Republicans include Bernard Lee, Wayne Hult, Larry Hintze and Walter Bartley. Independents include Paul Rattberg, Julie Sass and Steve Maddock. Republican Alfred Steil and independent Lawrence Pahl are running for highway commissioner.

The Republican slate, running unopposed, in Wheeling Township includes Ethel Kolerus, supervisor; Marshall Theroux, assessor; Arthur Olsen Jr., highway commissioner; Dorothy Hauff, clerk; Helmut Meyer, tax collector; and auditors William Reid, John Gilligan Jr., Merle Willis and Ray DeMaetelaere.

Holy Cow! Church store gains approval

The Holy Cow was resurrected last night and the store, next to St. James Catholic Church, 814 N. Arlington Heights Rd., now apparently will be allowed to open.

The store, sponsored by the St. James Catholic Church Women's Club, has been the subject of a zoning controversy between the women's club and the Near North Homeowners Association.

More than 150 persons packed the council room of the village hall to hear the village board decide whether the Holy Cow was an appropriate accessory use of the church or whether it would constitute a zoning violation. The store is being set up in a single-family residence building.

Holy Cow, which will sell a variety of items including clothing, candles, books, boutique items and religious articles, was approved 4-2 for limited hours on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The store's operation will be reviewed after a year.

Homeowners had sought to block the opening of the store in the belief that a retail business in the neighborhood would serve as a precedent to business and commercial rezoning along north Arlington Heights Road.

In other action, the board referred to the plan commission a proposal by the housing commission that developers be given incentive to include a number of low- and moderate-income housing units in future projects.

The proposal, which if accepted would become part of a new bonus system for builders, is one means the housing commission is exploring to meet a village board mandate for a limited number of low- and moderate-income units.

Turning Point names new officers, board

Turning Point, a confidential counseling service in Arlington Heights, has recently elected officers and board members.

Officers are: Chuck Keene, chairman; Toni Sweet, assistant chairman; Gail Helmer, treasurer, and Carol Dewey, secretary. Board members include Jim Hynes, Sue Mattiuzzo, Mary Jane Oestmann and Jan Whittaker.

Turning Point, funded by contributions, has a staff of trained volunteers to help people with problems or to refer them to other counseling agencies.

Rand-Stratford site rezoning sought

A rezoning petition for a half acre of land at the southeast corner of Rand Road and Stratford Avenue has been referred to the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals.

No date for a hearing on the rezoning has yet been set.

WALKING A HORSE after a morning workout is part of the daily ritual being resumed in the backstretch of Arlington Park Race Track as the April 14 opening of the track draws near. Horses already have begun arriving from New Orleans and will ultimately fill Arlington's 1,800 stalls. More than 3,000 applications were received for stalls at the race track this season, which Arlington officials hope will reverse last year's decline in attendance and total dollars bet.

Arlington Park ready for 'photos'

by KURT BAER

Arlington Park Race Track officials say they are bent on turning a bad start into a first-place finish as the April 14 opening of the giant complex draws near.

"All we need is a break from the weather, which we didn't get last year," Tom Rivera, the track's director of publicity and advertising, said yesterday.

Last year, 32 per cent of Arlington's summer racing dates were plagued by wet track conditions. This year, with an early spring opening, weather could have an even bigger impact on attendance and racing conditions.

Next Saturday's opening has posed several problems usually unknown at Arlington, including a conflict with the Easter and Passover holidays.

The track will close April 17, the first day of Passover, and remain closed through April 20, Good Friday. Racing resumes Saturday, April 21, and will continue, six days a week, through the season's close, now set for July 24.

THE SPRING dates ordered by former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie's Illinois Racing Board have forced Arlington Park into a crash program to fully enclose its new concrete barns.

Last year, the track spent $2.7 million on new, fireproof barns and dormitories, Rivera said. This year, work has concentrated on improving the grandstand appearance, flood control in the stable area and repainting of old multi-colored wooden barns.

"We're gradually getting rid of the rainbow colors. This year we've been able to do some of the work that the grandstand has needed. So far we've used over 8,000 gallons of paint," Rivera said.

A new red-and-white plastic floor has been laid in the main room of the grandstand, seats and rails have been repainted and concession stands have been remodeled.

RIVERA SAID general concession prices will be the same as last year, although he said the track will have to "make some adjustments" in its Classic Club dining room menu.

"We're going to be doing some very innovative things with chicken."

In the backstretch, some of the 1,800 horses that will fill Arlington's stables already have begun to arrive, mostly from New Orleans.

"We have 1,800 stalls and this year we received applications (from trainers and owners) for 3,000 stalls. This tells me it's going to be an absolutely great season," Rivera said.

He attributed much of the interest in Arlington Park among horsemen this year to the hiring of a new racing secretary, Jack Meyers, from Hollywood Park in California.

Hollywood Park now is controlled by Marje Everett, who formerly operated Arlington Park.

"For a time it looked like we might have some trouble (getting horses) but Jack has managed to bring in some of

Mrs. Edfors 'insane'; won't be tried

Mrs. Elaine Edfors, the accused slayer of her two daughters found beaten to death Feb. 26 in their Rolling Meadows home, yesterday was declared insane and ordered returned to the Department of Mental Health to be committed to a state hospital.

Circuit Court Judge Louis Garippo issued the judgment yesterday after reviewing results of court-ordered psychiatric tests performed on the 34-year-old woman.

The ruling means Mrs. Edfors will not stand trial for the double murders.

"It was a judgment, not a verdict, returned by the court," according to William Norris, one of two Cook County state's attorneys prosecuting the case. "We were satisfied with the judgment. In light of the evidence available, it was the only fair judgment that could be returned," he said.

During earlier pre-trial actions, Mrs. Edfors pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity in connection with the case, a spokesman for the state's attorney's office said.

MRS. EDFORS had been charged for the bludgeoning deaths of her 8 and 9-year-old daughters Pamela and Debbie, more than a month ago. The girls were found on the bloodstained floor of their home at 3500 Jay Ln. by their father Thomas.

Both girls died of head injuries apparently inflicted by blows from a hammer. Mrs. Edfors was found lying unconscious alongside the girls with apparent self-inflicted cuts on her wrists and throat.

Mrs. Edfors was held without bond in Cook County Jail until the ruling yesterday. Norris said the Department of Mental Health will decide the hospital to which the woman will be taken.

Township, village offices to be filled

Polls will stay open until 6 p.m. today

Polling places will be opened at 6 a.m. today in Arlington Heights for the election of village, library, park and township officials.

All polling places will remain open until 6 p.m. County precincts, the same as those used in presidential races, will be used for the village, park and library election. Combined polling places will be used in the uncontested Wheeling Township election.

"We had to have all of the 62 precincts open because it would be required by law if a flood control referendum were included in the vote," said Kenneth M.

Bonder, village clerk. When the election ordinance was passed there was a strong possibility that a $14 million flood control referendum would be included. A month ago it was decided to postpone the referendum until June 2.

BONDER PREDICTS that about 10 per cent, or 3,200 people, will vote tomorrow.

"If we can't get 10 per cent of the people to the polls, we're doing something wrong. We're talking about election to four different boards," said Bonder.

Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation, says a 750-person voter turnout is what he expects.

"There is no contest in the village or township election. Only one seat is contested in the park district and three seats are contested on the library board," said Thornton.

Two years ago when there was a heated village race, ten people running for two park board seats and six people running for four library board seats, about 10,000 residents went to the polls.

Residents of Elk Grove Township, those who live south of Central Road in Arlington Heights, will vote for township officials at their regular precincts.

ELK GROVE Township residents will pick six officials from 10 candidates. The Wheeling Township Republican slate is running unopposed.

"By combining precincts we are saving the taxpayers $14,940," said Ethel Kolerus, township supervisor, running unopposed for another term. The township has combined its 100 county precincts into 17 precincts.

"We need five judges per precinct, which cost $30 each, plus $30 for rental of each precinct," explained Mrs. Kolerus. "So we are saving $2,490 on 83 polling places and $12,450 on 83 judges."

Wheeling Twp. polling places are listed

Wheeling Township residents, (people who live north of Central Road in Arlington Heights) will vote for township officials in special precincts.

Precincts were combined in an effort to save money on judges and polling places in the uncontested election.

The Arlington Heights precincts include: Precinct 4 at Camelot Park, 1005 E. Saffield; Precinct 5 at Rand Junior High, 2550 N. Arlington Heights Rd.; Precinct 6 at Patton School, 1616 N. Patton; Precinct 7 at St. Peter's Lutheran School, 111 W. Olive; Precinct 8 at St. Viator High School, 1213 E. Oakton; Precinct 9 at Prospect Heights Community Church, 400 N. Elmhurst Rd.; Precinct 13 at Fairview School, 300 N. Fairview, Mount Prospect; Precinct 14 at Windsor School, 1315 E. Miner; Precinct 15 at Faith Lutheran Church, 431 S. Arlington Heights Rd.; Precinct 16 at South Junior High, 301 W. South St. and Precinct 17 at Westgate School, 1211 W. Grove.

School officials predict bigger '73-'74 budget

School Dist. 21 officials are forecasting an increase in the 1973-74 budget over last year's nearly $11 million spending.

The main causes for the increase are inflation and the added cost of staffing and equipping two new schools in the district, according to Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill.

Gill said the decision of the Illinois General Assembly on two pending bills could also affect the budget.

One measure now being considered by the legislature would freeze the amount of property tax revenue received by a school district at its present level. This would mean if the assessed valuation of the district goes up, the dollar amount collected by the school district would remain the same.

School officials also are watching a bill that proposes the state provide 50 per cent of the operating funds for schools. Action on this measure is not expected until June, Gill said.

DIST. 21 ASSISTANT Supt. John Barger and Jim Gochis, administrative assistant, are currently analyzing budget information from each of the districts schools. Gochis said they hope to have a preliminary draft of the budget ready for the board to consider sometime in April.

The school board is required by law to approve the final version of the budget by the second week in September, Gill said. However, he said the school board plans to complete budget work by the end of June, if possible, in order to prepare tax anticipation warrants.

Tax anticipation warrants are issued by taxing bodies as a means of borrowing against future taxes.

Gill pointed out the outcome of current teacher contract negotiations will have a major effect on the budget. Faculty salaries account for about 60 per cent of the spending outline, he said.

Representatives of the Dist. 21 school board and the Wheeling Faculty Council were scheduled yesterday to conduct their fifth bargaining session.

The meetings this year are closed to the public, so it is not known if the two groups are near agreement.

Drug cache confiscated; local couple arrested

An Arlington Heights couple was arrested late Friday afternoon after undercover narcotics policemen discovered a quantity of heroin in the couple's apartment near Hersey High School.

Arrested were Leonard Nix, 27, and his wife, Nancy, 20, of 1625 N. Windsor Dr., Arlington Heights. Both were charged with possession of heroin, marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia. Nix reportedly is employed as a mechanic by the Elk Grove Village Police Department.

The arrest followed a five-hour stake-out of the Candlewood Trace apartment by detectives from the Cook County Sheriff's Narcotics Control Unit. The raid on the apartment was led by Sheriff's Detectives Lt. Frank Braun and Sgt. Howard Anderson.

The sheriff's police said they received information from an informant that heroin was being sold at the apartment.

POLICEMEN in four unmarked cars began their surveillance of the apartment shortly after noon Friday, watched Mrs. Nix leave in a 1973 Buick Electra, and then return shortly before 5 p.m.

Armed with a search warrant, the detectives entered the apartment moments after Mrs. Nix' return. In her purse, detectives found approximately one-quarter ounce of heroin in a foil packet and a kit containing a hypodermic needle and syringe. Several small plastic bags containing marijuana also were found in the apartment.

Police said the street value of the heroin found could exceed $1,000. One detective said the amount of heroin found, "exceeds the need of a user."

Nix and his wife were released several hours later on $5,000 bond each. They are scheduled to appear in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court April 17.

School principal to discuss theft

Rolling Meadows High School Principal Robert Hoese will appear tonight before members of the licenses, police, and health committee to discuss a series of thefts reported at the school.

Ald. William Ahrens (2nd) said the meeting with Hoese was requested to determine how bad a problem theft is at the school. "I don't know how bad the problem is, but I would say any theft is excessive," Ahrens said.

Both Police Chief Lewis Case and high school officer Michael Condroski say theft at the high school is not a real problem. "We haven't had too much theft lately," Case said. "It's a problem but a lot of it is just kids' mischief."

Case said most articles reported stolen at the school are found and that the police department is "getting as much cooperation as it could get" from the high school in dealing with the problem. A majority of the problem results because "60 per cent of the lockers have no locks," Case added.

Condroski said the theft rate at the school is lower than at other high schools in the area. Condroski said figures on the incidents of theft were not immediately available, but he described the problem to be minimal during the year he has been assigned to the school.

Hoese could not be reached for comment.

Two candidates for Dist. 23 school board

Sallyann Okuno... 'We have to decide now what to do about boundary changes'

Sallyann Okuno believes it is hard to pass a school referendum. Just mention a rise in taxes, she says, and people automatically shake their heads no.

But that wouldn't stop Mrs. Okuno. If she were convinced Prospect Heights Dist. 23 needed a tax increase she would work to see that it was passed.

"We'd just have to push for it," she said. "We'd have to give voters all the facts."

Currently, Dist. 23 officials are studying what can be done to solve an overcrowding problem in the district. One possible solution is building a sixth school and adding to John Muir School on Drake Terrace.

"We definitely have to decide just how many new students are expected to move into the district in the next few years. We'll probably have to make boundary

On April 14, voters will elect three school board members in Prospect Heights Dist. 23. There are two persons running for two three-year terms. They are incumbent Alan Krinsky of Arlington Heights and Sallyann Okuno of Prospect Heights. Vincent Battaglia of Arlington Heights is running for a one-year seat on the board.

John Moss Jr. of Prospect Heights was a third candidate for the three-year term, but he announced yesterday he has withdrawn from the race for business reasons.

Today the Herald carries interviews with the two candidates for the three-year terms.

changes for the problem at Muir," said Mrs. Okuno, 32, currently Muir PTA president. "If all the building that is anticipated is definite and our other schools are at full capacity, then I would favor building a sixth school."

Mrs. Okuno thinks builders bringing large developments into a school district should donate "something" to offset the cost of the sudden increase in the district's enrollment. She also believes that new homes should be placed on the tax rolls as soon as they are purchased, instead of the one to two-year wait that currently exists.

THE MOTHER of three children, Mrs. Okuno has served on the Muir PTA for three years. A registered nurse, she also has served on a PTA council consisting of representatives of Dist. 23 and Wheeling Dist. 21. She lives at 2 Garden Court.

Here are her views on other school issues:

• Teacher bargaining: "I think they deserve at least a cost of living raise. I'm not familiar with the merit system in the district."

• Open School Plan: "It lets kids develop so much better and they can work at their own pace. I don't think there are bad points, although some parents say discipline is a problem. If every program was perfect, it would be stagnant because you wouldn't need to improve it."

• Unit districts (grades K through 12): "I don't feel I know enough about them. I am more in favor of keeping the district the way it is, kindergarten through eighth grade."

• Extracurricular activities for students: "I think they're fantastic. I think children are able to use their creative abilities and learn to use their free time wisely."

• Education for gifted children: "I think there should be something for them. The worst thing is to put a child in the classroom and give them no challenge."

• Special education: "I think the taxpayers have an obligation to provide it."

• Drainage problems at Muir School:

"I think it would be a hazard to put a retention basin on the school site. But I think it's a crime to have a playground and have to tell kids they can't play there because it's always under water."

Alan Krinsky... 'Do the best you can with what you have. That's all you can do'

"Do the best you can with what you have," is Alan Krinsky's credo for school board members.

"That's really all you can do," said the only incumbent in the Prospect Heights Dist. 23 School Board race. And this time Krinsky, of Arlington Heights, is determined to do the best he can to get elected and avoid the defeat he faced in last year's Dist. 23 election.

"I took it for granted last time that I would win. I'm campaigning harder this time," said Krinsky, 35, who served a three-year term on the board before he lost the 1972 election. Six months ago he was appointed to the board to fill a vacancy.

As a board member, Krinsky thinks it's his job to make sure the children in his district get the best education possible.

reach his full potential," said the father of two. "I would like to see more education geared to the individual. And I would like to see the schools used more — 12 months a year, 18 hours a day. They should be used by somebody — children, adults, whoever."

Krinsky is not afraid of controversy. He speaks out for what he believes. Earlier this year he urged the Dist. 23 Board to protest any efforts by Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 to form its own unit district (grades K-12).

Dist. 59 residents have been talking about forming an all Elk Grove Village unit district, which would combine Dist.

59 elementary schools with two High School Dist. 214 schools.

"The fact is that one elementary district wants to divide into a unit, taking the wealth from High School Dist. 214," Krinsky said. "This creates an unfair advantage to the children who will be attending the other schools in Dist. 214."

One issue facing Dist. 23 Board members now and in the future is overcrowding in the schools. John Muir School is near the enrollment breaking point and officials expect all schools to be overcrowded by fall, 1974.

"The immediate solution is to change boundaries in the schools and I assume

IF A NEW SCHOOL is to be built, Krinsky would recommend that the district hire a consultant to make sure building deadline and details are met by the architect and contractor. This would help avoid building problems Dist. 23 encountered during its last construction project, according to Krinsky.

A scrap iron and metal dealer, Krinsky, of 2927 Rosehill, owns his own firm. He attended the University of Illinois for three years. While on the school board he has served on the finance, planning and negotiations committee.

Here are his views on other school issues:

• Teacher contract bargaining: "I am in favor of closed meetings. Before, when we had private meetings, we have always been able to negotiate with teachers in five or six sessions. I think open bargaining hardens the positions. Last year when we bargained openly we had to settle it all in a closed session anyway. Teachers didn't get more than they would have in private."

• Merit pay for teachers: "I'm in favor of the merit system. I think it's good that if a teacher is willing to do an excellent job then he gets excellent pay. With merit, teachers have a little more incentive to produce."

• School financing: "I feel basically the closer the money comes to the school district the less money you have to pay to get it there. The money comes out of your pocket no matter how you get it. If we got the money through federal channels we would probably lose 30 cents on the dollar."

Alan Krinsky

• Extracurricular programs for students: "Education is the greatest thing in the world but you can't bombard students five days a week. They have to have a break, and these extracurricular activities are a good thing."

BRUSHING UP the grandstand at Arlington Park Race Track in preparation for the April 14 opening is part of an over-all effort to lighten and brighten the facility for this year's season. Track officials are hoping that despite the early spring dates assigned them by the former Illinois Racing Boards, 1973 will prove to be a good year at Arlington Park.

the country's top stables," Rivera said.

MEYERS HAS rewritten Arlington's stakes schedule, which now includes 30 stakes races. The season's five biggest races, in prize money and attendance, all will be held during the second half of the season.

The $100,000 Pontiac Grand Prix will be run June 18, the $100,000 American Derby July 7, the estimated $200,000 Arlington-Washington Futurity July 14, the $100,000 Arlington Handicap July 21, and the estimated $100,000 Lassie July 24.

The opening of Interstate 90, which provides a toll-free connection between the track and downtown Chicago via the Eisenhower Expressway, and the completion of road repairs along the Northwest Tollway will encourage racing fans to drive to Arlington Park, track officials are hoping.

And the restoration of gimmick betting also is seen as a needed shot of adrenaline.

Two of the most popular forms of gimmick betting are the trifecta, where the bettor must select in order the first, second and third place horses in a race, and the quinella, where he picks the first and second horse in either order.

THE ELIMINATION of gimmick betting in the middle of the racing season last year resulted in a six per cent drop in attendance and betting last year, Rivera said.

Arlington Heights Police Sgt. Jack Weber said traffic control for the daily racing crowd will be essentially the same as it was last year, with patrolmen at the race track gates and at intersections east of the track along Euclid Avenue.

"The only thing we tentatively foresee now is the possibility of lighter crowds because of the early dates, and the possibility of inclement weather," Weber said.

New traffic lights at Euclid and Dryden also should help move traffic, he said.

"But basically our highway setup still is the same as last year. We've got the same mass at Arlington Heights and Central (roads) and we're expecting about the same traffic off the tollway."

BILLING ITSELF as this year's "Super Track," Arlington Park appears to be making a concerted effort to make 1973 a good racing season.

Track officials still are hopeful that a suit by Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott will lengthen the racing schedule here, and they believe that the reinstitution of gimmick betting and the grandstand's facelifting should reverse last year's declining attendance and betting figures.

Attendance at Arlington Park dropped from 1,139,184 patrons in 1971, to 979,001 last year. Total dollars bet fell from $112,439,330 in 1971, to $105,349,875.

Local officials urge probe of Centex tax assessments

by STEVE BROWN

Local officials called for examination of county tax assessment procedures yesterday in the wake of disclosures land in Schaumburg and Elk Grove industrial parks received massive tax breaks.

The disclosures, made by the Better Government Association, revealed landowners in Schaumburg and Elk Grove may be saving $300,000 in taxes each year through assessment cuts made by the Cook County Board of Appeals.

The big tax breaks have been linked to Chicago Ald. Thomas Keane and his brother George (who until last year headed the county board of appeals), and other business and political figures.

The tax cuts were given for a 171 acre parcel of land in Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park and 93 acres in the Elk Grove-Centex Industrial Park.

In both cases, the assessments were cut by more than 80 per cent, according to the BGA/Chicago Sun-Times report.

A MAJOR PORTION of the Centex-Schaumburg property is owned by Chicago attorney Jack N. Pritzker. While he could not be reached for comment, a spokesman in his office claimed the reports Pritzker used his friendship with Keane to lower taxes was untrue.

The spokesman said the appeal for reductions in tax assessments was made after County Assessor P. J. Cullerton had increased the assessments in 1969.

"There are several other parcels which we received reductions on in this area," he said. The spokesman declined to identify the parcels of land or specify how much the assessments were cut.

Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher said he has no direct knowledge of any assessment reductions and said he did not want to make any additional comments until more detailed information is available.

"I certainly hope that all developments in Schaumburg are going on the tax rolls at a fair value," he added.

While Atcher and Pritzker are the owners of a 43-acre parcel of land near Schaumburg and Meacham Roads, Atcher said the property has not received any tax breaks.

COUNTY RECORDS show the land was assessed at about $13,000 last year, an increase of several thousand dollars over the 1969 assessments.

Pritzker, whose family controls the Hyatt Corp., owns several other Schaumburg land parcels, but tax records for those could not be obtained yesterday.

Elk Grove Village President Charles Zettek said he plans to take any and all action necessary to correct the situation.

"The board will do whatever is required to bring the assessed valuation up to what it should be," he said.

Officials in both the U.S. Attorney's office and the Internal Revenue Service said an investigation into the BGA's charges are now underway. No details of those probes were available.

The BGA reported that while Illinois law requires the board of appeals to specify why the assessment cuts were granted, no reasons for the board's action could be found.

Pritzker has been linked to other tax breaks given to the Hyatt Regency O'Hare hotel. The board of appeals cuts the assessment on the Pritzker owned facility by $2.7 million last year.

The land for the hotel was purchased from the late David S. Chesrow and the late William Lancaster, both men closely associated with Keane.

The Keane brothers and Chesrow are among the owners of a 78 acre parcel of land, known as the Haskins property, on Palatine Road, in Hoffman Estates.
